Where Body of Bernard McColl Was J. McColl, a brother of Bernard Me-Coll, whose body was found at New burgh, arrived in the city from Rochester, N.Y., Saturday, on his way home. He was home on a visit at the same time as his brother, and when he was found missing, assisted in the search. When informed of the fact that the body had been found on the Finkle farm, he expressed great surprise, sta-ting that he had searched this part. He says his brother was bordering on a nervous breakdown, and was home for a rest. He was a chemist, and had a bright career ahead of him. He was engaged on some special preparations of his own, which promised to turn out excellent. He studied hard, all of his spare time being devoted to his studies.

Cottage Burned Down.

Fairmount cottage, near Sunbury, owned by Mrs. Joseph Gordon, was burned to the ground, on Friday afternoon: The barn and outhouses also caught fire, and were completely destroyed. The fire originated, it is thought, through a defective chimney. Neighbors did all they could to save the buildings, but it was useless. Some of the furniture was rescued.
