CASCARETS CURE A BILIOUS HEADACHE

Gently But Thoroughly Cleanse Your Liver, Stomach and Bowels and You Feel Great by Morning.

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation at your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile, not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleansing up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that every disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you and the entire family feeling good for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

FOR BURNS—ZAM-BUK.

Stops Pain at Once and Heals the Wounds.

This is the verdict of all who have tried Zam-Buk. The woman in the home knows best its value. A burn from the stove, from a flat iron, or a hot pan, is instantly soothed by Zam-Buk. When the little ones fall and cut or scratch themselves, Zam-Buk stops the pain and, incidentally, their crying. The best proof of this is the fact that children who have once had Zam-Buk applied come for it again.

For more serious burns, too, it is unequalled. John Johnston, of 734 South Marks street, Fort William, a moulder in Cope's foundry, says: "Some time ago I burned the top of my foot severely by dropping some molten iron from a ladle I was carrying. A large hole was burned through my shoe and into the top of my foot. I was taken home, and Zam-Buk was applied to the burn directly. It was surprising what relief this balm afforded. The burn was so deep and so serious that it required careful attention, but Zam-Buk prevented other complications arising, and as it was daily applied, soothed the pain and allayed the inflammation. In the course of two weeks the hole burned in my foot had been quite healed."

W. B. Gibson, of Belleville, writes: "We have tried Zam-Buk often on cuts and sores, and I think there is nothing that can equal it."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ring worm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

WOULDN'T SHAKE.

Inclined to Give Hand to Sir Gilbert Parker.

Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian novelist and member of the British parliament, met with a rebuff the other day at the Arizona Pioneer home at Prescott.

Among the inmates of the home presented to the novelist was James

O'Donnell, one of the earliest settlers of Arizona.

"Are you English?" O'Donnell asked.

"Yes," replied the visitor.

"Then I won't shake hands," said O'Donnell. "I am Irish."

"But I am half Irish," protested Sir Gilbert.

"I will never shake hands with you as long as there is a drop of English blood in your veins," roared the pioneer.

Sir Gilbert laughed good naturedly, saying he would have a good story for T. P. O'Connor at home, but Doran, superintendent of the home, reported the incident to Governor Sloan and the chief of staff at the army in Washington.

LOOKING FOR LEAKS.

The Work of Waste Water Detectives in the City of London.

An interesting article tells the story of the constant work of detecting waste in our water supply, in the Christmas number of The Windsor Magazine. The photograph showing every phrase of the work are especially ingenious in their illustration of the many parts of it which have to be carried out in the dead of night. In the course of the article the writer says: "There are many different bodies of detectives kept up by various private and semi-private institutions, from exclusive watchers of royal palaces to the searchers after smuggled saccharine, but none of these unofficial detectives can equal in usefulness the men employed by the Metropolitan Water Board to detect waste in the surrounding network of pipes, cocks, and taps through which the seven million souls who depend upon the board for the life-giving fluid draw their supply. The ordinary mortal has no idea of the value of water; he has never known when the tap would not give out a pint or a halfpint of the precious liquid, and thirst is unknown to him. If he had been, as some mortals are, dependent at times upon very restricted quantities, we should better appreciate the all-important problem of our water supply. 'People on land don't know what water is,' a seaman told me recently when traveling together in a train. 'Twelve days I did,' said the man of the sea, 'in an open lifeboat off the South American coast, with only a winegallon of water morning and evening.'"

"Everywhere the water—salt water, which clammed round your lips and soaked the few biscuits we had. Faith, it was awful!" he exclaimed, as he recalled his experience. That the people of London shall never know the meaning of real thirst is the anxious care of the officials of the board. Like New York, which is now faced with the construction of an entirely new water-supply system, costing millions upon millions of pounds, to tap a vast new watershed, over 90 miles from the town, London will, no doubt, be sooner or later faced with a similar gigantic expenditure; but in the meantime, on the principle that money saved is money made, money saved is water found. Numbers of people look upon the Water Board official who pays them an occasional visit to examine taps and fittings, as a kind of personal enemy; but if they only appreciated the true situation, they would recognize that he is a real friend, protecting them for a time from finding their share of the necessary capital to inaugurate new sources of supply. As a matter of fact, we are economical with water compared with American cities, and our cousins across the herring gull use an average of 100 gallons per head per day, while London keeps its drawings at under 52 gallons. This is, to a considerable extent, the work of the waste water detectives."

One Pie for Seventy Guests.

Seventy guests banqueted on a single pie at Gorleston, and there was plenty to spare when they had finished. The pie had a three-inch crust and weighed a hundredweight and a half. It was made in three sections or water-tight compartments and each held had a substantial ballad of crust. Its interior was packed with six rabbits, six kidneys, 25 pounds of beefsteak and potatoes, turnips, carrots and sprouts. The sea pie, as it is called, is boiled, not baked, and the builder, Skipper Harman, made the cooking process an eight-hour watch.

This three-decker provided a savory meal which more than satisfied the guests, and its wrecked and dismantled hull, provided ten gallons of excellent soup—London style.

Wrote of Scenery He Never Saw.

The most notable instance of a novel dealing with a country which the author had never seen was Shorthouse's "John Inglesant."

The second volume of that remarkable romance deals in the most detailed way with Italian manners and Italian scenery. Many of the descriptions—that of Umbria at night, for instance, at the scene in the pavilion in the forest—are charged with the very atmosphere of Italy; and Florence, the city of plagues, lives horribly before our eyes. Yet Joseph Henry Shorthouse had never been in Italy. Enthusiasm and the genius for assimilation evolved it all in a quiet house at Edgbaston—London Chronicle.

Mrs. Superstitious Parnell.

Mrs. Charlotte McCarthy, daughter of Justin McCarthy, told a curious story of Charles Stewart Parnell. "Once evening," said she, "Parnell was talking to me at the coffee stage of dinner, and I, gazing at him with rapture, was vaguely stirring mine and going to drink it when he said: 'You must not drink that. You have stirred it the wrong way, and it would be unlucky. Get another cup.' What struck me as strange in this was not his being superstitious—every one who knew him at all knew that—but his extraordinary power of observation."

Anyway, a ban drum draws a lot of bad music.

THINK OF IT

Stop and think a moment about that cough that bothers you so much.

You must have been run-down when you got it, for if you had been perfectly strong, your system would have thrown it off in two or three days.

Take our advice about this—what you really need is to build up your strength and enrich your blood; then the cough will disappear. We know it.

Carl Schultz, of Coney Island, N.Y., says: "I only took two bottles of your delicious cod liver and iron preparation. Vinyl, to put me on my feet again, when I was all run down with a severe cough and cold which had lasted two months. I am recommending it to all my friends."

Vinyl, the greatest strength creator and body builder we have ever seen, and besides its value in healing up weak sore lungs, it gives new strength and vitality to all weak, pale, run-down people. We guarantee Vinyl to do this and give back your money if you are not satisfied. Mr. Wood's drug store, Kingston, Ont.

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."

A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill.

Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without gripping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming.

If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return the price. Ask him.
