HAVING GOOD TIME. Very Tired After a Hard Day's Work. The thirty-two young lads who left on Thursday, to open camp at Grenadier Island, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., reached Rockport at 2.30 o'clock, and the whole outfit was towed up to Grenadier Island, where it arrived at 3.30 o'clock. Under the care of Secretary Messervy and Boys' Secretary Wilson, a detachment was divided into three squads, with leaders for each. One pitched the tents, the other scrambled for water and for food, and the third handled the baggage. With great expedition, six tents were soon up, and, through the kindness of Mr. Churchill, the first enjoyable repast after a hard work of the afternoon. The first evening was spent by the boys in fishing and rowing, and at 9.30 o'clock a real tired bunch of happy boys sought sweet repose. The reports come back that the boys are under excellent care and are having a really enjoyable time.

Intellectual African Tribes. A recently published book on Africa gives certain native tribes credit for greater intellectuality than has usually been ascribed to the negro race. "Every Central African," it says, "is a born lawyer. Should he need a rise he can act as his own pleader and set forth his case with shrewdness and lawyer-like adroitness." It will be remembered that Bishop Coleman also had a high opinion of the acumen of certain native Africans as Biblical critics.

A CHARGE DISMISSED

BY THE MAGISTRATE IN POLICE COURT. Wife Claimed Husband Assaulted Her—Thomas Wood, of Perth Road, Was the Accused.

An unfortunate case of family troubles was heard in the police court, on Saturday morning, when Thomas Wood, who is working at the lead mines at Perth Road, was charged by his wife with assault on the 29th of April last. From the accused's evidence, the case was dismissed, the magistrate saying that it would bear investigation. J. B. Walkem, K.C., appeared for the defendant, and J. C. McConechy, Children's Aid Society agent, also attended.

The plaintiff testified that her husband, whom she said was useless, came to her home on Johnson street, on April 30th, and assaulted her.

Mrs. Wood also said that she wanted support for her 53rd-year-old daughter, who was at present in a sickly condition at the mother's home now on Lower Princess street. Some of the ladies of one of the city Presbyterian churches had been assisting her.

Wood's evidence seemed to carry a good deal of weight, and influenced the dismissal. He is cooking at the lead mines, and is endeavoring to bring up the three children from seven to fifteen years of age. He had asked his wife to come out and care for the children, but she has refused. It was an endeavor to get the youngest child that the affair occurred in April. He said he never struck her.

The husband had a good many of his friends in court from the mines. The 12th, with its enormous crowd of visitors, went off remarkably quiet, as only one other case was heard in court, Saturday morning, a drunk, who was fined.

How Some Fish Sleep. The sleep of fishes is still very imperfectly understood. From a guide book to the new marine museum at Madras it appears that certain sea perches regularly seek the bottom of their tank at night and remain motionless—apparently sleeping until morning. But some remain motionless without descending to the bottom, and many others keep always moving throughout the night, seeming to take no sleep. Prof. B. Romeis, a French zoologist, has lately noticed a fish that shelters its young at night. The female of Paratilapia multicolor hatches its eggs in pockets in her mouth and afterwards the young fry return each evening to the mother's mouth, remaining until morning.

Why the Nerve of Her? Not long ago a woman reporter was busily engaged in scribbling her "copy" on a street car on her way to the office from the scene of her work. She was listing a number of people who had been present when she was surprised to have a perfect stranger sitting in the seat with her cap on her shoulder, beg her pardon, and tell her that one of the names she was writing was misspelled.

"I have often found people reading over my shoulder in the street car," the reporter said, in telling of it, "but that was the first one who had the impudence to comment to me upon what she had read."

Tribute to Stage Art. Kansas City Journal. They say a notable French actress occasionally likes to play a little joke on her public. She went to London recently and had an audience in tempt. A large, wide Englishman was weeping copiously.

"Sir, you seem moved," remarked a Frenchman at his side. "Yes, how impressive she is. I cannot understand French, but I can understand the tragedy in her utterances."

"In that case," said the Frenchman, "you may be interested to know that she is reciting the multiplication table."
