FLOWERS TO MATCH

By JOHN P. L. HENDERSON.

"What color is your gown, Dell?" asked Bob Gaines, eagerly.

"Dell considered 'Green,' she said, solemnly, and Bob knew that the filmy creation she would wear to the Datters' masked ball would be yellow.

"Green," repeated Bob, just as he believed it. "Then you will want to wear white flowers, eh? What's the matter with lily of the valley?"

"Dell shook her sunny head. 'They're too much like bridal bouquets,' she said solemnly.

"You don't seem to have much respect for bridal bouquets," he drawled. "I thought girls were rather keen about that sort of thing."

"Did you?" asked Dell sweetly. "When you are married, my dear Bobby, you will have met a number of girls and then you will realize that not all of them are like Puss Datter."

"What's the matter with Puss Datter?" demanded Bob.

"I'm sure I don't know. It must be because she makes a bridesmaid so many times that makes her positively silly about weddings."

"I thought all girls were that way," growled Bob.

"Perhaps your acquaintance J. limited. There's Puss, who is fond of weddings, and there's me."

"And you are not?" "Dear me, no!"

"Not even your own wedding?" Dell pushed a strand of fair hair out of her eyes. "That is an evil omen, and I have not yet considered," she said.

"Bob frowned. If Dell wouldn't turn the conversation into superficial channels, he might work around to the all-important question that she would never answer definitely.

"If you don't want any brides flowers to wear with your gown, perhaps a few yards of smilax might answer," he said glumly.

"Dell laughed gayly. 'I'd feel like a chandelier decorated for a wedding,' she declared.

"What shall it be?" "Violets," said Dell with a swift look at him from under her long lashes.

"Very well. But remember, Dell, some day I shall send you lilies of the valley—and you'll be glad to wear them!" declared Mr. Gaines.

"Well," cried Dell, a little breathlessly after he had said that, "What is the boy thinking of?"

"She knew very well that Bob Gaines was thinking of asking her to marry him. She was afraid of the moment when he would screw up his courage to do so, for the last time.

Bob stopped at the florist's and ordered violets. As he went out of the shop he picked up a small booklet from the counter and idly scanned it as he rode uptown.

It was a book for the sentimentalist. It was a book for the fourteen important wedding anniversaries, from cotton to diamond. All so there were listed the various birth stones of the months and what they signified, as well as the birth-month flowers and their expression.

Bob Gaines read that lily-of-the-valley meant success in love. "Violets mean courage."

He wondered if Dell knew that, too. Some girls might, if they were romantic.

"If violets signify courage—she suggested violets, and she must have meant to encourage me," he reasoned.

"That evening he called her on the telephone. "What do violets mean?" he asked solemnly.

"About two dollars," she said wickedly. "Oh, paw! I mean the sentimental meaning—you know."

"Oh, I did ask you for violets, didn't I?" "Well, I've changed my mind. Bring me any flowers you care to," Dell's voice was queer.

"Suppose they don't match your gown?" "They will. You will see when we unmask."

"I don't suppose you'd answer that question now?" "I'll tell you, Bobby. If the flowers you send are appropriate for my gown—I'll change my mind about weddings. Understand?"

Coming slowly toward his corner was a slender young form—whose marriage he recognized at once.

She was gowned in white satin, and from her head there swayed a thick veil of white tulle and orange blossoms. Her face was entirely hidden behind the mask. In her hand she carried a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley.

It was his bouquet and they watched her go! "Nell!" he said to his sister hurriedly. "won't you beat it? There's a dear! It's Dell, and she's coming to me!"

Nell squeezed his hand. The Seaside. As the time is now opportune to plan for the summer outing and as a large number of people, those desiring a most attractive summer resort cannot do better than to procure a copy of the new booklet entitled "The Seashore."

This booklet deals with a number of seaside resorts on Long Island Sound, reached through New London, Conn., and are easy of access by fast well equipped trains over the Grand Trunk Railway System.

Warm surf bathing and deep sea fishing are two of the features. The descriptive matter in the booklet is interesting and profusely illustrated from direct photographs. A copy may be had free on application to J. P. Hanley, C.P. & T.A., Kingston, Ont.

Make It Two Shillings.

Mr. Isaacs had had a busy day, what with leading money at ninety per cent. and discounting bills at fifty, and he was annoyed on returning home to find the apple of his eye bowling the house down. That child would not be quite, not even when his fond parent tried walking up, and then his fond parent tried singing songs, out after having sung every song from "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep" to "Hey Diddle Diddle," he thought of giving it up. However, he tried one more song. At last he started when there was an instant hush, and a tiny voice cried out: "Make it two shillings, father; I'll be atleek in thirty seconds."

Judge Wouldn't Sentence Woman.

Judge Rentoul, of the City of London court, refused the application of a typewriter firm for the committal jail of a suffragette named Fowler because she had not complied with an order to pay a debt which she owed the firm.

The judge refused to grant the order on the ground of her doing so. Judge Rentoul said that after the great chivalry shown by the men toward the women on the Titanic he did not think the plaintiffs should demand the committal of any woman.

As for himself, he could not help her. All he could do if she refused to pay the debt was to say she was fishbone and let it go at that—London cable, New York Sun.

Holiday Electric Co.

GIVES $4,000,000 TO CRIPPLES.

Apparently Moved by Maimed Child of Titanic. Philadelphia, May 23.—The memories of a crippled child, of a devoted wife and of a brave son who gallantly stepped aside on the wrecked Titanic that women and children might be saved are revived when P. A. R. Widener executed a deed of trust to the Land Title and Trust company and delivered to it $4,000,000 in four per cent. securities as an endowment for the Widener Memorial Home for Crippled Children.

The fortune that is given outright to the great charity is sufficient to make its service perpetual and to place it in the front rank of charities of its kind.

The sum given makes a total of $7,000,000 actually paid and set aside for the home by Mr. Widener. It is proposed to utilize and invest the $4,000,000 in such a manner that it will eventually become an endowment fund of $5,000,000.

DIED BECAUSE HE HAD TO.

A New York Clergyman Utters a Protest. New York, May 23.—"The solemnity and mock-religious atmosphere that apparently surrounded the electrocution of Clarence V. T. Richeson surely horrified even the most hardened, and if the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson really asked Richeson: 'Are you ready to die for Jesus' sake?' it was the worst travesty on the church and religion that I ever heard," declared Rev. Madison C. Peters, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational church.

"Just such maudlin and sacrilegious things disgust all sensible people with the church and make them despise religion."

"Richeson did not die for Jesus' sake. That is a mockery. He did not even die for the sake of Avis Linnell. He died to satisfy the demands of justice because the state of Massachusetts declared that he had to."

MUST STOP PRACTICE

Of Shipping Letters by Express For Local Delivery. Ottawa, May 23.—Thrift which exceeds the legal limits has been discovered by the post office department. A drop-letter is carried for one cent, while any letter sealed and sent outside a city requires a two-cent stamp.

It has been discovered that some enterprising firms which advertise largely through the mails have been sending by express bundles of addressed and stamped envelopes for mailing at drop-letter rates in other cities where they desire to stimulate trade.

The postal authorities say that while this is economy for the business houses it is going beyond the authority of the law. They have warned the firms and postmasters in drop-letter cities that the practice must stop. Hereafter parties continuing the practice will be prosecuted.

Proud Editor Rebuked.

The following letter, with no signature attached, was found in the Clipper box this morning, says the Hennessey (Okla.) Clipper. The writer is evidently laboring under the impression that he has been discriminated against in the Clipper's columns. We offer this party our sincerest apology and assure him that the omission of news items is not intentional and that we will publish any and all news that is fit, providing it is sent in to the office, as the Clipper has no favorites.

Mister editor: I want to noo why hit is that you use so infernal much parashality in your little oie paper. Me an my folks have bin vietin half dusin time lately an you never sed one word about hit. You ran after the big bugs an let the little ones go. I have been thinkin of subscribin for the Clipper but I want do hit now. You no ho this is.

French-Speaking Congress.

Edmonton, Alta., May 23.—A convention of French-speaking people of Alberta will be held in Edmonton today. This gathering is for the object of promoting the national, commercial and social welfare of the French people settled in the province. One of the objects of the convention is to protect and purify the French language in the province.

An attendance of 1,500 French people from all parts of the province is said to be assured. Among the distinguished visitors to the convention will be Archbishop Langevin, of Winnipeg; H. M. Etienne Kamy, member of the French Academy and national delegate of France to the convention; Bishop Pascal, of Prince Albert, and Bishop Charlebois.

The convention will name delegates to attend the French convention that is to be held in Quebec on the 28th of June.

National Reserve Formed.

The formation has occurred at New Westminster, B.C., of the first national reserve in Canada. This movement was started two or three years ago in England and the registered veterans in the British Isles now number about 80,000. All ex-service men of the navy, army, and auxiliary forces are eligible to register, but registration carries with it no obligation of any service. It simply supplies the mayor of the city or local authority with a list of those who have borne arms and with whom he can communicate with confidence in times of trouble.

There is thus made available a body of reliable, disciplined men, who would otherwise be scattered unknown through the community.

The "Kissing Boy" Has Reform ed. Although Oliver Smith, the "kissing boy" of Turner, Kas., lives eight miles from the Wyandotte county courthouse, he is always the first ward of the juvenile court to report, Saturday mornings. He lives three miles from the end of the Argentine street car line.

Oliver was made a ward of the court by Judge Sims three months ago because he had a habit of stealing kisses from the Turner school girls. Judge Sims admonished him to kiss only in self-defense and according to Oliver's reports he has not kissed a girl since he was made a ward of the court.—Kansas City Star.
