From the London Chronicle. The women of New Jersey are running counter to an old tradition. They are urging the legislature to pass an act compelling all married men to wear a ring on the left thumb. Learned writers in the past maintained that the wedding ring must be worn on the fourth finger of the left hand, "because from thence there proceeds a particular vein to the heart, the motion whereof you may preceive from the touch of your forefinger." A sixteenth century medical writer claims that he "could raise such as are fallen in a swoon by pinching this joint, and by rubbing the ring of gold with a little saffron; for by this a restoring force that is in it passeth to the heart, and refresheth the fountain of life, unto which this finger is joined. Wherefore antiquity thought fit to compass it about with gold."
