BANKS USING FINGER PRINTS.

Added Protection in Matter of Identifying Depositors.

New York, May 11.—The finger print system for the identification and the protection of depositors is being rapidly adopted by New York banks. Secretary Arthur Ekirsch, of the Northside Bank, said to-day: "It is not the Bertillon system used by the police, but was devised by an Englishman who was employed by the British government at Singapore. We take the imprint of the tips of the index, middle and third fingers of the right hand. We provide blanks for our depositors upon which they write their signatures and leave their finger prints. We have yet to come across a depositor who objects to this."

The Facts in Brief.

Hamilton Herald. "For fifteen years," says the London Free Press, in an attempt to justify the spoils system, "the liberal government of Canada gave no quarter to a conservative." Every conservative office servant who was retained in civil throughout the liberal regime is a reprobation of that statement. And there are hundreds of them.

Archibald Campbell, of Lanark, died on Monday, aged sixty-three years.

It is Criminal to Neglect the Skin and Hair

THINK of the suffering tentailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfiguration, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 38, Boston, U.S.A., will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on skin and scalp treatments.

A STORY OF JUDGE MABEE.

His Kindly Treatment to a Poor Old Lady.

Toronto News. While the railway commission was established some years ago it was Judge Mabee who revolutionized its procedure and gradually extended its various services until the staff and the work it is carrying out will compare with that of any similar body anywhere. Of late years particular attention has been devoted to the promotion of safety for the travelling methods and many of the precautionary methods and devices now employed saw their inception in the fertile mind of Judge Mabee. In private life he was a lovable man. No barrier of haughty reserve ever surrounded him. At all times he was approachable. The poorest applicant in litigation got the same courtesy from him as the magnate of the private car.

In that connection a little incident is recalled at the commission a year or so ago. A case from Toronto was proceeding and had reference to the big question of terminals. The argument in which some of Canada's most eminent counsel were engaged, was in progress when a little old woman came in shyly. It was the first time in Ottawa at least, that one had been in the commission court room. Her little property was affected by the application being heard and she entered bashfully and nervously:

"Good morning, Mrs. —," exclaimed the judge, motioning counsel to stop. "How are you this morning? Take a seat and make yourself at home."

The old lady quickly regained her composure and later on appeared as counsel for herself.

She got as much attention and consideration as the eminent counsel whose lolly remarks were interrupted by her entry.

There were scores of little incidents like that at the commission every day.

JEKYLL AND HYDE.

Kimmell Thinks He Has Led Double Life.

Chicago, May 10.—The man who says he is George A. Kimmell, whose skull recently was operated on by Chicago surgeons, last night, issued a statement in which he declared he had lived a Jekyll and Hyde life.

"If you remember the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde you can understand my plight," he said. "After fourteen years of darkness I have regained my lost personality and my better nature has asserted itself. I now remember every detail of an assault which changed my life. I know the names of my assailants. Their attack had been carefully planned. I was slugged on Sixteenth street, St. Louis, 1898, after being taken there drugged from Midland hotel, Kansas City. I had $520 in the American National bank at Kansas City. One of my enemies telephoned in my name and had the money taken to the Midland hotel. Since this operation I remember counting that money when it was given to me by the cashier. I now remember every dollar of an amount which changed my life. I know the names of my assailants. Their attack had been carefully planned. I was slugged by three men who he says slugged him and caused him to lose his memory, will not be told until the mother of George A. Kimmell, who brands the claimant as an impostor, begins her case in St. Louis this month for recovery of $25,000 from an insurance company in which she says her dead son held a policy.

In Full Sympathy.

In the two island sections of the maritime provinces, for instance, we notice a peculiar use of the word "whatever." This is, of course, a perfectly proper word, used on proper occasions, but the use which is generally made of it in these sections, is to say the least, peculiar. It seems to be employed as a terminal expression, for the purpose of lending emphasis to what has been said. It is in general use throughout the country districts and by most all classes of the population. It is also the following may be given as a few examples:

"This is a fine day whatever."
"The boat is late to-night whatever."
"That's a fine horse whatever."
"Thus these expressions go through the whole round of ordinary conversation.

A somewhat amusing illustration of its extreme use is here given: The clerk of a certain church was sometimes a little slow in giving the "Amen" responses as he followed the person through the service, but what he lacked in promptness he sought to make up in emphasis, so with becoming solemnity he, in time, caught up to the person by saying "Amen, whatever."—F. A. Wightman, in the Canadian Magazine.

Moon and Weather.

In an article on "The Moon and the Weather," Otto Klotz, LL.D., F.R.A.S., the distinguished naturalist, says—
"My friends, all this is humbug, humbug, humbug. The moon has no more to do with the weather, and those other things than I have to do with the digging of the canals of Mars. Hence, I ask you, implore you, beseech you, exhort you, beg of you, to spread the gospel of truth, combat this superstition, destroy this false weather-god, crush this unbelief, build a funeral pyre and burn this heirloom of ignorance and superstition, although such heirlooms die hard."

Vaseline

If Baby should "Vaseline" himself all over and eat some as well, it would not hurt him.

"Vaseline" is so pure and harmless that a little of it would merely "limber up" his throat. And the "Vaseline" he smeared over himself would be the best thing possible for his skin. Just ask the doctor who brought him into the world.

Use "Vaseline" plenty of it—for the skin. Just try it on your face and hands and see how it softens and freshens them. Taken internally, it is excellent for colds and for the voice.

You should understand there is no substitute for "Vaseline." "Vaseline" is the registered trade-mark of the Chesebrough Mfg. Co. If you are offered anything else when you ask for "Vaseline" you are being deceived.

Our free booklet on the different preparations and the various uses of "Vaseline" is full of interesting information that will be of practical use in any family. Write for your copy today.
