SCIENCE MEN'S SPORT

THE FRESHMEN WERE PRETTY VIGOROUSLY TREATED

To Paint and Flour—Driven Down Town and Let Loose Without Their Boots—Made Their Way Home.

The science rustics took place at Queen's on Friday morning. The freshmen were allowed to attend their first class. When they came out from it they were landed on by the other students and "decorated." The first thing done was to take off their boots and place them in two boxes. The right boot was put in one box and the left in the other. The freshmen were then taken out onto the lawn and had their feet and hands tied together. Then the college colors in the shape of paints were brought forth. Every man in the bunch had the pleasure of having the colors placed on his face and in some cases on the head. The freshmen were also covered with flour.

After the "disguration" the freshmen were taken through the streets on three large wagons, the first wagon carrying the boots. They went as far as the Randolph hotel and were there dumped off to let them get on their boots and get home the best way they could. The freshmen got their boots on and ordered automobiles and went home to get the rest of their clothes.

St. James' Young Men's Club.

St. James' Young Men's Club met on Thursday evening and the election of officers took place as follows: Hon. president, George E. Hague; hon. vice-president, J. H. Forester; president, J. H. Rutherford; vice-president, F. Newland; secretary, Fred Johnson; treasurer, R. Atkinson; critic, George Sergeant; sergeant-at-arms, Norman Gibson.

BOOMING Y.W.C.A. WORK

Members Are Wanted for the Gymnasium Classes.

The Y.W.C.A. of this city, under the management of the new secretary, Miss Knowles, expects to make itself heard during the coming winter as an institution fully equal and occupying as far a place in the hearts of the people as the Y.M.C.A.

Miss Knowles is busy outlining a plan for the winter's work, but nothing definite has been decided yet. The gymnasium work must receive the first attention. A number of the members state that they wanted a gymnasium. The board of education granted the association the privilege of using the gymnasium of the Collegiate Institute, and Physical Instructor Palmer will have charge of the classes. Thirty ladies for the evening class and twenty children for the Saturday morning class must be registered by Monday in order to obtain the gymnasium. At the present time the membership is about twelve for each class. The girls wanted the classes bad enough to ask for them and it is now up to them to secure the necessary members.

An interesting programme is being outlined for the winter, and some unique entertainments will be provided for the amusement of the members. On Sunday afternoon Bible study will be held to which all young ladies of the city will be invited. Many other forms of study and entertainment will be brought forward for the welfare of the association and the members enrolled.

ST. JAMES' YOUNG MEN'S CLUB

Mrs. Hagen, Aged 95, Joined Church

When Eight.

Welland, Oct. 13.—Death has called Welland's oldest resident and the oldest member of the Methodist church in Canada, in the person of Mrs. Eliza Hagen, widow of the late Hugh Hagen. Deceased was in her ninety-fifth year. She had resided in Welland at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Bates, ever since her husband died twelve years ago. A strange coincidence in connection with the death of Mrs. Hagen is that her husband, who was just twelve years older than she, predeceased her twelve years ago.

WESTERN COAL STRIKE.

Miners Refuse to Talk on Result of Convention.

Lethbridge, Alta., Oct. 15.—The miners' convention concluded yesterday but the miners have nothing to say as to the outcome. The district executive is meeting this afternoon and it is believed that the final decision has been left to them. Great interest is being shown in the convention and delegates are apparently giving the matter the most careful attention.

WIRELESS IN MOROCCO.

Communication Between Paris and Fez.

Paris, Oct. 13.—Wireless communication was inaugurated yesterday between Paris and Fez, Morocco. The sultan at Fez, and El Mokri, the Moroccan minister of foreign affairs who is here, exchanged felicitations on the installation of the system. The capacity of the circuit is 7,500 miles. The system was completed in two months, although it was necessary to transport 500 tons of material by camel caravan through Morocco.

POWDER ON WARSHIPS.

Four Years the Limit Fixed by French Government.

Paris, Oct. 13.—Minister of Marine Decelle today issued orders that hereafter no powder shall be kept aboard warships over four years. The order is the result of an investigation of the disaster at Toulon a few weeks ago.

The Late Howard Quinn.

Howard Quinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Quinn, died in the Hotel Dieu hospital, on Wednesday. The deceased was thirteen years of age, and had only been sick a short time. His death was due to appendicitis. He is survived by his mother and father and two sisters. The funeral took place on Friday morning to St. Mary's church. The boys from St. Mary's school all attended the funeral. He was a great favorite among them. Numerous floral offerings were received.

Faithful Dog Attacks Burglar.

London, Ont., Oct. 13.—An intruder belonging to A. E. Ferte, a well-known resident of Hellmuth avenue, attacked a burglar on the verandah as the intruder attempted to gain an entrance to the house. The tussle aroused the family, but the man escaped after slashing the dog fearfully.

LIQUOR WAS TO BLAME

FOR YOUNG MAN STEALING AT COLLINS'S BAY.

This Was the Excuse Christopher Sloan Gave to Magistrate When He Was Arraigned—Remanded For a Week—Placed Under Arrest in This City.

"I had been drinking. If I had been sober I would not have taken the goods."

Drinking is no excuse for crime, but it is given the magistrate almost every day, and this was the excuse offered to Magistrate Farrell on Friday morning, by Christopher Sloan, a young man, who was accused of stealing a coat, a pair of trousers, and a watch from Ernest Barr. Both men have been working in the same camp at Collins Bay. Barr missed his belongings on Wednesday afternoon, and on Thursday morning, Sloan also suddenly disappeared, and made his way to Kingston. The police were asked to look out for him, and at four o'clock, on Friday morning, he was found in a shed off Ontario street sound asleep, by Constables Thomas Mullinger and McCahey. Sloan said that he did not intend to take the goods he had stolen.

The magistrate remanded the accused for a week, loaned and that his home was in Newton Falls, N.Y., and but he had been living in Canada for two years.

A drunk was given a chance, as it was his first appearance before the court.

BRITISH OFFICIALDOM.

Recent Acts of Parliament Have Created Army of State Employees.

London Standard

James W. Reid, London, opened the morning session of the Law Society convention at Nottingham with a paper on "The Tyranny of Officialdom." He pointed out that the cost of civil administration had increased from nineteen millions in 1891, to forty-two millions (exclusive of revenue departments) today. "A great deal of this," he said, "is due to the extension of officialdom in the administration of private affairs." Having dealt with the legal aspect of the bankruptcy department of the board of trade, and the appointment of the public trustee, he referred to the enormous increase in the number of officials caused by recent acts of parliament. Speaking of the labor exchanges, he said: "I have no statistics to show what has been the overwhelming advantage to the nation of these labor exchanges, but I noticed the other day at one which exists on our east coast that these exchanges now undertake the work of domestic servants' agencies; and I am told that in one instance the vicar had, through the labor exchange, succeeded in getting a curate. As curates are becoming scarce, this would seem to be a strong testimonial to the efficiency of the labor exchanges, but whether their utility justifies the staff of officers employed is quite another matter."

Mr. Baird, who is the owner of seven newspapers, and who came over from Belfast with a party of British scribes at the invitation of the Government Immigration department, has been talking frankly about Canada as he sees it; and has come to the conclusion that it is a country for the laborer rather than for the gentleman, and that, among other things, the officials on Canadian trains are an uncivil and ignorant lot. Mr. Baird also thinks that the average Canadian youth is being educated above his worth, and ascribes the fact of so much of Vancouver's manual labor being done by the Japanese to the belief on the part of the white man that he is too good for that sort of thing.

He is pleased with the liquor laws, but is sure that wives in the West are treated by their husbands with scant courtesy, and that the Englishman who comes over soon falls into the unpleasant marital manners of the Canadian.

He has found the railway porters of which he was the victim, saying that in many cases the questions he asked with regard to luggage, the time of trains, etc., remained unanswered by the liveried men to whom they were addressed.

Mr. Baird does not, however, think that we are all bad; and he is of the opinion that these unpleasant features of our country will "right themselves."

The eminent journalist says that he will always look back with pleasure to his trip through the Dominion, which he found "very interesting and very instructive." He would not express any political opinions, saying that he had made up his mind before leaving Belfast, to leave politics at home.

Merely One of the Hands.

He had only recently come from college, but his father, who owned the business, had made him manager, and he meant to make things hum, relates Answers. There would be no slackness where he was!

When, therefore, he met a neatly dressed clerk coming up the office steps at noon, he promptly stopped him.

"What time do you usually get here?" he asked judicially.

"Oh," came the calm answer, "I usually stroll in about twelve o'clock."

"Stroll in, um! I suppose you leave at a late hour?"

"Generally get away before three—quite long enough for me."

"Get away at three! Oh, indeed! Just as I thought—slackness and unpunctuality everywhere! We'll see about this. Tell me what department are you in? What are you?"

"Me? I'm the man who comes on Mondays to wind up the clock!"

Journalistic Vagaries.

From a Toronto paper—"She was left a widow through the death of her husband."

Personal in society column of an Ottawa journal—"Mrs. Coulter, being confined to her bed, will not be at home this Thursday, as usual."

A Hamilton paper remarks: "From evidence which they have gathered, the police believe the murder was the work of local talent."

A Halifax society journal reports that "The bride was charmingly, though boomeringly dressed."

A London paper informs us that "Mrs. Hemm has had a cement sidewalk on Park avenue."—Exchange.

Golden Wedding at Picton.

Fiction, Ont., 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Boulter celebrated their golden wedding this week with a gathering of their family and near relatives at "Clarendon," the home of their daughter, Mrs. E. M. Young. Mr. Boulter is one of the best known men of Prince Edward.
