

WALKED INTO CANAL

MISHAP OF MISS BESSIE KANE, GANANOQUE.

She Was Rescued in the Darkness—Death of Mrs. Arthur Webster—Talk on Municipal Matters.

Gananoque, Dec. 20.—Miss Bessie Kane, step-daughter of William Newbury, King street, an employee of the St. Lawrence Steel and Wire company, met with a very thrilling experience on her way home from work at six o'clock on Monday evening. In crossing the bridge over the canal, it being rather dark, she walked into the canal. Assistance was promptly at hand, the gates of the canal were closed, a couple of young lads went down into the water, while a chain of hands held them ennobled with the bank and the young woman was rescued. Dr. Bird was at once summoned, and reports show the young woman to be in a very critical condition.

Fish and Game Overseer George Toner is still at his post in looking after the law violators. On Monday he seized in waters adjacent to the town, upwards of half a mile of gill nets.

Frederick Glover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Glover, Pine street, of the local staff of the Bank of Toronto, received orders this week to report at the head office in Toronto. Mr. Glover left this morning to report for duty and will be transferred to the far west. Miss May Wilton, Toronto, a former resident of the town, arrived this week for a visit with her brother, A. G. Wilton, Brock street.

Municipal matters have been getting a little airing so far this week. Among those who are being mentioned for the mayoralty for 1912 are Mayor W. N. Rogers, ex-Mayors James Donavan and Robert Sheppard, councillors G. W. Henne, V. J. Skinner, M. McFarland, and others.

The question of a referendum for a post office site is causing considerable discussion, there being two sites, each of which has numerous supporters. First, the Boyd block, corner of King and Stone street, the second, a site about two years ago, and since unoccupied, and second, the property on the corner of Stone and Pine street, directly opposite the old post office. The latter, however, has a commodious brick building on it which would have to be torn down.

The question is also coming up, when a new post office is considered, what will be done with the old one. This will quite likely also need another referendum. Many say to turn it into an armory, which is badly needed. Others say it would make a capital site for the free public library when town takes it over.

At an early hour last evening Grace Darling, wife of Arthur Webster, passed to rest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Darling, King street, after a lingering illness, extending over a year. Deceased was a native of Gananoque, well and widely known and beloved by everyone, connected with all manner of good work. The funeral takes place on Thursday, at Willow Bank cemetery.

HACKETT SECRETLY WEDS

Though Divorce Decree Forbade Him To Do So.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 19.—James K. Hackett, actor, was secretly married here, Saturday, but the news did not get out until after he had left, Sunday, for a week's engagement in St. Louis.

The bride is Beatrice Mary Beckley, who gave her address in the marriage license as London. Miss Beckley was formerly a leading woman for Mr. Hackett, having been in his company four years. It was while she was playing at Milwaukee, two years ago, that the first report came of the prospective divorce by Mary Manning, a report which was angrily denied at that time by Mr. Hackett, who said that jealousy of Miss Beckley's talent had started the report to make trouble for him. The divorce, however, was granted a short time later.

James K. Hackett was divorced by his first wife, Mary Manning, in New York, the final decree being signed April 20th, 1910. He did not offer a defence to the suit and in the decree he was forbidden to re-marry.

POPE BREAKS PRECEDENT.

Is Host to Consecration Guests and Eats With Them.

Rome, Dec. 20.—The pope performed the most fatiguing ceremony of consecrating Cardinal de Lai and Bishop de Serey, who were consecrated by the Bishop of Cracow. After the long function the pope gave refreshments to all those present presenting himself at the breakfast and occupying a table higher than that at which the other guests were seated. The sight was most interesting, according to etiquette, the pope does not partake of meals with anybody.

All noticed the strength and brightness of the pontiff, who, speaking of the new cardinals, said he wished they would remain in Rome altogether. He especially regretted the departure of the Americans, who, being further away, he can see but seldom. He added that he realized the amount of work awaiting them in the United States.

The pontiff is delighted that Cardinal de Lai is able to spend Christmas in Rome, not being until the beginning of January. The pope expects to see Cardinal O'Connell in a few weeks. Cardinal O'Connell does not leave until the middle of January.

The Cow and the Moon. Charles A. Selton's new merry musical extravaganza, "The Cow and the Moon," comes to the Grand for Christmas matinee and night, and Tuesday, matinee and night. Mr. Selton's new success is said to be more riotous in fun, richer in color, more unusual in scene, more vigorous in scenic embellishment, and more astounding in spectacular tricks and effects than in any of his previous efforts. In fact critics where it has been seen pronounce it one of the best entertainments that has been played in years. A large number of capable extravaganza players are promised.

Again the Axe. F. T. Hutchinson, postmaster at Essex, has received notice that his services are no longer required, and that R. S. Heald, Tory, had been appointed in his place. John A. Carver has been appointed postmaster at Rockport in the place of Mrs. Cornwell. The post office will be located in A. Ferguson's store.

ALARMING SITUATION

RAILWAYS CANNOT HANDLE WESTERN GRAIN CROP.

A Great Deal of Grain Unthreshed—Farmers Cannot Realize From Their Crops to Buy Fuel and Groceries.

The Manitoba Grain Growers' Association sends the following statement from its Winnipeg office: The inadequacy of transportation facilities furnished for the moving of the crop of the western provinces is creating a situation that is alarming and one in which the whole of the Canadian people are interested. The abnormally unfavorable conditions prevailing this year have left a great deal of grain not threshed. It is estimated that there are now in the fields in the western provinces, valued at $100,000,000, of grain lying in the fields with nothing to protect it but a little straw thrown over it. In addition to that there are millions of bushels of grain in granaries that have been threshed since the fall which have in it a mixture of snow and ice.

Much of this is wheat of good milling quality, and if it could be placed in terminal elevators before the winter weather sets in, the growers could be subjected to a loss of small loss. It, however, as seems probable now, large quantities of grain will not be handled before the winter weather comes, it will be a total loss.

All the elevators in the west are filled to their utmost capacity. In some of the newer districts farmers cannot realize sufficient out of their crop to buy necessary fuel and groceries.

Loan companies, business men and implement manufacturers are pressing for payment of their obligations. It is now currently reported that orders have gone forth prohibiting western banks from loaning any money to farmers after the new year.

The warehouse commissioner is giving orders for cars to be placed out rather than to some points so as to enable elevators to take in grain ailed by farmers from forty to sixty miles (not more than two loads or each farmer), so as to secure fuel and groceries for their families. The only outlet for the grain product for the western farmer is the C.P.R. to be shipped to take in grain ailed by farmers from forty to sixty miles (not more than two loads or each farmer), so as to secure fuel and groceries for their families.

What then is to be done with this large amount of grain that is on the western farms, out of condition, and will not stand the winter weather? This is a case where it seems absolutely necessary for the Dominion and provincial governments to take a hand. The Canadian railroads have demonstrated that they are not able to take care of the traffic. Cannot our authorities now step in and make special arrangements to take in grain ailed by farmers from forty to sixty miles (not more than two loads or each farmer), so as to secure fuel and groceries for their families.

On the colonel asking him if he was sorry he replied that he had come expressly to do what he had done. Then and there he was arraigned for striking a superior officer, and after a brief deliberation he was sentenced to death, whilst Mottais was given ten years' hard labor. When Beuzoboc—who had been taken back to prison and was condemned in his absence—was told of the verdict, he grew sallow pale and nearly swooned away.

The extraordinary severity of the sentence must serve as a terrible example of the strict notions of discipline in the French army.

A Smashing Orator.

Joseph Chamberlain was at one time given to "sawing the air" with his arms when alone, preparing one of his strenuous speeches. Once he issued an order that strangers were not to be shown his orchid house. "I will not have my orchids broken," he said to his gardener, pointing to a spoiled valuable specimen. "I suppose you didn't happen to see it done?"

"Yes, I did," replied the gardener. "What! You saw it done and said nothing?" exclaimed Mr. Chamberlain. "No, sir, I hardly dared," was the reply.

"I insist on knowing who it was," angrily said the statesman. "Well, sir, it was yourself, yesterday, while you was—speaking."

Knew His Weakness.

A benevolent clergyman, while walking in a colonial mining district, came upon an old man turning a windlass which hauled up ore from the shaft. It was a very hot day, and the old man had thrown aside his hat, and the sun was streaming down upon his bare head.

"If you expose your head to the sun in that way," said the good parson, "your brain will be injured."

But the old man only looked wearily at the speaker and shook his head. "I wouldn't be doing this all day long if I had any brains," he answered quietly.

A FLOATING PALACE.

King's Ship on India Voyage Has Every Luxury.

One realized within a few minutes of setting foot on board the Medina, the floating palace, in which their Majesties sailed for India, that no effort was spared to make the vessel as comfortable as a modern palace.

It was fortunate that the vessel was not nearly completed when the P. & O. Company agreed that she should become H.M.S. Medina for the purpose of the King's voyage to India. As a consequence, the necessary transformation of the vessel has been a comparatively simple matter. Certainly no great structural alterations were required.

The principal decks are the boat-deck, the hurricane deck, the spar-deck, and the main deck. It is the spar-deck which chiefly attracts the visitor, for here, in the fore part of the ship are the royal apartments. The King's suite of rooms are situated on the port side, and the Queen's on the starboard side. Each consists of a sitting-room, bedroom, dressing-room, and bath-room.

A blue Wilton carpet, of trellis-work design, was laid in each of the King's rooms. The sitting-room is furnished with a magnificent desk of inlaid mahogany (from the Victoria and Albert), a fairly large bookcase, and a number of easy chairs upholstered in blue morocco. On the writing desk there is a miniature keyboard, by means of which the King is able to ring for his private secretary, the admiral, equerry, valet, or attendant.

Leading out of this room is the King's bedroom. His Majesty will sleep in a white enameled swing bed, which can be made stationary at will. There are two wardrobes and a chest of drawers—all of inlaid mahogany. The furniture in the dressing-room adjoining is of a similar kind. The bath-room is most elaborately equipped.

A light green Wilton carpet, of similar design to that used in the King's apartments, was laid throughout the Queen's suite of rooms. The furniture in Her Majesty's boudoir is of inlaid satinwood—as, indeed, in all her rooms—tastefully upholstered with green and cream silk brocade.

In one corner of the room there is a handsome dressing table. The bedstead is silver-plated, and bears at the foot a representation of the crown. The wardrobe is faced with two large oval mirrors, and there are two chests of drawers. The dressing-room is equipped with a swing bed, similar in design to that of the King. Close to the royal apartments is the dining saloon, which extends the whole width of the deck. It is paneled in light oak—upon which are displayed the King's monogram and crown—while over the rich Wilton carpet of the room are scattered Persian rugs. Immediately overhead is the music room—a superb apartment. It has a great glass dome, beneath which are four painted panels representing Dawn, Night, Sea, and Sky.

Midships on the starboard side, are the King and Queen's rough-weather apartments. They are similar in arrangement to their other rooms in the fore part of the ship, but they occupy considerably less space. Ashore, on the hurricane deck, is the King's smoking room, carpeted in the same style as the dining saloon, and provided with comfortable recesses for card games.

It is stated that the King and Queen personally supervised all the details in connection with their own apartments in the ship, and the work was entrusted to Messrs. Waring and Gillow, Ltd., and there can be no doubt that it has been admirably carried out.

Two cows from Windsor were taken for the milk supply. In a small room on the hurricane deck is the ship's printer. He told me that he hoped to produce a newspaper during the voyage called the "Medina Times," which will contain the latest wireless messages. In all probability there will be several editions daily. So that while he is on the high seas the King will know what is happening in the Old Country.
