A LAW IS DESIRED

TO DEAL WITH THE VAGRANT FATHER.

Problem Was Discussed at a Meeting of the Children's Aid Society—Idle Men Should be Made to Work.

The monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society, was held in the police court, Friday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock, which was the report of the work done in June, July and August was given. This report showed that while the society as such, was having a vacation, the inspector, J. C. McConachie, had not been idle and that much good work was accomplished.

Mr. McConachie reported that during the past three months, he has made 700 visits and interviews in connection with 225 children, many of whom he longed outside of the city or had moved into Kingston from outside points.

He had issued warnings to thirty families concerning which he had received bad reports. He has attended the police court sixteen times in connection with children's cases, had placed eight children in foster homes; had taken the guardianship of eleven; had received 106 letters and written ninety-eight and had delivered six addresses on children's work.

He reported that he had organized a society in Prescott in July, but as that society had not received its charter he had to have the Kingston society take charge of the wards transferred by Magistrate Halpin, on the occasion of his visit. These were placed in the Orphan's Home and Roman Catholic Orphanage here until such time as they can be placed in good homes. Besides this the agent visited the wards, who are in foster homes in the counties of Renfrew and Frontenac.

The problem of the vagrant father was discussed with great interest, and at length it was strongly felt that steps should be taken to eventually secure a law by means of which an idle, dissolute husband and father could be arrested and committed to an industrial farm, where he would be compelled to work and a portion of his earnings be sent to support his wife and family. At present, nothing can be done but put the vagrant in goal, take the guardianship of the children and leave the mother to shift for herself alone. This procedure does not reach the root of the evil at all. The hope was expressed that politicians and the press would take this matter up and urge it as persistently and vigorously that such a boon to the oppressed might be speedily secured.

Napanee, Sept. 9.—Terribly sudden was the summons that came to Mrs. Laura Storms, wife of J. W. Storms, of Detroit. Mrs. Storms came here about three weeks ago from Detroit to visit friends, and was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Joy, Dundas street, when death came. For the past week, Mrs. Storms had not been feeling quite herself, but yesterday morning was better and arranged to leave today for her home in Detroit.

Deceased's maiden name was Laura Morey and she lived in Napanee all her life until last spring, when she and her husband removed to Detroit.

Another very sad death was that of Margaret Marion (Maizie) Stork, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stork, Mill street, which occurred on Friday morning, after but a short illness of tubercular trouble. Abandons Liberal Principles.

There are some men who are declaring themselves as opposed to reciprocity who, until now, were never known as liberals. The liberal who votes against the reciprocity agreement abandons not only his party, but what is far more important, the principles of his party. Reciprocity is a measure of freedom of trade, one of the standing principles of liberalism. Those who put forward as converts to restriction, must have voted for reciprocity and for reciprocity candidates time and again. It is to be presumed that they helped to put Laurier in power in 1896. In that election the liberals advocated a fair and liberal reciprocity treaty.

Died in General Hospital.

Richard Strickland, of Elmville, died in the Kingston General Hospital on Saturday morning from typhoid fever. He was brought here some time ago.
