TORONTO THE GOOD.

Her Slums Are a Disgrace Says the Medical Health Officer.

In the city of Toronto the slum question, which is assuming considerable importance throughout the Dominion, has lately received a large share of editorial attention, following the report of the Medical Health Officer, Dr. Hastings. These remarks by the editor of The Toronto Globe may prove of general interest to those concerned in good citizenship in Canada:

"Toronto should make short work of her slums. They are a disgrace to the city and to Canadian civilization. Dr. Hastings' report on housing in the congested area south of College and Carlton streets shows that over 26,000 people are living under conditions that are as bad for them morally as they are for the body. Of 4,698 houses inspected in the slum area there were only 1,601 with baths, and less than half with inside closets. In 2,207 cases outside privy pits were found. No less than 2,137 of these houses had two families living in them. There were 198 one-roomed "dwellings" occupied by families aggregating 472 persons. These facts and many others secured by the inspectors on their rounds must disturb the self complacency of the citizens who speak with pride of Toronto the Beautiful and Toronto the Good. No city can be in any real sense beautiful or good in which many thousands of people live without the most vitally important requirements for health and morality.

"It is to be hoped the Board of Health will follow up Dr. Hastings' report by the necessary orders for the abolition of all outside privy pits in the older sections of the city within a period of two or three years. It is possible that this might mean a harvest for the plumbers' combine, but if there were any signs of a disposition to charge unfairly high prices the board could do as the sanitary authorities of British cities do under like conditions—select standard workmen to install closets and baths at cost price.

"In addition to provisions for sanitary appliances in the houses of the slum sections of the city, the Board of Health should strictly enforce the existing regulations requiring a certain amount of cubic space for each inmate in a house or tenement. High rents are both a cause and an effect of overcrowding. In case where the city, by failure to enforce the law against overcrowding, permits a dozen people to be herded together in space that should be given to half the number, it is responsible for the increase of rents that will inevitably follow, for the rule of the slum landlord is to charge 'all the traffic will stand'."

The West Forty Years Ago.

According to the Edmonton papers, Frank Moberley, C.E., an engineer well known throughout Canada, recently re-visited the capital of Alberta after forty years' absence. (He last visited the site of the city in 1871 as engineer in charge of the C.P.R. explorations between Fort Garry and the Yellow Head Pass, returned to see the city which has grown up on the site of the fort which he knew.

"When I arrived there in 1871," said Mr. Moberley, "the only house outside the stockade of the Hudson Bay fort was the residence of Rev. George McDougall, the pioneer missionary who later was found frozen to death in Southern Alberta."

Malcolm Groat and Pere LeDuc are probably the only persons alive in Edmonton who were living here at the time. In 1871 there was nothing in the direct line between Pembroke on the Ottawa and New Westminster on the British Columbia coast but Fort Garry with 250 population. In all that area there were only three permanent buildings, Lower Fort Garry, St. John's Cathedral and the "bastions" at Upper Fort Garry. On one occasion Moberley was lost with a companion in mid-winter between Fort Edmonton and the Yellow Head Pass. Both were exhausted and almost hopeless. Before settling down in camp, which they had made when they found they were too weak to proceed, Mr. Moberley called at the top of his voice and the answering bark of a dog revealed that they had stumbled upon the camp of three Montana miners, who had come north to Saskatchewan prospecting for gold.
