TORONTO IS EN FEETE

IN HONOR OF THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

The City Gaily Decorated—One Hundred Thousand People Viewed the Royal Progress to the City Hall.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—The queen city of the Dominion and the capital of Canada's greatest province did herself proud, this afternoon, in her festivity to Canada's new royal governor, the Duke of Connaught, and the Duchess of Connaught. Mayor Geary had proclaimed a half holiday and all the big stores, and most other employers of labor observed it, and closed their establishments in honor of the event.

The streets were lined with troops, reinforced by a hundred thousand citizens of the sidewalks, in windows of buildings and other points of vantage along the route. There were also large contingents present from other Ontario cities.

To-night there will be an official dinner at Government House. Tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday the programme is fully occupied in public and social events by their royal highnesses. The citizens of Toronto individually and collectively have spent piles of money for the festivity of the royal visit. One family is said to have spent $6,000 in dresses for their daughters for the Yacht Club ball.

A VALUABLE WORK

Is That Issued by a Stella Clergyman.

Rev. G. Houghton Porter, M.A., S.T.D., of St. John's, has published a valuable work entitled "Reality of the Divine Movement in Israel," a study of the logical sequence of the divine consistency. The work is highly commended by the leading men of the Methodist church. It has 230 pages and sells for $1.25.

Rev. Dr. Cairns says that, upon an impressive foundation, he has built up great conclusions and reconals the way to the study of all lovers of truth.

The late Rev. Dr. Shaw declared the work to be of a very high order, profound, comprehensive and convincing, and that its terse style and argument must dispel much of the doubt created by recent destructive criticisms.

criticisms. Rev. William Jackson, D.D., says that the church owes Dr. Porter a debt of gratitude for producing a book which few men could have done, and fewer still could have done so well. Rev. Dr. Keet, Episcopal minister, St. Catharines, and Rev. Henry Gracey, Presbyterian minister, Gainsborough, both highly commend the work. Rev. Dr. Ryckman read the manuscript with very great interest. It presented very valuable reading to him and their views on the whole question are not far apart.

Rev. Mr. Porter is noted for his learned and literary ability; many of his chapters are especially eloquent. His views on the religious value of the Old Testament are full of the old time oratory. The work is one that all interested in the supernatural should possess because it presents the old historical facts in a way that is highly commendatory.

English View of Things. Manchester Guardian. If domestic peace is to attend Borden's terms of office he'll find it necessary to couple with inaction over imperial reciprocity, which he approves, inaction over the naval policy, which he avowedly does not approve. TO STAND HIS TRIAL

ON THE CHARGE OF STABBING ARTHUR JOHNSON.

Preliminary Hearing Given Monday Morning—Deafening Will Endeavor to Prove Alibi—Three Witnesses Heard.

The case of the King vs. James Campbell, who is accused of stabbing Arthur Johnson on the Perth Road last Monday evening, was given a preliminary hearing at the court house on Monday morning at ten o'clock, before Justice of the Peace, George Hunter, and he was committed for trial before the next court of competent jurisdiction. D. M. McIntyre, K. C., is the counsel for the accused, and it is understood that he will endeavor to prove an alibi, as Campbell asserts he was not at the place indicated at the time of the stabbing, but had gone out after something for the house.

The chief witness at the hearing on Monday morning was Arthur Johnson, the man who suffered as the result of the stabbing. Two others were also heard.

He told of the party at the boarding house, how he had been asked to see Miss Guthrie home, and how after he had left the house in the company of Miss Guthrie and her young brother, someone had thrown stones from a clump of bushes, and when he turned back to see who it was, Campbell rushed on, and after using a vile epithet, said, "I'll murder you." He saw Campbell with a knife in his hand, and was stabbed in the back.

He first met Campbell last February, when the latter worked a month and a half for him. He later worked in partnership with him during the latter part of the summer. He had always been on good terms with Campbell and knew of no reason why he should bear hatred toward him or why he should stab him.

Miss Marguerite Guthrie, the young lady with whom Johnson was walking when he was stabbed, was the next witness. She stated that she had known Johnson or about two weeks, while she had known Campbell for the past two months. She had met Campbell at different times at her home, although he had never left company with her. There was no reason, she asserted, why Campbell should be jealous of Johnson. She heard Campbell swearing and using vile language after he had knifed Johnson, and hid behind a building, as she thought Campbell was after her. She heard him run past the place where she was in hiding, and started for her home which was barely at short distance away. She had left the boarding house about nine o'clock, but through the delays caused by hiding from Campbell she did not reach home until about 9.30 o'clock.

The calling of Nelson Uptogrove finished the list of witnesses to complete the evidence for the preliminary hearing. He was upstairs at the time the deed was committed and when he heard screams he and a companion rushed down stairs. Before going down he heard a voice which he recognized as Campbell's say: "I have murdered Johnson and I'll murder the whole bunch." He ran outside where Johnson was and assisted him to a nearby place where the wounds were dressed by Dr. Freeman.

Filling the Cup. London Advertiser.

There must be searchings of heart among sincere conservatives in Ontario who give attention to the debates at Ottawa.

The leader of the government, who ardently advocated the immediate construction of a Canadian navy in Canadian shipyards two years ago, has already consented to the destruction of the project in obedience to his nationalist allies. A French-Canadian premier had won a majority of his compatriots to a great step toward imperial co-operation, against the malignant opposition of his enemies in Quebec.

That step is now to be retraced by an English-Canadian premier. He adds insult to injury by calling to his country's men who have tried to embitter French-Canadians against Great Britain, and to fix in their minds a prejudice against any form of naval conscription. The cup of humiliation for English conservatives is filled to the brim.

It was put to their lips by Mr. Monk in his speech in the house. His boast that his own opinions on the navy question had been accepted by Mr. Borden was the crowning mortification. Mr. Borden had to swallow the bitter draught. Bitter it must be to every conservative who has a taste for something besides the sweets of office.

Mr. Monk Becomes Offensive. Toronto Globe.

The Toronto conservatives who are making Mr. Foy and Dr. Pyno unhappy by demanding direct pledges that they will be deeply gratified to note that Mr. Monk, the lieutenant of Mr. Borden, taunts Sir Wilfrid Laurier for his failure to adopt Mr. Monk's motion to make French one of the official languages in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Because he did not force this measure of bismarckianism on the unwilling west, Sir Wilfrid is held up as a traitor of his race by the nationalistic-conservative leader, speaking as Mr. Borden's mouthpiece.
