FATAL END TO DANCE

AN ORILLIA MAN WAS STABBED AND KILLED. Body of Ross Ford Found Dead on Roadside - Police Searching Swamp for Murderer.

Orillia, Aug. 11.—With three deep knife wounds in the chest, the body of Ross Ford, a young Orillia man, twenty-three years old, lies at the rooms of Undertaker Clark, while the local police are surrounding a swamp in North Orillia, where it is thought his slayer is hiding.

Wednesday night there was a country dance at the Duff farm house, four miles north of the town, and Ford and another young fellow were among the merry crowd present.

Thursday morning Ford's lifeless body was found lying on the roadside. The police claim to have traced the man who accompanied Ford from the farm house as far as the big swamp, and are searching it. Their theory is that Ford was stabbed to death in a quarrel. An inquest will be held to-day, presided over by Coroner Dr. McLean.

Arthur Sheridan, after the quarrel, told what he had done, then escaped in the swamp.

A $250,000 RANSOM.

Tortured German Professor Makes Pitiful Appeals. London, Eng., Aug. 11.—An offer of a ransom of $15,000 has been made by friends on behalf of Prof. Edouard Schuler, a German geologist, who was captured by brigands two months ago.

The brigands have demanded $250,000 as well as presents of jewels, but the Turkish government have declined to recognize any claims, and has sent two bodies of troops to capture the brigands.

In order to obtain information of the brigands' whereabouts the inhabitants of the surrounding villages were soundly flogged, although without effect.

The professor has now written a letter beseeching payment of the ransom to put an end to his sufferings. Negotiations are proceeding between the brigands and the professor's friends.

LYNCH AIRS HIS VIEWS.

Thinks Governor-Generals are Ornaments. London, Aug. 11.—Arthur Lynch, M.P., addressing the commons committee on the pensions to governors' bill, said that the colonial governor earned his money, but the Dominion governor-general was a mere ornament, and a very doubtful one at that.

When the imperial conference was sitting, Mr. Lynch said he had conversed with one of the most distinguished overseas statesmen, who declared himself of the opinion that they had reached the stage when the governor's functions were absolutely useless.

When the constitution is neglected, indignation, sleeplessness and nervousness will surely follow. A tonic is then needed, and the proper medicine is to take Wade's Iron Tonic Pills.

Discreditable Tactics.

A number of Canadian anti-reciprocity journals are reproducing an article from the Standard of La Grange, Indiana, threatening Canada with annexation. This paper is an obscure weekly, by no means representative of the American press.

GO FOR ARMS.

Essen the Home of the Krupp Gun Works. Essen, the home of the great Krupp gun works, is one of the most conspicuous examples of a one-man town.

This, and a great deal more, too, is essentially the work of one man, and it is unparalleled in the history of industry.

The products from Krupp's are varied. Compare this with the highly specialized condition of the industries chiefly associated with war materials, but all kinds of finished and unfinished materials for railroads, engines, tools, mills and other industrial appliances are turned out in large and small quantities.

The shops have been built at different dates and vary accordingly, but as a whole they possess in a marked degree that order and cleanliness which are the most distinguishing features of German factories.

A specialty here is the casting of very large ingots of crucible steel. It is a remarkable sight and an object lesson in methods. Ingots of eighty-five tons are cast, a few which are not attempted in any other place.

The steel is melted in small crucibles which are carried by hand, and, therefore, contain no more than two men can lift.

Scores of such crucibles go to the making of an ingot of considerable size, and they occupy many furnaces, which are ranged on both sides of the foundry, with the ingot mold in the centre.

At the signal the furnaces are opened and the crucibles drawn out and seized by a small army of workmen, who run them down to the mold and pour them in.

It is clear that the perfect work in preparation and order in execution is necessary. The maneuver is carried out with military precision and promptness.

In a moment the place is aglow with the white heat of the furnace, the figures run from all sides and come staggering down in pairs with the pots full of liquid steel. It is a scene of intense activity, but without confusion.

One after another the glowing pots are emptied; the molten metal runs like thick soup and plumps into the mold with a bright sputter. In a few minutes it is all over; the furnaces close again, the used crucibles are thrown aside and already the cast mass begins to congeal and change color, while presently it dulls to yellow and the tint deepens as you watch.

The steel so made is the purest known, close grained, homogeneous and uniform throughout. This is not done in the United States where the impurities of sand and processes, which is characteristic and has led to such remarkable development of automatic machinery, has its weak side.

The most striking feature of German iron and steel factories is their clean, orderly and well-kept condition. These qualities seem to be universal, and they extend to the dirtiest and most untidy departments.
