WE LIKE THEIR WORK

The Northern Echo (published at Darlington), and the Sheffield Independent, have issued large Canadian editions, illustrated. Here is the evidence of a profound and growing interest in Canadian affairs, and it is the result of a visit from English journalists to this country, and a study of its development.

ment has been doing real missionary work. It has been inviting British farmers who have done well in our North-West to go "home" and tell people there what they have seen and accomplished. Then the boom has set in, and it has invited British journalists to describe a country whose vastness and richness are so great, that the people of Great Britain must be now fully alive to the heritage they possess in this overseas dominion.

HIS WORKS DO FOLLOW HIM.

Ten years ago to-day, Dr. Grant passed away, after an illness which had laid him aside for some months. The anniversary calls to mind one of Canada's noblest men whose work in connection with Queen's University can never be forgotten.

He was a man of singular devotion. There was nothing half-hearted about him. Every cause he espoused had his most cordial support. He laboured at high pressure too long. When the college was in session, and when it was not, he was in evidence in its behalf, and the institution is very much to-day what he made it.

It was a small institution, represented by one small building, when he accepted the principalship, and he had seemingly settled in the city, and accepted a great trust. Then he began his planning. Some people content themselves with building castles in the air, imposing edifices which temporarily fill the vision. But he built enduring monuments and nothing could be more imposing than the massive edifices that cover the campus and reflect his spirit and energy.

There is to-day—as there must be for many a long year—an inspiration in Dr. Grant's life. He did not serve and sacrifice in vain. He was called to his eternal rest all too soon, but he left behind him a splendid example, and it can not disappear while those who knew him and served with or under him remain. The cherry wood, the warm hand shake, the suggestive thought, the heroic command, are as real and persuasive to-day as when Dr. Grant came to the city.

How he became the central figure of the faculty, the senate, the trustee board of Queen's University, needs no elaboration. As the college exercised great care in his selection, so he, as a great judge of men, gathered about him the staff that made the name of Queen's College famous. He was a dominating power in the community, in the province, in the Dominion. He was versatile in his qualifications and versatile in his accomplishments. He was willing to serve anywhere and in any capacity. It was sufficient that he was never idle, that he was ready to put his hand to anything for the good of the people. Queen's, however, was his first choice, and he was sacrificing to it to the very last.

ALARMING INFANT MORTALITY.

"Whom having not seen we love," for her work's sake. Once more the Whig has glanced through the report of Dr. Helen MacMurchy to the provincial secretary and with regard to infant mortality in this province. It is regrettably illuminating in that it points again to the many deaths that are occurring among children because the mothers fail in the nursing of them.

of infection falls upon the medical health officer, and that the Ontario government forbid the separation of the infant from its mother until it has attained the age of nine months. The maternity boarding house is particularly condemned, and with good reason.

First one notices the defects in the registration of vital statistics. The graduate of Toronto university, a Fellow of the Political Science department, Mr. Mills, made an examination of the records of certain churches with records of the province and found that they did not agree. The churches were more correct than the departments, which suggested that the law should be amended and enforced. A few examples, in the prosecution of parents and physicians, and a few fines, would improve the people with the earnestness of the government upon this most important subject. At present only twenty-five per cent of the births and deaths are registered.

"How to Bring Up a Baby" is a chapter of exceptional interest, and so, indeed, are the experiences which are recorded, and reflecting upon the unfortunate conditions which prevail in too many homes. Here is a mass of information which is too valuable to be embodied only in the blue book, the circulation of which is limited. This information should be reprinted in pamphlet form for distribution. Every physician in the land should be made the medium through whom the booklet may be placed in the hands of every mother, and with the admonition to read it.

Dr. MacMurchy quotes an alarming statement which was made in the house of commons, by Dr. Black, M.P., and to the effect that thirty-two per cent of the babies born in one city in 1908 died. Many of these deaths occurred in institutions, and some of them were not reported. It is not remarkable that the responsibility

Incidentally the home's problem receives serious consideration. Miss MacMurchy has studied it to advantage. She shows by statistics how infant mortality is increased through the unsanitary conditions into which some poor children are born, and her bald statement of facts constitutes a direct and pathetic appeal for better things. The recommendations are for correct statistics, for the service of a visiting nurse when possible, and for a financial recognition by the government to the municipalities and the institutions in which the care of infants is made a speciality.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The campaigner in Quebec must be able to use French as well as English freely. And in some places the voters who cannot discourse freely in the Gaelic might as well hold his tongue.

department are out on strike. They want higher wages, and may want in connection with its utilities department, because it pays the current union rates.

The actual loss incurred in England through the miners' strike has been figured at $122,636,590, to say nothing of the increased cost of living. This is the first touch of what syndicalism really means.

Manual training is being changed about in Kingston at the instance of the government inspector. It is to be hoped he will be satisfied when the change has been made at considerable expense.

When there is so much commotion among the politicians in Kingston it may be pertinent to enquire whether the liberal party has gone out of business. Elsewhere it is active, but in Kingston it has not been heard of since the last election.

The Guelph fire department has been changed by the demand for a resignation of all its members. And this is the result of an inquiry which was conducted behind closed doors. Trying men in their absence and without a defence is not British. There is something amiss with Guelph's administration.

In Toronto it is expected that the bakers will deliver their bread nicely rolled in paper. The bakers would not mind the order so much if they had not to comply with the demand of the board of health. In other words they would prefer to make this a matter of style than of health.

The Hamilton Spectator says no one could even lay a charge against the Laurier government of giving contracts (not patronage, note the word), to conservatives. Ah, yes it has, but probably on no better ground than charges are now being laid against the Borden government.

The unionist attack on Ambassador Bryce signally failed. It was shown by the imperial government that Mr. Bryce acted his part well, that he did not suggest or support reciprocity, that he was not asked and did not offer advice. The attack was in bad form and recoiled upon those who made it.

Under the new option law it is not possible so get a bottle of whiskey on Sunday in Scotland, but on the word of Lord Tullibardine it is quite possible "to get a teapotful." There is less drinking in public and more drinking at home. Which suggests that the abolition of the bar does not insure abstinence.

The senate of the United States has passed the workmen's compensation bill, and practically as it was drafted by the Employers' Liability Commission. The Americans have not dawdled over this thing for years. The commission meant business, and kept at it and finished it. Ontario's commissioner should be relieved of all other work until he finishes his report.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

He is a Sport. Toronto Telegram. Naturally Hon. Clifford Sifton's horses took many of the jumping prizes, their owner being considerable of a jumper himself.

Some Generous Gifts. Hamilton Times. Miss Shields' legacy of $95,000 to the Emergency building of the Toronto hospital was entered for probate, yesterday. Under the will of the late Jane Shields, sister of this lady, a total bequest from the sisters of $170,000 is made.

Will Continue Such. Toronto Mail. Why the practice of arming the guards in Kingston penitentiary should have been discontinued is a mystery to the outsider, but the authorities may have reasoned that if the guards were without weapons in the first place, the escaping convicts could not take revolvers from them.

Losses by Fires. Ottawa Journal. Canada lost one hundred and fifteen millions by fires last year. According to the head of the insurance bureau of the Manufacturers' Association, seventy-five per cent is preventable. This represents an annual preventable loss of $2 per head per annum for every Canadian, and is probably just about the greatest waste of wealth that the country has.

Great Saving in Sailing. Vancouver Sun. The opening of the Panama canal will reduce the ocean voyage from Britain to Vancouver about 6,200 miles, and from Montreal to Sydney, Australia, 2,700 miles. Many of the trade routes of the world will be changed on account of the recognition by the use of the canal. Few and far between will be the vessels that will "round the Horn," a decade hence.

Railroads are Fined. Chicago, May 10.—Fined guilty for having illegally favored certain burlesque companies, three railroads, all of them controlled by the New York Central lines, were fined $40,000 by Judge Carpenter, in the United States district court. The roads are the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, the Big Four and the Michigan Central. The Big Four was fined $20,000 for two offences, while the other roads were fined $10,000 each for single offences.

Campbell Bros'. For the largest stock, the noblest styles and best values in men's hats.

St. Louis to Fight Mosquitoes. St. Louis, May 10.—The city's annual appropriation bill for the fiscal year, an increase of $700,000 over last year, for a municipal campaign against mosquitoes and for a total appropriation of $10,335,000 for the fiscal year.
