

TO BUILD BIGGER

Porcupine Already Rising From Its Ashes.

PEOPLE HAVE FAITH

IN THE FUTURE OF THAT GOLD DISTRICT.

Trains Will Soon Run Into South Porcupine—Brokers Are Doing as Good a Business as Before the Fire.

Porcupine, July 19.—Although only one week since Porcupine was swept by the most calamitous fire in its history, north country people have already ceased to talk about it, and are looking into the future rather than the past. The whole district now resounds with the sound of the axe, saw and hammer and fast as the railway brings in sawn lumber houses are being run up. People here who have lost their all have no word of complaint to make. They believe in Porcupine and still proudly tell you it is the best gold camp on earth.

Local brokers began trading in Porcupine stocks again, yesterday, and did as good a business as before the fire. Work is now proceeding on the clearance of a site for a stock exchange, and it will be one of the first large buildings erected in the city after the fire. It is to be a fine building, modern in every detail, and its construction is arousing enthusiastic comment. Their town is going to be. It will be a bigger, finer, better place than ever before, they tell you. There is reason for their optimism. Railway construction gangs are busy building from Golden City round the east side of Porcupine Lake, and trains will soon run into South Porcupine. When that happens numerous smart gasoline launches, now doing a roaring freight and passenger business, between Golden City and Porcupine, will find much of their business going to the north and west. At South Porcupine, that is bound to be a big thriving place.

There is absolutely no destitution here. Each train into Porcupine is now crowded with returning refugees. They have light fires and leave them, and others already complain that they have already complained are made that many foreigners have come in and got relief and tents who never saw Porcupine till after the fire.

Ottawa, July 19.—A. N. Molesworth, engineer in charge of the Transcontinental railway construction across the Ottawa, who is in Ottawa, attributes the disastrous fires in Northern Ontario to inexperienced and careless prospectors.

The temperance party in the state of Victoria is agitating for the closing of the hotels at the same hour as the shops.

AN OIL WELL SHOOTS LAVA INTO THE AIR

Texas Phenomenon Puzzling Scientists—Oil Volcano Emitting Only Gas Now

Galveston, Texas, July 19.—A phenomenon which puzzles scientists and oil experts has presented itself in the Humble oil fields, where a well down 1,200 feet blew out with a terrible gas explosion. Three hours later, with a roar which was heard for miles, the hole began belching what appears to be lava and rocks, sulphurous gases and sand, lava and lava were shot in the air 100 feet.

After four hours, in which the eruption gradually decreased, the ground near the hole began to sink. Fearing further developments, many oil field workers residing near by were prepared to move before the sinking ground claims their property. The oil volcano has now ceased emitting anything but gas.

DID NOT WANT HIM.

Gentleman Burglar Goes Back to Norway.

New York, July 19.—Carl Von Metz-Meyer, a former army officer in Norway, whose father is rated a wealthy man, will not have to serve time for his robberies in Brooklyn. The Norwegian confessed to a score of burglaries. Judge Dike gave him the choice of five years in Sing Sing or the departure for his home in Norway immediately.

Metz-Meyer, who has been called the "gentleman burglar" is delighted to go home. This was regular sentence day in court and Metz-Meyer was warmly congratulated by several unfortunates who were sent to prison. Judge Dike said it was better to have Metz-Meyer out of the country than have the people paying for his keep in prison.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., July 19.—Despite unfavorable weather conditions, Lincoln Beachey, who won renown a few weeks ago in his dash through the Niagara gorge, thrilled the people of this section, yesterday, in a series of three flights. TIRED OF THE JOB.

The Ex-Judge is Not at all Satisfied.

Ottawa, July 19.—The game is in progress, and both sides have shown their hands. The government forced the fighting. Within ten minutes of the re-assembling of the House of Commons, yesterday afternoon, obstructionists put to members of the opposition, Mr. Fielding intimated the government's intention to make prompt progress in legislation by moving the house into committee, on ways and means to resume the consideration of the reciprocity arrangement. The opposition evaded the issue by obstruction.

Mr. Middlebro rose with an amendment calling upon parliament to recognize "in some substantial manner" the services of the Fenian raid veterans of 1860 and 1867. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, on rising, was greeted enthusiastically by his followers, replied very briefly. He pointed out that the question was some forty odd years old, that it had been first dealt with by Sir John Macdonald and his government, and that no reason had been advanced by the opposition why the judgment passed on the matter by Sir John at that time should now be revised. For himself, the premier said, he would not be disposed to treat all the veterans of those raids on the one system. Some were there, and he himself was one, who had not arrived on the scene until all the fighting was over. "I got a medal for my services on that occasion," observed Sir Wilfrid, "but I did not deserve it. I had no claim. His regiment had arrived too late to take part in the engagement, and all he had done was picket and garrison duty. For his part he thought that any consideration shown should go to those who had fought for their country and borne the heat and burden of the day.

SENATOR JAMES A. O'GORMAN.

Washington, July 19.—The junior United States senator from New York is, according to friends in Washington, tired of the senate. It is said he dislikes the handling of the masses of correspondence and also the regular work in the senate chamber, and that he longs to return to the supreme bench of New York state, from whence he came and where his salary was $17,500 instead of the $7,500 he gets as a senator. One explanation of his displeasure with his new office is said to be the fact that he has not had his family with him in Washington during most of the present extra session.

Atlanta, Ga., July 19.—The rich and eccentric Mrs. Sarah E. Gabbett, who was known as the "Irish peeress," is dead here at the age of seventy-seven. Her husband, Henry G. Gabbett, was said to be an Irish nobleman who had sworn never to live under British rule. Mrs. Gabbett kept more than a hundred dogs in her mansion. She dressed in costly attire and made a great display of jewels. When a dog died she went into mourning. It is believed she left her property to the Episcopal church, of which she was a devout communicant.

Entire Board Incapable—Garbage Collection Bill Trouble.
Brookville, Ont., July 19.—A petition is in circulation asking that the entire town council resign on account of their individual and collective incapacity. LOCKED HORNS

On the Reciprocity Bill Once Again.

LIBERALS SAT SILENT

AND ALLOWED THE TORIES TO PLOD AWAY.

Ottawa, July 19.—The game is in progress, and both sides have shown their hands. The government forced the fighting. Within ten minutes of the re-assembling of the House of Commons, yesterday afternoon, obstructionists put to members of the opposition, Mr. Fielding intimated the government's intention to make prompt progress in legislation by moving the house into committee, on ways and means to resume the consideration of the reciprocity arrangement. The opposition evaded the issue by obstruction.

Mr. Middlebro rose with an amendment calling upon parliament to recognize "in some substantial manner" the services of the Fenian raid veterans of 1860 and 1867. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, on rising, was greeted enthusiastically by his followers, replied very briefly. He pointed out that the question was some forty odd years old, that it had been first dealt with by Sir John Macdonald and his government, and that no reason had been advanced by the opposition why the judgment passed on the matter by Sir John at that time should now be revised. For himself, the premier said, he would not be disposed to treat all the veterans of those raids on the one system. Some were there, and he himself was one, who had not arrived on the scene until all the fighting was over. "I got a medal for my services on that occasion," observed Sir Wilfrid, "but I did not deserve it. I had no claim. His regiment had arrived too late to take part in the engagement, and all he had done was picket and garrison duty. For his part he thought that any consideration shown should go to those who had fought for their country and borne the heat and burden of the day.

With the premier's response the government contribution to the matter ceased. But the opposition were not to be denied. Mr. Middlebro occupied time by reading Hansard of 1875, when a similar debate was precipitated between parliamentarians, marshalled by Sir John Macdonald, and Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. Then, and the North Grey man finally concluded, the whole obstruction brigade—Messrs. Sprule, Barker, Reid, Lancaster, Lennox, Boyce and Sharpe—were brought on, one after the other.

Mr. Lancaster wanted the premier on the absence of liberal speakers, and warned him that he need not be anxious to get off with other business, but neither Sir Wilfrid nor his lieutenants were to be drawn into the game of obstruction. After two hours of speaking and reading from Hansard of 1875, when a similar debate was precipitated between parliamentarians, marshalled by Sir John Macdonald, and Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. Then, and the North Grey man finally concluded, the whole obstruction brigade—Messrs. Sprule, Barker, Reid, Lancaster, Lennox, Boyce and Sharpe—were brought on, one after the other.

The Veto Bill.

London, July 19.—Mr. Ralfour had another long conference with Lord Lansdowne, last night, and it is understood that they decided to adhere to the policy of allowing the amended veto bill to pass the third reading without division.

So far, there is no sign of any motion to reject the bill, and although it is still possible that the insurgent peers may challenge division, it is not expected that the revolt will be big enough to endanger the bill in this stage, as Lord Lansdowne and his associates are doing their best to counteract the threatened rising.

New York, July 19.—Thomas Franklin Manville, Jr., son of the millionaire "asbestos king," and his chorus girl bride, who was Miss Florence Huber, of Williamsport, Pa., will get married for the third time soon. She is four years older than "Lindy," who is nineteen.

There is a method in their marrying madness. Papa Manville has threatened to have the ceremonies annulled. The couple believe that by marrying often enough, in different states, they will discourage him.
