THE DAY OF HANDY MEN.
The Toronto News, commenting on the tendencies of education, remarks: "We need more manual training and more technical education in our schools. In the second place, employers should facilitate the attendance of their younger employees at technical schools, where they could learn a trade. It is in the interest of the state as well as the boy that this question should be faced and effectively dealt with."
It is to be regretted that the employers are not generally concerned as much as they might be about the technical success of their employees. Talk of giving them trades. The skilled workman is becoming scarce. In later days he represents the handy man who, without much training, and in the exercise of his genius, can make anything. He would make it better, perhaps, if in his youth he had been doing his work under the

PLANS OF THE CLUB.
Col. Smith, in his address before the Canadian Club to-day, told of some experiences which carried a moral with them. And these addresses are not answering the purpose for which they were designed if they do not arouse a great public interest and get the people thinking. Here, at a noon-hour luncheon, business men congregate. They have an attractive menu laid before them, they discuss its features, and then, at ease, hear some one talk out of a full heart and in a helpful way.
Mr. Cahlan's speech was a vision of the future into which he looked, and following which he sketches the fortunes of Canada. Col. Smith's speech was reminiscent, and one is the better usually of a halt, a session of meditation, a contemplation of certain mile stones that have been passed, and a consideration of the lessons they suggest.
There will be a lull in the work of the Canadian Club during the summer months. When the fall campaign is opened let us hope some one will be found who will deal with civic events and the necessity of making this a city beautiful. One reads in the papers of the millions that have been put into the savings bank, to earn there the paltry interest of three per cent. Money is worth more than that, and it is for some one who knows to tell the people how a higher rate may be earned.

The Canadian Club has devoted itself so far to the cultivation of Canadian ideals. Can it not lead in the crusade for civic improvements? The hundreds of thousands of dollars which are on special deposit can be turned to better account. At least some of it may be invested in modern cottages—whole rows of them—with lawns in front and gardens behind, not large, and not expensive. The real workingmen's home is not often seen. In England, and some places in Canada, it is very much in evidence, and it is very much wanted in Kingston.
The Canadian Club has awakened a genuine interest in many people. And this interest will spread when it becomes apparent that the club is a popular medium through which men of advanced thought give expression to their views. The aim of the club is not to theorize. Its motives are Canadian, it is true, and its membership is confined to Canadians and Britishers, but its plans are cosmopolitan, and it can, and should, be the means of creating an active local as well as loyal sentiment in the community.

MORMONISM IN CANADA.
The resignation of Mr. Woolf, as a member of the Alberta legislature, recalls the fact that he is a Mormon and represents the Mormons in Canada's North-West. The sect does not change very much on account of its location. In the United States it is polygamous, for many years openly and flagrantly so, because its people found in the Smith or Mormon Bible a justification of plural marriage.
In Canada polygamy has not been practiced. Not that the doctrine has disappeared from its creed, but that under the laws of Canada it is not tolerable, and the Mormons, in getting a foothold in a new country, saw the wisdom of conforming to the will of the majority. At the same time the desire for many wives seems to have passed from the Mormons, or they held it in check, and have in all other respects been devoted in their faith.
The resignation of Mr. Woolf suggests that the sect is chafing under restraint. This man, a member of the local house, has been absent from the country a good deal. He has been operating in Nevada and guiding the destinies of the Mormons. It may be that he and his friends contemplate a removal from Canada, though one can see the sacrifices they would make in so doing. In Carleton Place, Alberta, they have been strongly entrenched. They possess some of the finest land, and have been improving it.

Giving the Mormons their due it must be said that they have been thrifty, industrious, successful, clanlike. They have represented the best in agricultural life, and their labour has been productive of the highest results. But—they have been Mormons, with a passion for conversion, for conquest, and they have surpassed any church in their accomplishments.
Critics, without sympathy for them, have visited the Mormon settlements of Canada and praised them. In frugality, industry, hospitality, friendliness and service, they have excelled. All the while they have seemed to be under check, and the Canadian people through trusting them, have feared an outbreak of polygamy.
Town lots are in great demand, especially these that are on the map somewhere.
Lots of money for land speculation in the west. Some of it would be better spent in Kingston and in land one can see or find.
Rents going up? Yes, and for houses the people do not want. Small houses, well-built and modern, are in demand. Why are they not supplied?
The liberal leader favours the abolition of the bar from the club as well as the tavern. The time may come when men can sit for an hour together and enjoy themselves without the use of liquor, and the average club does not exist on account of its bar.
Lloyd-George caught napping? Perhaps. His acceptance of a resolution re the medical profession and his insurance bill, may have meant

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

Always on Top.
Toronto World.
There is really no necessity for propping the house. It might instead adjourn from time to time and thus avoid the duplication of labor caused by the fact that many measures must be introduced as new bills at every session without regard to what progress they have made in the same house the previous session a few months before.
Merit the Only Desire.
Toronto News.
The idea of politicians and members of parliament messing about with the civil service is objectionable, and grows more so every day. The country is sick of office peddling and one-house espionage of patronage committees and members' recommendations. In the past everything about a civil servant has been considered but merit. It is time to make merit the sole desideratum.
Butting In Unwisely.
Toronto Star.
Sir John Macdonald met with one of his few defeats when he undertook to interfere in the local affairs of Ontario. The last conservative government at Ottawa grieved destruction by interfering in the local affairs of Manitoba. The present Dominion government has a good many important problems to be solved, a good many tasks to be done. The silly ambition to play the dictator in the politics of Quebec and Saskatchewan ought to be discouraged.

More About Church Union.
Vancouver Sun.
That the Methodist church is emphatically in favor of a union of the three denominations which are now seeking to secure a basis of consolidation is abundantly demonstrated by figures in the latest compilation made. A Toronto despatch containing these show almost ninety per cent. of the membership and adherents of the church in favor of the movement.
There does not appear any reason why the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches should not unite. There is no essential difference in the doctrines which they profess and their forms of worship are daily becoming more similar. The Presbyterian creed is no longer that of Calvin. Not predestination, but free will, is now the basic belief of its membership as it is of the other two.

Doesn't Want Canada.
Syracuse Post-Standard.
The United States is not going to annex Canada, for two reasons: We don't want it and Canada doesn't want it. As to commercial relations, we shall make them just as close and intimate and profitable as we are able, for the selfish and sordid reason that there is money in Canadian trade. Whether Canada wants close trade relations made closer is for Canada to say. If British statesmen and newspapers receive the press staff of the Canadian railways they will note that more than a million Americans have emigrated to the Canadian North-West in the last decade. They are not so much concerned about imperial policy as they are about getting a market for their products. They would as soon be adjacent to Chicago as Montreal. Better look out lest Americans in Canada show a reasonable preference for the nearer market.

British Medical Council Opens Door of Opportunity for Ambitious But Poor Men.
London, May 7.—England's poor boys have just had a new opening made for such of them as have a taste for medicine.
Hitherto the General Medical Council have jealously guarded the road to medical honors, which could only be obtained by those who have passed through approved colleges. This has presented insuperable barriers to poor aspirants who lacked financial backing.
Now, however, an agreement has been reached by which the General Medical Council will accept students who have graduated in the London county council's science schools. When these schools have been approved as to their staff and equipment, training there will be considered part of the four years and nine months necessary to pass the licensing body for the medical profession.
This new agreement is an immense step forward for scores of ambitious young medical men from the poorer quarters of London. The more liberal members of the medical profession welcome the change as bringing a fresh and vigorous element into it.

Little Girl's Bile Killed Doctor.
Budapest, May 7.—Dr. Baumgarten, a distinguished throat specialist, of Budapest, was bitten in the hand a few days ago by a little girl on whom he was operating. She was suffering from diphtheria and the trifling wound made by her teeth became infected. Blood poisoning set in and in spite of prompt amputation of the finger affected death ensued, yesterday.
To Fight White Slavers.
Washington, May 7.—Attorney-General Wickham, has appointed Stanley W. Finch, chief of the bureau of investigation, of the department of justice, a special commissioner to conduct a vigorous campaign in ever state in the union for the extermination of the white slave traffic. About six hundred special officers will be employed.

PARSON CONVERTS BULLY.
Missouri Minister's Christianity is of Strenuous Type.
Fayette, Mo., May 6.—Rev. G. M. Walker, a Christian preacher at several country churches, in Howard county, has walked 18,000 miles since he began his quest for converts in the county, sixteen years ago.
Mr. Walker's strenuous ideas of living amaze the farmers of the community, one of whom recently saw him take off his shoes, roll up his trousers and wade a creek which was full of floating ice. The minister was on a twenty-five mile trip to fill an engagement where the offering was $3.66.
Mr. Walker's Christianity is muscular as well as spiritual, and he admits he made one conversion by giving a bully a good trouncing. He was born and reared in an episcopalian community in England.
OFFICER HEIR TO FORTUNE.
Lieut. Molloy Gets Nearly $73,000 From Maiden Aunt.
Oswego, N.Y., May 6.—Lieut. Marvin E. Molloy, adjutant at Fort Ontario, has been granted a ten days' leave of absence and left for his old home in Indiana to be present at the partitioning of an estate which is valued at $75,000, and from which the lieutenant will receive $72,823.19 as his share. The legacy comes to him from the death of a maiden aunt, whom the lieutenant had not seen in years. He will not return from the army.

DEATH STRANGELY FOILED.
Frightened by Reptile, Team Refuses to Go.
Springfield, Mo., May 6.—A striped garter snake about two feet long saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Highfield, who live about twenty miles north-east of Springfield, and their six-months-old baby.
Mr. and Mrs. Highfield were driving home after a visit to Springfield. They reached a bridge over the Pomme de Terre river near Fair Grove, about four o'clock. As they were driving up the inclined approach to cross the river, swollen by the rains to a rushing torrent, a garter snake, coming out from the bushes at the side of the highway, ran across the road in front of the team.
The horses saw the snake. Rearing up, they began backing. The waggon went into a ditch, throwing Mrs. Highfield and her child out, just as one of the abutments of the bridge with a loud crash went down under the rush of water in the stream.
Sentenced at Berlin.
Berlin, May 6.—The trial begun on March 26th, of the men accused of being responsible for the ninety deaths from wood alcohol which occurred at Christmas among the inmates of the Municipal Night Shelter for the Homeless, has ended.
A druggist named Scharmach, who secured and prepared the deadly spirit, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment. Two salesmen named Zastrow and Meyer, were each given two months in jail.
It requires brains to be humorous.
