"SOME HAV' MEAT, AND CANNA EAT"
So Bobby Burns tersely describes the rich, but still poor, dyspeptic. But their case is not now so desperate as when Burns wrote. For the man who has the food now can eat without suffering for it, if he just follows the meal with a Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablet.
These remarkable tablets banish the troubles of the chronic dyspeptic—the man who is bilious—the sufferer from heartburn, gas on the stomach or occasional indigestion. You can eat hearty meals of wholesome food—and digest them, too—if you take Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets.
Compounded by expert chemists, after probably the best formula known to medical science, they are quick and certain in their action, giving prompt relief from all forms of stomach trouble, toning up and strengthening the digestive organs and bringing about permanent cures.
A man is no stronger than his stomach. Fit yourself for your best work by taking Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, soe. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal.

IT'S A HUSTLING CITY
CANADIANS SHOULD BE PROUD OF OTTAWA.

It is the Capital, and as such should be kept in the front rank.—The Pressmen Were Given Good Time.
Ottawa is assuming the appearance of a metropolitan city. It is Canada's capital and as such every Canadian should feel proud at its progress and advancement, and should be willing to aid in every way possible to make it a place to be admired and to be maintained to the highest extent. It is a city of magnificent proportions, of great manufacturing capacities; a strong business centre, possessing citizens eminently progressive. In the social whirl it stands foremost among the capitals of the continent. The Canadian Press Association met there on Thursday and Friday last and the entertainment was, possibly, the best ever given to a body of representative Canadians. The convention of the association, the attendance being the largest that has yet gathered. There were over 350 men and women present. The unlimited entertainment provided by the city of Ottawa somewhat militated against the convention duties; nevertheless, the essential business of the gathering was well done. The banquet on Thursday night at the Chateau Laurier, was a fine affair and ran smoothly under the direction of that able journalist, Hon. George P. Graham. The speeches were effective and entertaining. Hon. R. Borden was heard for the first time by many journalists, and his subject-matter was enlightening and effective. Hon. W. T. White spoke well, pointing out the advantages of Canada in the commercial world. The speech of John R. Bone, the president-elect of the Press Association, was concise, admirably worded and effectively presented. For a quiet soul Mr. Bone exalted himself and was complimented of all sides for the admirable address. Don C. Seitz, of the New York World, also spoke and created rounds of applause and laughter by his apt phrases and pointed remarks. Mr. Seitz is thoroughly democratic in style and proved himself a genial and boom companion of the pressmen. He was affable, eminently practical and decidedly entertaining. All his speeches during the convention were full of suggestions. The only trouble was the convention did not pump him dry, as several addresses expected had to be postponed owing to shortness of time.
The visit of the pressmen to the E. B. Eddy mills, at the Chaudiere, was full of interest. The work of manufacturing paper was of great interest to the visitors who were shown all the processes through which this famous product of the Eddy mills passes in its manufacture. Many of the members had questions of interest to publishers to ask as they watched the large logs gradually being changed into the paper on which their publications come forth. Every particular in the process of manufacture of paper was fully explained by obliging members of the firm who guided the visitors through the maze of machinery in the mill.
A visit was also paid to the match factory, where everything in connection with this highly interesting work was explained. A pleasing feature of the visit and one greatly appreciated, was the presentation of a number of boxes of matches of different sorts to the visitors.
To the surprise of the newspaper men one of the boxes was labelled "Canadian Press Association. Souvenir of visit to the E. B. Eddy Co., Limited, at Hull, Canada." There was also a box of water and wind-proof matches, as well as a metal match box well filled. The visitors were given these matches in the boxing department as being the most fitting after the whole process had been watched from the beginning.
On Friday the Automobile League of Ottawa gave the visitors a run to the Dominion city and out to the Experimental Farm where the Hon. Martin Burrell entertained "the 400" at luncheon in a fine new building, rear-erected for such special functions, and opened by the Press Association. The luncheon was very appetizing and was followed by a few brief addresses from the manager and several visiting pressmen. The farm looks exceedingly well kept and every kind of seed and grain is thoroughly tested there before its qualities are set before the Canadian farmers.
The ladies were well looked after during the two days, making visits not only to the stores and industries, but to many of the public buildings of the city. Souvenirs were quite plentiful and were given away in many establishments. The street cars were free to the visitors and also the theatre, and both the Colonial and the Dominion theatres had many visitors, the plays being considered tip-top.
The whole party were cared for at the Chateau Laurier, the magnificent up-to-date hotel built by the Grand Trunk Railway System and managed by F. Bergmann. Everything is of the very finest quality, and the staff, though new and not yet fully organized, did themselves proud on the occasion. The dining-room is magnificent and the service, a la carte, sumptuous. The hotel is certainly one of the finest on the continent and will add greatly to the attractiveness of Ottawa. Good hotel accommodation is a first requisite in a metropolitan city and Ottawa has it. The Grand Trunk station opposite is also a beautiful building and the latest thing in railway architecture and arrangement.
The newspaper men had a very happy time together, the craft discussing the many things that go to make their business progressive and successful and they are hoping that as a result of the gathering the world will recognize the press as more of a business industry than ever before.
W. T. Stead left 263,000.
London, June 11.—The estate of William T. Stead, the newspaper writer, who was drowned in the Titanic disaster, was valued at the small total of $68,000.
The Toronto Anglican synod will take up the banish-the-bar policy, Tuesday.

HOMAGE TO THE DEAD
Who Perished in the French Submarine Off Cherbourg.

Cherbourg, June 11.—As a further investigation was confirmed the impossibility of recovering the bodies of the crew of the submarine Vendemiaire, which was sunk off the Cherbourg peninsula on Saturday, the Minister of Marine, M. Declasse went out to the scene of the disaster aboard the armored cruiser Glorie to pay homage to the dead.
The warship steamed up slowly to the spot where the submarine disappeared, the engines were stopped, and the Minister of Marine, standing on the bridge, surrounded by admirals, bared his head and made a brief address.
The marine guard presented arms, the band played the Marseillaise and the guns boomed a salute. The crews of the Glorie and the two other warships which were anchored to mark the spot, were drawn up in lines on the decks.
The exact cause of the disaster can never be known. The second officer in command of the battleship Saint Louis, who was on the bridge at the time of the collision, declares that the Vendemiaire's periscope sank up so close to the battleship that there were no time either to reverse the engines or put over the helm. He distinctly saw the ram cut the submarine in two, and did not doubt that all on board perished instantly.
A diver who examined the bow of the Saint Louis reported that beyond a certain amount of paint scraped off the port side, no damage whatever was done.
Two-Power Standard.
Paris, June 11.—The Matin's announcement that henceforth France will maintain a two-power standard for its Mediterranean fleet and also that if, between now and 1916, either Austria or Italy decide to build a new battleship, France will ask Parliament to cover similar increases, is not denied, even officially, and hence is acceptable as accurate.

Incites Strikers to Riot.

London, June 11.—Addressing an other mass meeting of striking dock workers Monday, at Tower Hall, Ben Tillet, labor leader, urged immediate organization of a "strikers' police force," two thousand strong. He said such a force would be necessary for defence in the event of police interference, and recommended that civilians be armed with stoutest cudgels.

Kidneys Wrong?

If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Head Stitches and the dreaded Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills contain a most effective diuretic which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys so that they do their work thoroughly and well.

SANG "LE BRIGADIER"
COLONEL THE HON. SAM HUGHES CAME TO RESCUE

And Aided an Unfortunate Singer at a Banquet—The Song Was Frequently Rendered in the House.

When the Minister of Militia was in Sherbrooke a short time ago he was a guest at an informal banquet given by the officers of the district. During the evening one officer set out to sing the stirring old French song, "Le Brigadier," when, to the officer's confusion and the company's disappointment, the would-be singer found that he had forgotten the words. Next to the difficulty of singing a song without knowing the tune, is that arising from ignorance of the words. Confronted by the latter, the officer had to ask to be excused.

Like a general relieving a besieged town, the Minister of Militia came to the rescue. Taking his seat at the piano, he played his own accompaniment and sang the song through from first to last.
If a man with the fine military spirit of the Minister of Militia and the twenty years' experience in the House of Commons, did not know both the words and the music of "Le Brigadier," it would be to his everlasting disgrace, for year after year Brigadier is one of the songs with which the House fills in the gap while the members are being called in for a division. Many a vote that has made political history has been called as the echoes of the rolling chorus of Brigadier were still reverberating through the galleries and corridors of the House.

Every member with music in his soul, and with a voice fit for anything better than talking, learned to sing the song, but in all the years of its use it was never better sung than when Mr. Bechard, of Ivesville, and Mr. Choquette, of Montmagny, were there to lead the parliamentary choir. The voice of neither will again be heard in that chamber. Mr. Bechard has joined "the great majority" and Mr. Choquette has joined the Senate. However, when occasion arises the House still sings "Le Brigadier," and it tries to sing it as did the "Boys of the Old Brigade."

Would Like to See Canada.

It is generally admitted that a man considers a fashionable wedding the height of boredom. That may be the reason why His Grace, the Duke of Sutherland, departed from England so soon after the marriage of his elder son and Lady Eileen Butler, and came to Canada to see his Western estates. The distinguished visitor refuses absolutely to discuss our late spring, and the prospects of the Western crops with representatives of the press and turns a chilly shoulder to the bright young men from the morning papers who seek in vain to know his opinions on the woman suffrage and the future of Home Rule. The Duke of Sutherland possesses in Stafford House one of the most imposing residences in London, and its projected closing causing some anxiety among the literary and dramatic lights of London. The Duke of Sutherland, who is still remarkably youthful in her type of loveliness, is like Kipling's "William the Conqueror," fond of people who "do" things, and her reactions are usually more than merely social occasions.
During the duke's absence in Canada, the duchess is to take a "cure" at one of the Continental invalid resorts, as her health has begun to flag from the many objections of London life. Her domestic niece, Lady Enid Fane, is one of the most beautiful girls of the season, and bears a strong resemblance to her charming aunt. The future of the duchess's only daughter, Lady Rosemary Leverton-Gower, is being discussed by many match-making mammas. It is said that this independent young person with a Shakespearean name is more anxious to come out to Canada than to "sit down" on magnificent ancestral acres in Great Britain.

Red Cedar Nearly Gone.

There was a time within the present generation when red cedar was to be found in every part of Canada. There was so much red cedar, in fact, that everybody thought, without making any exact calculation, enough was left to last a few thousand years. This being the situation, everybody who had nothing else to do took a hand at wasting it. Lavish use was made of it in hundreds of ways, and some persons actually were sufficiently vain to use it in firewood.
More would have done this, no doubt, but it wasn't as a good heater. It made a fine blaze, but it was not a satisfying winter fuel. Of course, the people were riding to a fall in the timber, and many how wish their forefathers had not made such reckless use of red cedar. It has been getting scarcer and scarcer in the last ten years, and now we have reached such straits that it is being purchased either in the tree or in the fence wherever it can be found.
As a result of its paucity the use of red cedar is becoming more and more restricted. Twenty years ago railway companies put millions of feet of it under their tracks as ties, and vast use of it was made in interior house finishing, cabinet-making, coopers and canoe building. Little by little timber workers have turned to other kinds of wood because cedar was so hard to obtain, and now its use is largely confined to cigar boxes and lead pencil casings.

Hotel for Working Girls.

Vancouver's W.C.T.U. has an active organization which was formed to own and operate an hotel wherein working girls and women will be provided with inexpensive quarters.
At a recent meeting of this organization it was decided to rent a house and open it at once, pending the more leisurely purchase of a site and erection of a building.
This step was decided on because of the pressure of the present need and the real and ability to meet such a necessity.
The "Look Out Committee" has already examined a number of houses in the central portion of the city in search of a suitable building.

PROF. WATSON, OF QUEEN'S,
Who Was Honored by Toronto University.

The honorary degree conferred by the University of Toronto on Dr. John Watson, of Queen's University, marks the completion of forty years' service to a university. Professor Dr. Watson came to Queen's University in 1872. He was then a distinguished graduate of Glasgow University. His alma mater conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D. in 1880. Dr. Watson has long since won recognition in Great Britain, the continent of Europe and the United States. He is a man of eminence in philosophy. He is at present delivering in Glasgow University his second course of Gifford lectures. His eminence in philosophy has long been a distinction to Canada.

It would be hard to tell what Dr. Watson has been to Queen's University. One of his old students said of him not long ago that it was Dr. Watson's intellectual point of view which in the end affected most deeply the students of Queen's. Dr. Watson's standard of thought is a world standard. To have such a standard has been of inestimable benefit to the university and the country. When a portrait of Dr. Watson was unveiled at Queen's in 1900 he made a memorable reply to the graduate in philosophy who had presented the portrait to the university. "A university," he said, "has as its main aim to supplement the weakness of the individual by the strength of the race." To make men strong has been Dr. Watson's ideal. The way to do this as he has explained is to make men regard life from the standpoint of the universal and to think for themselves.

To achieve the intellectual service which he has accomplished meant that for many years Dr. Watson gave himself solely to thought and work. No one who lives an arduous intellectual life can at the same time spend himself in society. Dr. Watson has written a number of notable books in philosophy. He has by this time expressed his philosophy. These rigorous years of intellectual labor which must have been to a large extent solitary, are being followed by a time of life when the student can mingle with his fellow men in companionship and helpful intercourse. Perhaps there is no part of a great man's career which is so helpful to his fellows as his old age when he has solved his problems, conquered his difficulties and become the kind, beneficent and wise man who has tried life and knows that it is good. When a university honors these qualities it honors what is best. Dr. Watson in his long career has received offers of high positions from many universities outside of Canada. It has been the good fortune of Queen's University that he has chosen to give his life to her service.

WILL DIG FIRST POTATOES
On June 29th. and Wants Whig Editor's Presence.

Kingston, June 10.—(To the Editor) I believe I was the first in Kingston last year to dig up potatoes, beginning in June. I have some nearly ready, having been in full blossom for nearly three weeks, and will begin digging them up on or about the 29th of this month. I would begin sooner but for the fact that I will be in camp at Barrieffield for at least a fortnight. I would like you to see my garden and if you can inspect it on the afternoon of the 29th personally I will give you sufficient potatoes for one meal. The new are coming in blossom also. One thing I want a witness for is to corroborate my statement and see the potatoes dug up, as I intend to grow two crops and endeavor to exhibit the second crop at the local show. I grew two crops last year, the second being better than the first.—Yours truly, E. BILLING.

NEW BRUNSWICK POLITICS.
Candidates Named in Every Constituency.

Fredericton, N.B., June 10.—The Liberals of York county in convention nominated Walter Limerick, George F. Burden, W. J. Osborne and Alexander Little.

The government has candidates nominated in every constituency and the opposition in all but Northumberland, but this will be announced in a day or two, it is said.
The campaign is warming up and bids fair to be lively up to election, June 20th. Hon. J. D. Hazen, Hon. William Pugsley, Hon. Mr. Emmerson, Frank B. Carvell and other prominent men are among the speakers.

HAS KING DYSPEPSIA?

Rumors Circulate About His Health and He is Dying.
London, June 11.—Rumors have been current concerning the king's health and prove to have some foundation. For several months past his majesty has suffered from a slight form of dyspepsia. Careful dieting is gradually overcoming the trouble, however, and the sovereign is very strict in his observance of the rules laid down by his physicians.

Whipping Up Tired Nerves

The driver reaches his destination sooner by whipping up his tired horse, but no one supposes that the whip imparts strength to the horse. It merely causes the more rapid expenditure of strength.
And so it is with stimulants. When the system is run down the use of stimulating medicine is merely calling forth the additional expenditure of the waning vitality and in reality hastens the breakdown.
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is not a stimulant. It does not give rise to false hope by whipping up the exhausted system. It is a true tonic and cures by gradually and naturally building up the feeble, wasted, nerve cells and adding new, firm flesh and tissue. You need not expect any startling results from the first few doses, but can be certain that the benefits to the body are thorough and lasting.

SUCCESS OF A CAMP
DEPENDS UPON ENTHUSIASM OF OFFICERS.
Says the Minister of Militia, Who Has Hope of Extending the Period of Camp Training of the City Corps.
"My idea is, if possible, to have the whole division out, the artillery, and all the branches of the service, at Petawawa, or elsewhere, and bring the city corps under canvas also. Then we would be in a position to work out tactical schemes to good advantage."
The above is the reply which Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes gave to a Whig representative, on Monday afternoon, when asked regarding the city corps that had left camp the day before. The minister of militia said that from reports which he had received, he was, on the whole, well pleased with the city units that turned out at Barrieffield for four days. He mentioned several interesting facts in connection with the success of this new feature for the citizen soldiers depended upon the enthusiasm of the officers. Col. Hughes felt that while the time had been short, the citizen soldiers had been broken to camp life, and a good start had been made on what would probably, next year, be a longer period.
The minister had noticed that the rural regiments which had marched into Barrieffield camp, while he was there on Monday afternoon, had been conspicuously under strength. He said that the percentage of available men in the different recruiting districts was this year, as large as in former years. The whole matter rested with the officers. He realized their difficulties in this respect, as he had gone "through the mill," but it meant "sawing wood" all the time.
The employers of the citizen soldiers in Petawawa looked with general favor upon their men attending the camp at Barrieffield, with the 57th, said Col. Hughes, not only allowing them leave from their work, but also paying their salaries and wages.
The drill of the rural corps at the camp, at Barrieffield, commenced Tuesday morning, the men being on the parade ground, and instructed in squad and company drill.

The rural corps under canvas now are the 16th, 42nd and 50th regiments, 8th brigade; and the 40th, 45th and 46th regiments, 9th brigade.
Almost without exception the battalions are very much under strength, it being a very small camp this year.

Hard to Get Men.
The 42nd Regiment, of Perth, arrived in the city on the Kingston & Pembroke train on Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, and immediately went over to camp. It was in charge of Lieut-Col. J. M. Baldwin, and there were about two hundred in all ranks. Those in charge of the regiment state that they had great trouble in getting men to enlist, and the old ones back to camp, as there are so many other things that the men would sooner do. There is more money in staying at home on the farm. The heavy rain has also forced a number to remain on the farm, in view of the work being so backward.

JANGLE OVER FUNERAL.
Cleveland Couple Unable to Agree on Anything.
Cleveland, June 11.—"She was always on the outside of everything," testified Lloyd H. Greenleaf, fifty, a mover, before Judge Phillips, in common pleas court. Greenleaf was defending the alimony suit of his wife, Mrs. Julia Greenleaf.
"We never could agree on anything," Greenleaf said. "Our first row started when we were going to a funeral. I wanted to go early so we could get a seat. She didn't want to go early."
"Why, judge," concluded Greenleaf, "she used to wake me up in the middle of the night and ask me to get more life insurance."
Greenleaf was granted a divorce on his cross petition and Mrs. Greenleaf was given alimony.
