TWO MEN DIE

drop, 200 feet, let him into the chill water up to his waist. Before he was clear of it he was frightfully battered by three successive floes of jutting ice.

Not content with the efforts of the men above to draw him up he tried to assist himself hand over hand. The time was 1.10 o'clock and the hour or more that the boy had been on the ice and the effects of the icy ducking sapped his strength. He stopped trying to pull himself and hung limp on the rope, which spun him around like a top. Kelly and his men pulled steadily. Ten feet, twenty, twenty-five, thirty feet up, he came. The great crowd on the bridges cheered those that were not weeping. Grimaldi the boy hung on, trying always to get his leg wound about the rope. Then his hands began to slip. He sought to get hold of the rope with his teeth, but could not. Finally just as he was about sixty feet clear of the water his head fell back. He was utterly exhausted. He lost his grip and plunged far down into the stream. When he came up his face turned toward the great waves, and he feebly moved his arms in the breast stroke. But the mighty rush of water was too much for him. He was caught like a cork and was sent racing on to the midst of the seething waters. For perhaps half a minute he was in view, then he was seen no more; he was swallowed up in the spume.

Heacock's failure was witnessed by the man on the other floe. The man apparently dared not look. The man appeared calm as he in turn prepared to make a play against death. He was caught by a down river current. The floe moved into the course Heacock had gone.

As the couple swung under the cantilever bridge the man grasped the rope and tried to put it about the woman's waist. The force of the current was too much for the rope. It parted and the man waved the torn and to ward the crowd.

AS TO WHAT THURSDAY WILL BRING FORTH.

Mutterings of the Coming Conflict When Winston Churchill Goes to Belfast to Speak in Favor of Home Rule.

London, Eng., Feb. 5.—This week opens in this land of the British empire with mingled feelings of gratitude and apprehension. There is sincere thankfulness at the safe arrival home of their majesties after several weeks' absence in the veritable hotbed of sedition against the British crown in the Indian empire. As to what may happen this very week in that other very limb of the imperial dominions, Ireland, is the question uppermost in the minds of all serious-minded Britons.

What will Thursday next bring forth? That is the play set for Winston Churchill's much-advertised pronouncement in ultra-unionist Belfast on home rule for Ireland.

Last week a counter demonstration by the Presbyterians against Churchill's expected announcement was but a preliminary peace-meeting, but even there, there were mutterings of the coming conflict which could not be overlooked, and already five thousand troops are on their way to Belfast to keep order next Thursday.

Thinking men are to-day asking is Ulster in earnest or only bluffing? It is pointed out that in the north of Ireland, religion is a tragedy, and Ulster protestants are determined to resist home rule.

TRAGEDY ON A TRAIN.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—An unknown man to-day became insane on an eastbound express near Swift Current, says a special from Moose Jaw, Sask., and terrified the passengers by firing repeatedly with a revolver. He killed John G. Klundt, of Garrison, N.D., a wealthy land speculator, who was returning home from Medicine Hat with his brother, Guslen A. Klundt. The maniac then suicided. Both bodies were removed from the train at this point. The murderer had a ticket for Campbellton, New Brunswick.

SACRIFICE MANITOBA.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—There seems no doubt but that the government has decided to sacrifice Manitoba for Ontario in its boundary legislation. The way matters are now shaping, a settlement will be reported within a few days which will give Ontario a Hudson Bay port which she has been demanding, while Manitoba will have to be content with additional interior acreage.

They pointed out that October 12th of this year, will mark the anniversary of a hundred years of peace between Canada and the United States, and asked that the Dominion government set apart a substantial sum to erect a memorial, if possible, in the province of Ontario. On it they want inscribed the names of victorious men, and those of such heroes as Brock, Tecumseh, Macdonell and Laura Secord.

THE BRUTAL DEED OF A CONVICT

Stabbed a Fellow Prisoner Four Times With a Knife in the Penitentiary on Saturday.

Lloyd Nelsor, a young prisoner in the penitentiary, lies in the prison hospital, suffering from four wounds which he received in a fight on Saturday afternoon with another prisoner named Cullens. No one saw the conflict, and can only guess at the details. The two prisoners were on duty in the changing-room, when the affair occurred, about three o'clock. They evidently had some disagreement. It is supposed that they slipped behind a big pile of clothing when the others were not looking, and had a quiet little fight. Cullens evidently did not bother about using his fists, but pulled out a knife he had secured, and proceeded to carve Nelsor in a very brutal fashion. He gashed his opponent in the forehead, the neck, the jaw and the stomach, and left him lying on the floor. They he slipped back to his bench unobserved.

The officer in charge of the department found Nelsor some time afterwards, being attracted by groans from behind the clothing pile. Nelsor was bleeding from four wounds, and was immediately removed to the hospital. He implicated Cullens, a young prisoner sentenced at Niagara Falls, as his assailant, and the latter was in the dungeon to await an investigation on Monday afternoon. Where Cullens got the knife is not known, but it is supposed to have been one made in the blacksmith shop.

After Cullens had finished his work of carving Nelsor, he broke the knife into four pieces, and threw them away. The pieces were afterwards found. The assailant is also known under the names of Hindbert and Collins. The penitentiary physician reports that the injured prisoner will recover.
