BORDEN ON THE FENCE.

When the leader of the opposition was asked what he was going to do about the duty on agricultural implements, he said he would be guided by the "ascertained facts." He understood that when a former reduction of duty occurred some of the smaller institutions were drawn out of business—some fifteen or twenty of them—which rendered the mergers easier. What will I do, he asked? "I will first ascertain the facts. I will guarantee that they will be dealt with justly." This is another way of saying that he will leave them alone. He is a high stepper in the matter of tariffs. His friends will not let him move. The manufacturers, taking flight at reciprocity, went to his side, and they are making it easy for him to campaign against the trade pact. In a word the reciprocity agreement provides for a drop of two and one-half per cent. in the duty on agricultural implements, and the government is committed to it. Mr. Borden is not committed to anything.

A WORD FOR THE BOYS.

The boys who are anxious for a dip, in their own time and way, just when the spirit moves them, realize the want of public baths. Oh for a club house and wharf, just big enough to stand upon, and with a post or two to pile the clothes on—and it does not require much space whereon to dump the entire belongings of a hundred boys nowadays—and anchored in the harbour. A resort which could be reached at any hour, conveniently, and free to all. That is what is wanted—what has been wanted so long that the oldest inhabitant, who is now supposed to be a certain bookseller, cannot recall the time when it was not in evidence. Time was when the kids had some liberties, or when they took these liberties, when they supposed some by-laws passed by the citizens were made to be broken, and when they were seemingly oblivious of, or indifferent towards, the "Thou shalt nots" of the civic corporation.

That was when the local law-makers did not amount to much. They had not much regard for the commands they carried, and so the small boy could not be expected to venerate them. Then when he wanted a bath he disrobed behind a wood pile and plunged into the water and once there was openly and flagrantly defiant of those who represented the law and personified its majesty. The ancient wood pile, with its marvellous recesses for the storage of wearing apparel, such as the boys used, has disappeared, and the eye of the public functionary and passing citizen appears to be more susceptible of offence.

Now the youth who, like the duck, hankers for the water, must go down to the marsh, and wade among the wild grasses and snakes, or go without his dip, in decent hours. A score of boys can be seen any day away below the old brick hill, indulging their propensity, and trying to look happy under very trying circumstances. They don't complain. They don't ask for favours. There is no more independent character anywhere than the small boy. He feels like asserting himself, like demanding some recognition of his rights, but he is silent. He is little, but in the matter of a swim he wants room, and by jingo he must have it. So the city must supply a swimming station which is handy and open to all. Some rich man can spend $500 less on himself and provide the bath houses, but if he does not the city must do so. Just make a note of this, gentlemen of the council, and do not forget it.

LOSS OF CHILD LIFE.

In a hot day, when one is limp, and the children are exposed to many dangers, one turns involuntarily, and for the second time, to the report of Dr. Helen MacMurphy on infant mortality. The preciousness of life is not apparent, as it should be, on every hand. "We need good Canadians to live in Canada," says the doctor. "That depends on our babies." According to our own figures we lose too many of the babies, too many that are native born. Why? Because the most ordinary precautions are not taken to protect and preserve their lives. And it is the poor man's hair that suffers, too. In one statistical statement 505 babies out of 1,000 died under one year old among the working classes; 173 out of 1,000 among the middle class; 89 out of 1,000 among the rich.

The causes of this terrible mortality, have been analyzed. The mothers have not been cared for and fed sufficiently. The babies have not been given good milk, air and water. The organs have been neglected. They have not been decently housed. Some of them have been assigned to lanes and shacks not fitted for the dogs. Some of the homes have been filthy and unworthy of the name of home. Conditions are becoming better, thanks to the energy and discrimination of the health departments of the cities. But there is much to be done in the cleaning up of congested districts, in banishing dirt and all that it implies, in putting out of existence pest spots in which the poor have had to reside because they could not help themselves. A general and wholesale condemnation of the death traps is one cure. If these places were not tolerated the babies could not be confined in them, to sicken and die and the municipalities most eventually, in Canada, as in England, concern themselves about the home life of the people.

Next to doing things that are commendable is the knowledge of what to do, and this Dr. MacMurphy supplies. She read extensively on the subject of child life and embodied it in this report to Hon. Mr. Borden. He has been good enough to commit the report to the king's printer and give it limited circulation. But is that the limit so far as he is concerned? Here is a valuable treatise on what kills the babies—70 per cent of the deaths being avoidable—and what can be done to save life, and only a few people see it. The want of the hour is (1) Education as to child life, and (2) the machinery that will enforce this education and its results upon careless people. It is a great problem, and the provincial government should try and solve it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

An English syndicate seeks the direction of Sir William Mackenzie in investing $25,000,000 in Canada. The syndicate has been fortunate in the choice of a guide.

The results in the entrance papers have been sent to Toronto, for the first time. Why should there be any delay in making the announcements? Must the paper be revolved or re-examined in Toronto?

In Toronto lawn sprinkling has been stopped. Next the water bath will be prohibited. Cause—water famine. Toronto is a great place for loud talk, but for deficient civic administration. Time for some people to move out.

The inspector of licenses should not content himself with one or two examples of illegal liquor selling to "Indians." There is no advantage in putting men and women in the prohibited list if they can get the liquor as they please. This must be stopped.

Queen's College declined to pass on the plans of a new building twice, because they called for a higher sum than the trustees had at their disposal. The building was eventually reduced in cost, and the work upon it begun.

One of the members of the Saskatchewan legislature, a conservative, has been led to repent of his vote in favor of reciprocity. But Mr. Haultain has showed no signs of a change of mind or heart. He voted for reciprocity and he stands pat.

Mr. Borden's late meetings in the west have been lively enough. The people talked a little themselves, and some of them talked back. They did not hesitate to tell him that the west was committed as unalterably to reciprocity as he was against it.

A Toronto University man has been deprived of his degree for some minor offence, which seems to have taken place in the bursar's office. Students and cadets should, of course, behave themselves. But they should be punished for non-university troubles in some way besides refusing them the degrees they earned.

Filtration Must Come.

Montreal Witness. The question of pure water is a recurring topic everywhere, and the article in Engineering widely discussed on two continents. There are cities in America where the death rate from typhoid fever attains an enormous figure of 130 per 100,000 of the population, compared with 4 in London, 2 in Edinburgh, and 1 in Stockholm. The cause of the mortality is well-known. A city turns its sewage into a river at its doors, and the next city downstream pumps it into the consumers' pipes. The typhoid death-rate is very low in England as compared with Canada and the United States, but even in England the river water, including that of the Thames as taken from the higher reaches, is not above suspicion. The Thames receives the sewage of a dozen towns, as the "Westminster Gazette" says, but it is after the sewage has been treated, and that is a very different thing from the sending of crude sewage into a river. But although gross pollution is prevented, there is sometimes a storm overflow and at such times an overflow of untreated matter, so that London, for example, does not regard the purity of the river so much as the filtration of the water used as a safeguard against recurring epidemics. Seamen quartered in the barracks attempted to bring about a monarchist uprising in Lisbon and the city was thrown into a panic. At Manchester, Eng., cavalry and infantry were called out to subdue the tar men strike riots.

IN A BROILING HEAT

THE LAURA SECORD MONUMENT WAS UNVEILED.

At Queenston by Sir George W. Ross—Laura Secord's Deed Caused Repulse of Americans in July, 1813.

Queenston, Ont., July 6.—At two o'clock Wednesday afternoon Sir George W. Ross drew away the canvas which has, since last autumn, enveloped the monument of Laura Secord, on his heroic Queenston Heights. Hundreds of people stood in the broiling heat and watched the unveiling ceremonies. Many of those present were American sightseers, who could not understand the thing at all, because the American historians say nothing of the American forces being repulsed by the British at the battle of Beavers Dam, in July, 1813, due to the heroic journey of Laura Secord, who walked thirteen miles through the Indian and guerilla infested woods to warn the British of the American's proposed surprise attack.

A granddaughter of Laura Secord, Mrs. Cohoun, Winnipeg, was present at the ceremony, and was introduced to the spectators. Other relatives of the courageous woman were also on hand, several from the United States. Many Daughters of the Empire were among the spectators. J. W. Langmuir, chairman of the provincial park commission, formally accepted the monument as a prized addition to the beauties of Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park. The monument remains perpetually the property of the park commission. Sir George Ross, in his address, referred in glowing terms to the brave deed of Laura Secord, who had also saved her husband on the field of battle from certain death. He said her relatives present might well be proud of so heroic a grandmother. These early days of strife and hardship bred staunch and true hearts, and history, declared Sir George, has not told of a pluckier deed than that of Laura Secord.

Last Year's Immigration Figures Just Announced.

Winnipeg, July 6.—Figures at hand at the immigration hall for the fiscal year just completed reach a total of 311,084, or over 100,000 greater than last fiscal year. The best previous year was 1907-1908 when 262,469 immigrants entered Canada. Of last year's aggregate, 123,013 came from the United Kingdom, 26,212 being English. Americans numbered 121,451 and Europeans 61,620. The prairie provinces absorbed the bulk of the immigrants, but 54,659 went to British Columbia, and this of the very best class. Indeed, possibly the most significant feature of these statistics is the big wave to the Pacific provinces.

THE STOLEN HORSE.

An Old Proverb with a New Application.

The woods are full of "so-called" remedies for Baldness.

You may call anything in creation a remedy, but to use them is like locking the stable after the horse is stolen.

Baldness and Dandruff are caused by a germ—if you don't kill the germ the germ will kill the hair.

Scientists have labored with the problem of a preventative for Baldness for many years.

Newbro's Herculide is the product of a modern idea, and will cure Dandruff, and prevent Baldness because germs cannot exist when you apply Herculide.

Herculide is a valuable hair dressing and scalp disinfectant as well as a cure for Dandruff.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herculide Co., Detroit, Mich. One dollar bottles guaranteed. J. B. McLeod, special agent.
