"The best ever." This was the opinon expressed by all who attended the annual dinner of the Aesculapian Society of Queen's University, held on Tuesday night in Grant hall.

About three hundred persons sat down to the tables, and the menu provided was of the very best, in fact there has been nothing to surpass it within college halls, At least, "the boys" said so, and it must be so. In addition, there was a programme of toasts and music, and everything passed off with great success, and the various committees, having the affair praise.
