

TOWN OF GANANOQUE

BETTER SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION IS REQUIRED.

The W.C.T.U. Petitions the Board of Education - John McKay, of Kingston, Calls for His Fine Launch the Johnny G.

Gananoque, May 15.—The Winona mission circle met yesterday afternoon, a fine programme of musical numbers was rendered, followed by tea from 6 to 7 p.m. A feature was the reading of the second number of the Winona mission circle magazine. Miss Hattie Conner president of the circle, has been appointed delegate to the W.M.S. convention at Chesterville, in June, and Miss Myrtle Wiltsie, alternate.

On Monday evening the high wind caused the water of the St. Lawrence to raise about 2 1/2 feet. Many boats in the bay boathouses being forced up against the roof. A raise of one foot was made in 20 minutes. The water held its high level for 3 or 4 hours before subsiding.

The board of education met last evening and one of the main items of their business was the question of better accommodation in the public school, brought up by a petition from the local W.C.T.U. and supported by the medical health officer, Dr. J. P. Sinclair.

The old pumps have been taken out of the pump house and are to be disposed of to an out-of-town purchaser. It has been suggested that the building be fitted up as an office for the tax collector, it being at the end of the King street bridge and thus centrally located.

Court Thousand Islands, No. 66, C.O.P. will attend divine worship in Grace church next Sunday morning.

John McKay, of Kingston, was in town yesterday and took the "Johnnie G.", the Lansdowne cruiser recently purchased from U. C. Skinner, back with him. The engine from the "Johnnie G." last week, runs the boat at good speed and Mr. McKay is to be congratulated over getting one of the very best from the Gananoque fleet.

THE POPE'S BROTHER

Is a Humble Letter Carrier For Italian Government?

The Pope's recent attack of illness and the comparative frequency with which such attacks occur have somewhat alarmed his family, although he has done his best to allay all anxiety. His brother, Angelo Sarto, being of the class who do not believe anything they hear, and only half of what they see, determined to come to Rome to judge for himself. He was accommodated by his sister who lives a stone's throw from the Vatican, so they may spend the few leisure moments of the Pontiff with him. These two venerable men, both handsome and with thick white hair, alike, and yet not alike, might have been seen walking the Vatican gardens when the air was warm and summery. The Pope sometimes leaned upon his sturdy brother's arm, gesticulating slightly as he talked, with those earnest eyes of his turned on the dome of the church he loves, or wandering over the city at his feet of which he is so wonderful a part, but which he never sees any nearer.

It is whispered that certain persons at the Apostolic Palace were not over glad to see Signor Angelo back, for although, on ordinary occasions, the mildest of men, when he sees what he considers little omissions towards his adored brother, he becomes a lion. Pius X. is amiable almost to fragility in his personal life, and would never think of complaining, indeed, would never notice it, if the soap were a little thin or the wine a little watery, but the lynx eyes of his brother note these things, and he speaks of them in no uncertain tones.

It is very amusing to see the determination with which Signor Angelo put things right, especially where his sisters had failed, and the protests of the Pope that everything was just as it should be in this best of worlds.

Many persons who do not know the sturdy independence of the Italian peasant have wondered that the only brother of the pope should remain a humble postman, and moreover, in the employ of the State, which is at least the nominal enemy of the Papacy. Strange as it may seem to an outsider, Signor Angelo is a fervent patriot and one of the hottest upholders of the present war in Tripoli.

So good an Italian is Signor Angelo and so much does he hope for the triumph of Christianity, that he would feel only shame in being paid for idleness. So he continues to carry letters for the King of Italy, not that he has lost his breadth on his relationship with Pius X., as very well he might with impunity. Rain or shine, heat or cold, makes no difference to this old man of over 70, who daily goes his long round, declaring at the end of the day that, no matter how fatiguing, his is the most satisfactory work in the world.

In his little house—little in our eyes, and so comfortable—the most conspicuous object is an immense portrait of Pius X., painted and presented to him by a famous Hungarian artist. In another room are several excellent large photographs of the pope with affectionate dedications, and a beautiful ivory cru-

THE JEWS IN RUSSIA.

The Foolish Heiman Sacrifice Myth Revived.

A danger now menacing the Jews of Kieff is causing much anxiety to their co-religionists throughout the world. They are being accused, once more, of carrying out "blood sacrifices," and the unreasoning passion of the mob is being worked up against them. And the usual results of race hatred against the Jews in Russia are known to everybody.

A year ago, a boy named Andrei Yuschinsky was murdered at Kieff, and on very slender evidence a Jew has been accused and charged with the murder. The inquiry is now in progress, but whether the accused man is guilty or not is not the point. The crime has been seized on by mob orators, who assert that the boy Yuschinsky was murdered by Jews in order that his blood might be taken and used for ritual purposes, in obedience to an alleged Jewish religious law. The best-known Russian scholars, authors, and artists, have made a vehement protest against the spreading of this dangerous fiction, and now the foremost Jewish people throughout Europe have joined their protests to that of the Russian intellectuals.

No serious is the position regarded that a pamphlet issued in connection with the protest says that "the fortunes of six million Russian Jews, never too secure at the best of times, are at the present moment menaced by a hideous accusation that has been brought against one of their number." The act with which the Jew now in custody at Kieff is being charged by the mob is a revival of the "ritual murder" charge which from the Middle Ages onward has been responsible for the most terrible anti-Jewish excesses, now which in spite of its repeated refutation by Popes, monarchs and distinguished scholars, of all creeds, still commands belief in various parts of the world.

It is not definitely known how the myth first originated, but it was in 1235 that this idea, which had been propagated by Jew haters for many years past, resulted in the first massacre in Europe. In this year, the blood accusation was raised at Fulda, a town in Hesse-Nassau, and thirty-four Jews and Jewesses were massacred in consequence. Frederic II, the German emperor, had the affair investigated, and as a result of it exterminated the Jews of Germany from all suspicion. In spite of this important pronouncement, however, and many more like it, including the opinions of three popes, the "blood accusation" spread and increased in virulence. A murderer had only to select the time immediately preceding Easter and the Feast of the Passover for the commission of his crime to be sure of being able to fasten the guilt on to the Jews of the town.

The accusation now being made at Kieff is a direct descendant of this medieval persecution, and in newspaper photographs of the murdered boy are being shown with the legend: "Orthodox Russian people, remember the name of the youth, Andrei Yuschinsky, tortured by the Jews! Christians watch your children." It is against this dangerous and infamous propaganda that the Jews of Europe are now protesting, and in Germany particularly the movement of indignation and protest has taken large proportions.

Couple Dipped in Canal.

Smith's Falls, Ont., May 14.—A young couple named Denis McGrath and Miss Boles had a narrow escape from death here last night, when they drove into the Rideau canal. They did not notice that the bridge was raised to permit of a boat going through, and took a drop from the roadway into the water, a distance of fully nine feet. When the horse plunged in the young couple were hurled over its head, and all went to the bottom, the canal the water being about seven feet deep at that place. The couple were rescued by the men on the boat, which was close by and neither was seriously hurt. The horse was also rescued. The buggy and harness was destroyed.

SIX MINERS ENTOMBED

With the Dead Bodies of Five Comrades.

Duluth, Minn., May 15.—Six of the thirteen men entombed at the 2,000-foot level of the Norris mine, at Ironwood, Mich., by a cave-in last night, are grouped in a small space with five of their comrades dead beside them. Two other bodies have been brought to the surface.

The men still alive are being fed by means of a little pipe driven through the earth that keeps them in. Many rescuers are working to save them.

Mexican Troubles.

Francisco Madero is the president of Mexico. He holds office by reason of a revolution against the former, autocratic methods of Porfirio Diaz. Now there is a revolution against Madero, and it is very likely to succeed. There are no serious complaints against Madero. He is modernist in his political views. He has not used his power to punish his foes. He has shown no desire for self-glorification or for self-aggrandizement. Yet the bulk of the country is hostile towards him, and the Government soldiers cannot stand against the rebels.

How Should He Know?

Pat was strolling along the quay side as a big ship was about to sail. "Sure?" said Pat, to the captain. "Could you find me a job?" "Just the man I want," said the captain, and so Pat joined the ship for the first time in his life. It was a fine night, and they were in mid-ocean. The captain all at once noticed a man fall overboard, and shouted to Pat "Throw a buoy overboard."

Pat seized a bright-eyed youngster standing by and threw him into the sea. "I did not mean that buoy; I meant a cork buoy." "Sure," said Pat, "how do I know whether he comes from Cork or Tipperary?"

Theatrical Outlook Good.

The manager of a theatrical company playing a "one night stand" in St. Thomas was talking to the hotel proprietor regarding the prospects for business, and had been assured they were good.

Then he asked: "What was the last show you had here?" The landlord thought for a moment and turning to the clerk, said: "Say, Fred, what's the name on those trunks upstairs?"

HE EVOLVES A PLAN

MAKE STEWARDS LIFE SAVERS, SAYS LIPTON.

Sir Thomas Suggests That Each be Held Responsible for Those in His Charge.

London, May 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton writes to this morning's Times:

"To make effective the precaution of additional lifeboats I would suggest that, as each steward is responsible for a certain number of passengers, each steward should be held responsible for bringing his own passengers to particular lifeboat stations where they belong. To do this properly in moments of great emergency the stewards must be organized and made to practice under fair weather conditions."

SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

As long as the stewards are only supposed to awaken passengers and tell them to put on lifebelts and go to the boats so long in these days of gigantic liners will women and children be left wandering through the gangways and along decks in a vain, tragic search for means of escape.

WIFE ENTITLED TO SALARY.

Not Obligated to Hold Out Hand Like a Monkey.

Chicago, May 15.—A wife is a regular employee of her husband, and as such is entitled to a regular salary according to Judge Goodnow, of the court of domestic relations. No longer is it necessary that she go through his pockets in order to get change. When Mr. Husband's pay day comes, Mrs. Wife may demand her share and be backed by the municipal courts in her demands.

Mrs. Thomas Martin, 3020 Flourney street, told Judge Goodnow her husband never had given her any money since they had been married.

"She never asked me for any," protested the husband. "She does not have to," answered the judge. "A wife is not obliged to follow her husband, about like a monkey with her hand out, asking for money. She is entitled to a fair portion of his wages. I will see that she gets it, too, in all cases that come before me."
