An Attempted
 Abduction.

"I'll hunt him down, if I have to put bloodhounds on his trail!"
 "Now, papa!" soothed the daughter.
 "The scoundrel shall not escape!" roared the major as he paced the room. "I'll have the police seize him within an hour—within a quarter of an hour!"
 "But, papa!"
 "But, papa!"
 Marjorie had been option to do some shopping, the major had been talking of leaving an auto she seized the opportunity to close the deal that day.
 If the event came off the machine would be at the depot to meet her, as she came home on the seven o'clock train.
 She had only stepped off when a man touched her arm and raised his cap and said:
 "This way to the auto, please." So her father had closed the deal, and was probably sitting in the auto outside waiting her appearance! But he wasn't. The machine was tenant-less, but the man gave her a hand to reach the tonneau, and she seized herself it whizzed away. It didn't take the right direction, but she didn't notice this fact for a minute.
 When she did she called out: "You are going wrong? You must turn around!"
 "I'll get you there, all right," was the reply.
 Then Miss Marjorie opened the door and leaped straight out, to lose her balance as her feet touched the ground—and fall and roll over and over in the mud. At the same time she screamed. It was a faint, little scream, but a long-drawn scream that was heard a quarter of a mile away and started men running for the scene.
 "Here—what's the matter?" demanded the driver of the auto as he came to a sudden stop.
 "Help! Help!"
 Speed was put on and the auto disappeared.
 "By George, Miss Graves!" exclaimed a first comer, who at least knew the girl by sight, "but this is about the boldest thing I ever heard of around here!"
 "Was—was he trying to carry me off?" was gasped.
 "Sure thing? Yes, ma'am, it was a bold attempt at abduction, and the wonder is that he didn't have a confederate to choke you into silence and helplessness. By George, but this village is getting to be worse than New York city."
 The scoundrel had been noticed at the depot by men who thought he acted suspiciously. No one had taken the number of the auto, and it was considered useless to follow.
 The major hadn't closed the deal for the auto, and he wasn't at the depot—either with or without it. Of course, Miss Marjorie had a story to tell when she got home, and it was the attempted crime that roused the father's ire. Was this the twentieth century? Was the power force of the village, consisting of two men, being paid enormous salaries to catch criminals red-handed or to play checkers and sleep? The major asked a great many other questions that neither his wife or daughter could answer, and wound up with the threat to have the state militia called out.
 "Meanwhile something had happened at a major house two miles away.
 Ruth Forest was coming down that evening for a stay of two weeks with her old school chum, Mrs. Thurston, a bride of two years. Harry Thurston, brother of the husband, had already been there a week. It was his turn to take the auto and meet Miss Ruth, as she would surely be looking for somebody to meet her, and there could be no mistake.
 With that spirit of carelessness so prevalent with young men, he selected a tall, willowy girl, instead of a short, stout one, and here her away.
 He had intended to introduce himself and do some talking after getting clear of the depot, and when he lost his passenger in the way he did he was too astonished and rattled to do the right thing. There came an instant suspicion that he had somehow jacked up the wrong young lady, and in his frustration he put on speed and disappeared.
 Arriving home his explanation was that Miss Ruth was not among the passengers that got off. This passed all right for half an hour, and then the missing guest showed up to dis-prove it. Harry then owned up, and after a gasp of astonishment, his sister said:
 "A rather tall, slim girl, eh?"
 "Yes."
 "And she knew you were headed wrong?"
 "Yes."
 "Then it must be some one living in or near the village. She didn't command you to stop? She didn't demand to know where you were taking her?"
 "Not a command nor a demand," answered Harry. "She just opened the door and jumped, and as she jumped she screamed—Lord, how she screamed!"
 "Well, young man, I think you have got yourself in trouble. I believe the girl you tried to abduct was Marjorie Graves, only daughter of Major Graves, one of the most peppery men in four counties."
 "But it was a simple mistake."
 "No, but the trouble will be to make him believe it. And the terrible part of the whole thing is that I wanted you and that particular girl to fall in love with each other."
 "Can't we do it just the same?"
 "Why, Major Graves won't let you come within ten rods of his house!
 And if you were to meet the young lady elsewhere what could you say?" "I guess you'll have to match me up with someone else. She ought to have had a placard hung about her neck stating who she was. All her fault."
 The major's deal for the auto went through three days later, but he did not let the excitement of it turn him from the trail of the would-be abductor. He made many moves, but he got no clues. Ten days later he and Miss Marjorie were riding out. The major had taken three lessons in run-

"Little Darling" "Little Daisy" Hosiery for Infants and Children

"I see you've been buying new stockings for baby."
 "Yes, dear; aren't they dainty? I am quite proud of them."
 "They are certainly the prettiest I've seen; but—weren't they a little expensive?"
 "No, indeed; I paid no more for these than the last ones I bought. And just feel how nice and silky they are; they're made of that expensive Australian Lambs' Wool. See the name stamped on the foot?"
 "LITTLE DARLING"—Yes, we must remember the name."
 "I bought some for Maggie and Charles, just the same, except they didn't have the aliken feet. I got—they were reinforced to resist the wear. The name on theirs is 'LITTLE DAISY.'" Both brands are carried by all dealers, in the correct colors for babies and children—Sky Blue, Ocean, Tan, Pink, Cardinal, and Black. They cost no more than hosiery of inferior quality.
 "LITTLE DARLING" and "LITTLE DAISY" Hosiery will not irritate the most delicate skin—ordinary stockings are sometimes accountable for baby's fretfulness. The dye used is absolutely fast and stainless; our machinery the most modern, and our rigid system of inspection makes it quite impossible for imperfect hosiery to leave the mill.
 Look for the name, "LITTLE DARLING" or "LITTLE DAISY," stamped on the foot, next time you buy—imitations under very similar names are being offered.

Our Strongest Muscles.
 The strongest muscle in the human body is the gluteus maximus. Hardly a movement of the lower extremities can be made without bringing it into play, but its chief duty is to balance the pelvis on the head of the thigh bone. It assists in carrying the leg forward and outward in walking, and without its aid any movement of the body from the hips would be impossible.
 As it is the strongest, so is it also the largest muscle we possess. In the full grown man it can exert a force of 110 pounds to the square inch of its section, the thickest part.
 Another strong muscle, which is situated in the calf of the leg, is capable of sustaining seven times the weight of the body. The great tendon which is inserted in the heel bone and which is called tendon achilles, is also of singular strength. When removed from the body it has sustained a weight of 200 pounds, yet sometimes by the sudden action of the muscles of the calf to which it belongs, it has been snapped across.

Queer Beehives.
 In the prettily-situated mountain village of Hoedel, in Silesia, there are a number of curious beehives, in the shape of life size figures carved in wood and painted in colors.
 The figures were carved over a century ago by monks of the Naumburg monastery, who were at that time in possession of a large farm in the district. There are twenty of these strange beehives, and they represent different characters, ranging from Moses to a military officer, a country girl, and a night watchman with a spear. The figures are hollow with the exception of the heads, which are the openings for the bees being in front, in the middle of the figures.—

Girl Gives Bulldog Party.
 Marjorie Hulick, a student at the college for women at Oxford, is the possessor of a fine bulldog named "Chubby" Chubb.
 The mistress wanted the handsome chubb introduced into society, so she gave a bulldog party at the "The Dog house" for 150. The building, mansion of the male trustees of the college were invited, and one or two not so prominent.
 The dogs were being a gala time with edibles, daintily fixed by the girls when Chubby got angry because he could not get enough. He started to clean up the brass, and had to be locked in the cellar.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
