BORDEN AND THE SENATE.

The Toronto News thinks the imperial government may see the wisdom now of granting relief from the senate, whose majority is hostile to the prevailing conservative government. In 1874 the late Hon. Mr. Mackenzie was held up by the senate and desired permission to appoint extra senators in order to make the upper house subject to his will. The permission was not granted, on the ground that there was no apparent evidence of the deadlock. The situation now, according to the News, is entirely different. "The national deadlock," it argues, "is present." No it is not. The senate has not refused to sanction generally the legislation of the lower house, and the legislature which has been projected by the government. The senate has declined to sanction certain bills in the form in which they were presented to the government, and suggested amendments. These were not acceptable to the government and yet it cannot be said a deadlock occurred. Mr. Borden is advised to see what he can do about reforming the senate while he is in England. He is at liberty to tell his dismal story to the Colonial Secretary, to learn, in all probability, that the imperial government is much opposed to the control of the senate by appointments as the king was opposed to the control of the lords in the same way. Mr. Borden had better bide away. If his government lives for any length of time he will be able to make appointments to the senate, and as they are bound to be partisan the upper house will gradually come to regard his work favorably, and pass it without question whatever its nature or quality.

CONTEST IN THE WEST.

The appeal of the government of Saskatchewan to the people, written by Hon. Mr. Scott, is most direct and emphatic. Provincial rights are paramount, and if the Scott campaign succeeds there will be no partnership between the federal and provincial governments, and none can take place. Strong local features are made conspicuous. There is to be an expenditure of $2,000,000 annually, upon good roads, for a period of years, one-quarter chargeable to current revenue and the balance to capital account, under provincial direction there will be railway construction, radiating from the Hudson's Bay railway, and in different directions, so as to develop the province fully; farmers will be helped, if possible, by cheap loans, and interior elevators built, now that the federal government has failed to keep its promises with regard to them; power will be generated at the Souris coal fields and later, by water falls, for the benefit of the people; there will be a development of Northern Saskatchewan, demonstration farms, agricultural and technical education, animal husbandry, publicity, the initiative and referendum, and the demand for a readjustment of freight rates under the railway commission. The issue, however, of all issues is what is termed "Saskatchewan bill of rights," which includes the granting to the province of the public domain within its limits, free access as to the markets of the United States, new markets for the farm products, and a speedy competition of the Hudson's Bay railway. Mr. Borden has agreed to transfer the public domain, but his colleague, Dr. Roche, has declared that this transfer will not be made to the present local government. The "bluff" may not work. On the contrary it may have a very aggravating effect on the election, and may do Mr. Haultain more harm than good. Generally the election is one of the keener, but it will not last long. On July 11th, the people will do the voting, and Hon. Mr. McNab says the government will have forty supporters out of fifty-four. A smaller proportion will do it, and a smaller number is best for the government.

WHITNEY'S SUDDEN SOMERSAULT.

The volte face of the local government on the bi-lingual school question, is more than surprising; it is astonishing. It shows how alarmed the administration has been on the subject, how eager it is to act on the suggestions of Mr. Rowell, though unwilling to admit the fact, how exceedingly eager it is to do something that will head off the public dissatisfaction. For deny it, no one can, that the government has been shaken-up, that it has done the very thing it was not willing to do. First let it be understood that the election last fall was precipitated in order to avoid an explosion or outbreak of public opinion on the matter. In the session of 1911 the government had pledged itself to fully investigate the schools, through a competent person, and it must be said of Dr. Merchant that his report is both candid and critical. He made clear all that had been suspected, or said of the bi-lingual schools, and his report was placed in the hands of the government in September. At once it became apparent that the house could not meet again without radical legislation, and to avoid the feeling that might follow the exposure of weakness or failure on the part of the bi-lingual schools a dissolution was decided upon.

There had been, during the election, some remarkable statements, (and contradictory of each other), by ministers. Mr. Foy, to retain the Orange vote in his constituency, (with the aid of the Orange leaders), declared that, under the law, there were no bi-lingual schools, and if any were found, (and the Merchant report, on file, said there were), they would have to be abolished. The premier did not know of these schools, though he had the report. Rheaum had not read it. Hon. Mr. Rheaum said he had the authority of Sir James Whitney to say that the bi-lingual schools would not be abolished. Then came the election, the first session of the new legislature, the attempt of the government to escape a plain or emphatic declaration of its plans, and a shambling and misleading statement by the leader of the government. The review of these closing proceedings of the legislature, the contrasting of addresses by the premier and leader of the opposition, and the effect, of the later announcement respecting the bi-lingual schools will be the basis of another article. Meanwhile the evidence, as set forth in the statement, shows how the government has been stampeded into accepting the liberal position.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Borden says the west cannot have government elevators. Mr. Rogers says it can and must. Who is running the government of this country anyway? A woman inspector of schools in Toronto. Why not? There are women inspectors in England and they are doing as good work as the men. The women are gradually coming to their own. The leaders of the political parties, in Ontario are vying with each other as to what they can do for temperance. The revelation is a remarkable one, and shows the trend of public opinion. Mr. Rowell has forced the issue. The Chicago ministers have agreed to marry only the physically fit. But they are not the big push. The magistrates can marry in the United States, and some of them do not seem to care much whom they marry or mate. A good many are not influenced by the "holy" bonds of wedlock. The scrap between Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt will have the effect of giving the presidency to the democrats. But they have their troubles-for Bryan. It is evident that he has the presidential bid in his bonnet, and he cannot be elected. The judgment in the Moran case will have a great educational value. The newspaper can go a long way reasonably in its criticism without libelling any one. It is a serious thing to reflect upon the character of any one, especially the character of the dead. The Orange Sentinel is not quite satisfied with what the government proposes to do with the bi-lingual schools. The French and English inspectors may do great things, but they will stand watching. The legislative committee of the Orange order will do a little supervising on its own account.

Toronto has a teachers' superannuation system, to which the teachers contribute two per cent. of their salaries, and the city the balance. The male teacher must retire at sixty-five, and the female at sixty. Retiring or resigning teachers may withdraw their interest from the fund. A pension is a grand thing and has a very inspiring effect.

WANTED HER HELP.

After False Starts Finally "Pops" the Question.

"Grace," he said enthusiastically, "I have a question to ask you."

"Yes," she said softly and prepared to listen.

"I hope you won't think it impertinent, or take it as an attempt upon my part to interfere with your own prospects."

"Oh, George—"

"But you are so much cleverer than I."

"You mustn't say that."

"You are. I've been going with you a long time now, and I've had time to see it. You are musical, and understand the poets, and all that, so much better than I. Your family is literary, whereas mine is not. My father is but a humble bookkeeper."

"You have taken first honors in college. I have had to earn my own living always."

"That makes no difference to me, George."

"I know it doesn't, Grace. But now I've come to you for help. I feel that I cannot hope for success without your assistance."

"I am sure, George, that you will always find me willing to do anything in my power to help you."

"I knew you would be. It but confirms my first impression of you. And you will help me."

"Yes, I will."

Transforming Touch of Geniuses.

The genius in tailoring accomplished without effort things that refuse to yield to the most determined efforts of the ordinary mortal. He apparently creates out of nothing. His touch transforms the shape of the customer and the set of the garment. He moulds an ungainly form into an Apollo, and the misfit falls into natural place in his hands. The lines of his draught are unapproachable and his system is infallible. He knows just when the shoulders to be advanced or receded, and understands intuitively just how much the waist is to be suppressed or filled in and how much spring is required. He never makes a mistake, and if the journeyman ruins a garment beyond repair in the making the genius sets it right with a few touches, even though to repair it is beyond the ordinary cutter's skill.—Tailor and Cutter.

A FIGHT WITH A BEAR.

Farmer Ran From Marauder, But Proved Victor.

Bellefleur, June 24.—Mr. D. Watson, residing on Paudash road, near Bancroft, has had his flock of sheep depleted lately, undoubtedly by a bear. The other morning he found the carcass of a lamb partly eaten, and thinking the bear might return in the evening, he shouldered a rifle and ventured to where the carcass was lying, only to find, however, before him, showing no sign of leaving until he had finished his repast. Watson had only three cartridges, and after firing apparently without effect, he was obliged to beat a retreat hastily, with the bear in pursuit. It gave up the chase when the vicinity of the house was reached. Next morning the body of the bear was found dead, all three shots having reached the mark. It weighs 347 pounds.

Cushendall Notes.

Cushendall, June 22.—On Monday evening, the members of Zion church held a successful social on the grounds, when quite a goodly number was realized. The pastor, Rev. Mr. McConnell and family were also farewelled before leaving for a new parish in Quebec. Dr. McConnell's successor is Rev. Mr. Nesbet who has moved to the paragonage. Quite a number of the telephone company have been engaged removing poles along this line. W. Gordon had the phone placed in his dwelling. Messrs. S. McKane, J. and D. Ward, also W. Hunter have gone to camp Petawawa. Mrs. Ansley, Kingston, has returned from visiting her sister, Mrs. Trotter. Mrs. Grimshaw is at J. Weirs. The teacher, Miss Latourney sent a class to write on entrance exams this week.

Big Profit in Ball Pools.

Philadelphia, June 24.—The tremendous profit in baseball pools and the small chances of the player getting any return on his speculation were demonstrated in the Central police court, when it was alleged that three men in Philadelphia collected between $1,700 and $1,800 a day on pools and paid out an average of $80 a day to the winners. The perils of trying to get rich quick are still in evidence.

LOTS OF BIG GAME.

The Sporting Possibilities Are Very Great.

With the exception of antelopes and musk-ox, British Columbia has every species of big game that exists on the continent, even the rarest of them being found in fair quantities. In addition there are wild fowl and game birds of various species, some natives and others acclimatized, that furnish sport; while the waters afford the finest trout and salmon fishing in the world. In fact, the sporting possibilities are so many that it would be impossible to exhaust them in an ordinary lifetime. The Grand Trunk Pacific is opening up virgin territory where the very best hunting will be found.

Some seventy miles up the river from Fort George the "Grand Canon" is reached, and from there a magnificent moose country extends as far as the little Smoky river. From reliable reports received, it is probable that there are more moose to the square mile than in any other part of the continent, and every year their numbers seem to increase. So far, the country has never been hunted except by a few prospectors. Whether the horn-attain the large size of the Caspian moose has yet to be determined, but some very fine heads have been seen. In this district, caribou are very plentiful on the higher plateaus, and in places both grizzly and black bear are numerous.

A New York college girl with an income of $6,000 has had her allowance increased by the courts to $10,000 a year. The higher education comes high.—Washington Post.
