WEDDED TO THE JOB.

Hartford, Connecticut, has just released a convict who has been behind the bars for fifty-three years. He was committed to life imprisonment for the murder of his wife, a young woman in her teens, when he had just passed his twenty-first birthday. During the intervening years he had dreamed of freedom and petitioned for it twenty-eight times without success.

Prison for life is a discouraging contemplation, and it gave this man, John P. Warren, the blues. But after a while he became reconciled to his fate, became as contented as any convict can be, and busied himself in any position to which he was assigned. Once he made his escape, in 1889, when he dug down through a wall and passed out by another cell to freedom. He was away from July to November, but was uncomfortable all that time because he was in hiding. Warren made a model prisoner. As a florist he became skilled, and as the engineer of the warden's heating plant he could not be excelled. When at last the order came for his release he would not go until he had trained another convict to take up and carry on his work. Then he looked out upon a strange world, upon a district he had not seen for many years, and on a country of which he had heard very little. And at the start of his new experience he had the joy of being regarded as a voter for the first time.

In the United States criminals are understood to escape their dues. Some of them do. Warren has atoned for his—if a man can ever get away from the guiltiness of a capital offence.

MONEY FOR RELIEF PURPOSES.

The heart of the average Englishman is tender and easily touched. The evidence of this was afforded when the facts of the Titanic disaster became known. It was felt that there would be want and distress among the families of the lost seamen and stokers and engineers, and the funds flowed in so freely that it had to be announced there was more than enough.

Now the families of the striking dockmen, at all the shipping ports of England, are suffering. Some ladies, acting as investigators, declare that the condition of the women and children is "absolutely appalling," that they are starving, and that as non-combatants and innocent ones they must be helped. The men, too, are fast failing, and some of them were too weak to walk to recent meetings and engage in demonstrations.

CANCER—A PROFOUND MYSTERY.

One of the most remarkable trials in England, of which reports have been published this year, is that of Dr. Bell vs. Dr. Bashford. Dr. Bell's allegation is that he had been libelled in an article written by Dr. Bashford, and in an editorial comment in the British Medical Journal, of May 27th, 1911. The article was entitled "Quacks and Quackery," and the writer quoted a statement once made by Sir Spencer Wells which ran:

"I have good reason for believing that to-day in London and elsewhere throughout the country numbers of the medical profession, trading as cancer curers, knowingly and deliberately trade upon the anxiety and credulity of the public in all that pertains to the etiology and treatment of cancer."

The article proceeded: "There is overwhelming evidence that Dr. Bell, formerly of Glasgow, is the modern representative in London of some of the practices referred to in the extract I quoted from Sir Spencer Wells."

The editorial note ran: "Dr. Bashford's paper was the most damning exposure of the vilest and most cruel form of quackery that has been unearthed since Sir Spencer Wells wrote 'Cancer and Cancer Cures.'" Briefly, Dr. Bell's theory is that cancer results from an impure condition of the blood, and that by certain treatment, largely connected with diet, cancer can be both prevented and cured by purifying the blood. He excludes flesh food from the sufferer's diet, and allows salads, fruit, nuts, cheese, uncooked vegetables, etc. He added that of seventy cases he had treated about half of them had been effectively cured of cancer. He called to his aid, as witnesses, several physicians who were in practice, who had read his books, and endorsed his statements, that cancer was a disease of the blood and could be cured by dieting. One of these witnesses was Dr. George Brown, of the Medical Record, a paper of recognized merit in the medical world.

For the defence the evidence was voluminous. Dr. Bashford, who is superintendent of laboratories of the Cancer Research Fund, persisted that cancer was not a disease of the blood, but a local disease which surgery could only affect or cure. He charged that Dr. Bell was presuming upon the credulity of the people, that he might be honest but he was misled, and that his books were written out of vanity or in sheer ignorance.

Sir Alfred Gould, senior surgeon of Middlesex hospital, had said there were other cures for cancer than the operation, and Stephen Paget, the secretary of the Research Fund, had said that by treating the blood a cure for cancer could be found, but the defendant did not take any stock in the statements. He gave statistics of some value, namely, that since 1880 the deaths from cancer in men in England had increased from 200 to 800 per million, and among women from 800 to 1,000 per million. "He could not give any scientific reason for the increase."

Dr. Barlow, director of the Cancer Research laboratories, at Middlesex hospital, had made numerous experiments to cure cancer without the use of the knife, without avail. He had made examinations of the blood in cancerous and non-cancerous persons and found no difference in them. Dr. Bullock, superintendent of the Bacteriological hospital, said cancer was, in his opinion, congenital. Sir Alfred Gould added that cancer had been cured by natural causes, but he did not know what cured the patients. He had used the X-rays and the knife and both were dangerous.

The case had not been concluded when the last English papers came to hand, but a cablegram announced that Dr. Bell had been awarded $10,000 damages. The one thing that has been clearly established is that some of the most distinguished doctors in England candidly confess that for cancer a sure cure has not been found.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The opposition in the imperial commons, after resisting the insurance bill to the limit, is advised to accept the measure and help to give it a fair trial. Sensible advice.

Thanks for the rain it lays the dust, as the city's watering carts fail to do. By the way there is nothing more prejudicial to health than the dust and the microbes which are flying with it. It pays to have clean and damp streets.

The Titanic enquiry still goes on in England. Things are not rushed in the mother country as in America. But when the courts and commissions conclude their work there is some result. The American papers have ceased to make fun of the Titanic commission.

Byran, like Roosevelt—and they are two of a kind—is hurting himself, in his attempt to direct and dominate the democratic movement. He is a genial and most eloquent man, but not a presidential possibility.

The liberal office-holders are now being removed without the courtesy of an explanation and a trial. The man who accepts office under the circumstances has no assurance that he can keep it. No use of talking any more about civil service reform. It has been abandoned.

Taskatchewan is going to experiment with the initiative and referendum. In Alberta, both parties are pledged to direct legislation. This is due, perhaps, to the large influx of people who believe in progressive measures, and are not afraid to experiment.

A Very Timely Suggestion. New York Tribune.

It might make dining at a restaurant a pleasurable excitement as well as a liberal education if the proprietor dispensed with waiters entirely and allowed each guest to go into the pantry and the kitchen and forage for himself.

Eczema 25 Years Cured by "Cuticura"

Leg Like Raw Flesh from Knees Down

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My own doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, 'try them, if you like' but I do not think they will do any good.' At this time my leg was peeling from the knee down, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh and I had to walk on crutches. 'I bought a case of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. After the first two treatments the swelling went down and in two months' use of the Cuticura Remedies my leg was cured and the new skin grown on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. But for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I am truly grateful for the wonderful cure that Cuticura wrought and I always recommend it most highly as a sure and economical cure for skin troubles." (Signed) Miss J. B. Renaud, 277 Melina St., Montreal.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for skin and scalp humors. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book, send to Puffer D. & C. Corp., 49 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.
