In the afternoon the captain lectured on "Broken Earthenships," and at night conducted an illustrated song service. On Monday night a detachment of the Kingston corps, including the songster brigade, gave a musical evening in the village hall. There was a splendid crowd, considering the inclement weather. Refreshments were kindly provided for the visitors by some of the Odessa friends and soldiers.

TO PUBLISH IN TORONTO.

Church Papers Have Been Sold to Capitalists.
The Church, Life and the Ontario Churchman, the Anglican papers established some years ago by the late E. J. B. Pense, and afterwards disposed of to the Church Life company, have been disposed of to a company of Toronto capitalists. It is proposed to transfer the paper to Toronto, publication will occur there. The papers will be in hearty sympathy with the great movements of the Anglican church in Canada, and, with increased financial support, it is expected that they will become very effective as church organs. The transfer to Toronto will likely occur early in June, and with them, will go the staff which has been managing the papers here. The papers will be put under strong editorial management and will be enlarged in size.

HAD A THRILLING TIME.

Cape Vincent Party Taken Off Boat in Storm.

A party from Cape Vincent, consisting of two men, two women and a baby, had a thrilling time in the harbor on Monday afternoon, about five o'clock, in the midst of the heavy storm. They were in a motor boat. As a result of a mishap to the rudder, the vessel was disabled, and owing to the high sea, the men were unable to get the boat into port, and it looked for a time as if they would all be dumped into the water.

Some of the members of the crew of the schooner Julia B. Merrill noticed the difficulty the party was experiencing, and put out in a yawl boat, and rescued them; and also towed the disabled boat into port.

The people were coming over to catch the Kingston and Toronto railway train, which they missed. They were pretty well drenched when they were landed. Many people witnessed the plight of the party as their boat drifted helplessly down the harbor towards the bridge. The men tried to use the oars, but the wind and sea were too strong for them to make headway. Right in view of the city's wharves and streets the occupants of the little craft were in danger of their lives. Help was slow in coming and might not have reached the party in distress only for the action of the schooner Merrill's crew.

It seems strange to many that the city council does not provide for some lifeboat station along the harbor front to lend aid to boats that may get into trouble. Last fall, a small boat drifted into the river during a heavy gale, and there was no one to go to the rescue of the occupants.

The annual meeting of Queen's Bowling Club, held in the curling rink rooms, Monday evening, was the most largely attended in the history of the organization, all the members being most enthusiastic. A number of new members were elected, and it is estimated that the membership will be in the neighborhood of sixty or seventy this season. David Murray, the retiring president, occupied the chair.

The yearly fee of the club will remain the same as last year, 35c. The teams for the scheduled games will be picked by the executive.
