

TO BEAR SIR RICHARD'S REMAINS TO ST. GEORGE'S

The Funeral to Be Held Thursday Afternoon.

THE DEAN OF ONTARIO

WILL OFFICIATE IN THE ANGLICAN CATHEDRAL

And be Assisted by Rev. O. G. Dobbs, of Brockville—Tributes of Premiers to Sir Richard—The Private Life of the Dead Statesman

Arrangements have been made for the funeral of the late Right Hon. Sir Richard Cartwright. The remains will leave the family residence "The Maples," Cartwright's Point, at 1.30 o'clock, on Thursday afternoon, and be conveyed to St. George's cathedral on King street, where the burial service will be conducted by the dean of Ontario, assisted by Rev. Ogilvie G. Dobbs, Brockville, cousin of the dead statesman. The funeral will be of a public nature from the cathedral at 2.30 o'clock, to Cataract cemetery.

This morning, through W. F. Nickle, M.P., the family was informed that Senator J. A. Loughheed would represent the dominion government at the funeral.

Lady Cartwright this morning received the following message from Premier R. L. Borden:

"My colleagues and I desire to tender our deepest and respectful sympathy to you and to all the members of your family. (Signed) R. L. Borden."

During Wednesday Lady Cartwright received messages of condolence from His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, who is at present in Prince Rupert, B.C.; Hon. R. W. Scott, Hon. Charles Murphy, Hon. Louis Jette, and Hon. James Loughheed.

A wreath of flowers was sent by the government to be placed on the casket of the deceased statesman, and a wreath was also sent on behalf of the senate.

Hon. Charles Murphy, of the former Laurier cabinet, will attend the funeral of Sir Richard Cartwright.

The pall-bearers will be: Col. H. R. Smith, sergeant-at-arms in the House of Commons; Col. S. C. McGill, and Messrs. J. B. Walker, K.C., Francis Dobbs, John Dobbs, and F. C. T. O'Hara, for years private secretary to Sir Richard.

The sons of the deceased, who have arrived for the funeral, are Dr. R. C. Cartwright, of Nanapano; A. D. O'Toole; Capt. Frank, of Winnipeg; and Henry, of Toronto.

Sir Richard the Man.
Sir Richard was very fond of boating and yachting, and the greater part of each summer he spent enjoying this sport. He knew the waters in this district well. In addition to yachting he was also a motor boat enthusiast, and for years enjoyed trips in this type of craft.

It may not be generally known, but Sir Richard was an ardent chess player, in fact he was a hard man to beat at the game, and there was no game in which he liked better to indulge. Lady Cartwright is also fond of the game, and it is stated that very few nights passed without the two playing a few games, when they were together at home.

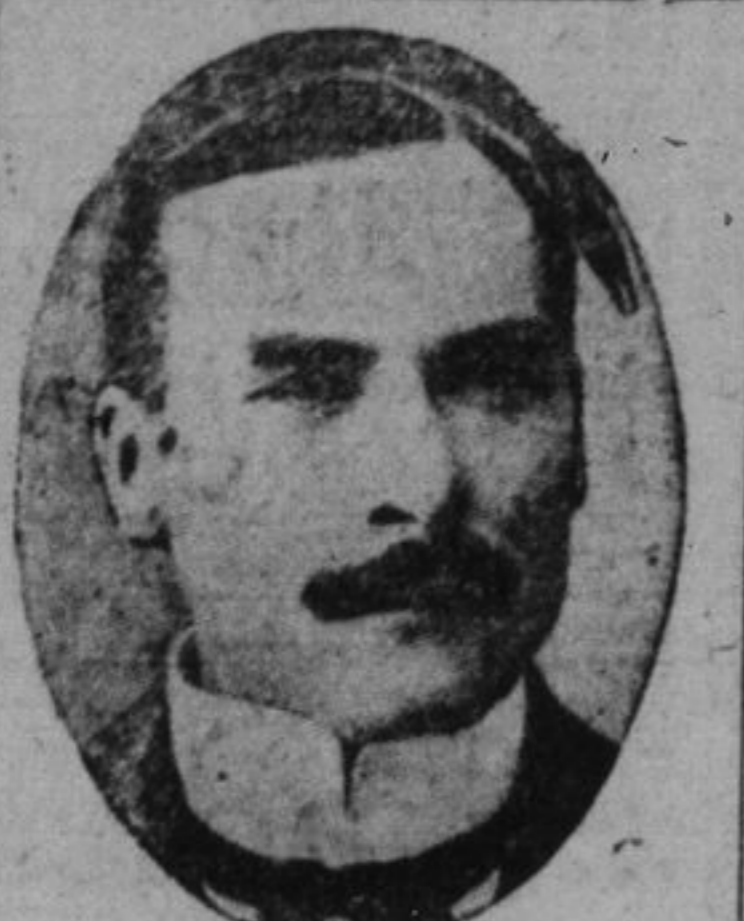

Sir Richard was a most hospitable man, and on every hand is heard a reference to his kindness towards people, and more especially to those who were his guests. He was warm-hearted and made it his business to see that all who came to see him and his family were made "at home." And that he succeeded in this respect goes without saying.

Sir Richard was very much devoted to his family, and at all times took a keen interest in their welfare. Kingston, the city of his birth, was very dear to him, and although his duty required him to spend the greater part of his time in Ottawa he spent as much time as possible at his home here.

In his younger days Sir Richard was very fond of camping, and with some of his relatives he would spend a week or two at a time at some fine spot along the Rideau. He was very fond of outdoor sports, in which he took a great deal of interest. He loved to be out of doors as much as he could.

Sir Richard was a familiar figure on the streets of Kingston, in which city he was born, and where he died. Troubled with rheumatism for many years, his movements were painfully slow, but he desired no assistance as he disembarked and entered his carriage of the old-day type, driven by an Irish coachman in full livery. The aged knight was very sensitive about his infirmity, and would suffer no one to give him aid as he moved about. He was so well known here that his unspoken wishes in this regard were respected. He moved in and out of Kingston, his birthplace, known and esteemed by the great mass of the people, gait and toly alike.

Sir Richard was president of the Frontenac Loan and Investment society, of Kingston. He paid regular visits to the head office on Clarence street, in which his desk resided. For many years Sir Richard had an office on King street, near the corner of Queen street. Later he had an office over the present G.N.W. telegraph building, on Clarence street. Five years ago, it is said, that Dr. W. G. Anglin, who was his medical adviser, wanted to operate upon Sir Richard for hernia trouble, but the veteran statesman laughingly remarked that he hadn't the time to spare for an operation, which would have to wait until later on, when he had more leisure.

Premier Borden's Tribute.
Premier Borden at Ottawa paid a warm tribute to the late Sir Richard Cartwright, and in his address to the House of Commons on Sept. 23, he said: "The death of Sir Richard Cartwright comes as a shock to those who have been his colleagues in parliament whether on one or the other side of the house," said the premier. "He has been a great figure in the public life of Canada for more than forty years and no one can forget his strong personality, his wonderful power in debate, or the wonderful contrast between the extreme kindness of his disposition in private life and his great command of attack and invective in debate whether upon the hustings or in parliament."

"He was in every sense a great parliamentarian thoroughly versed in constitutional procedure, and entirely familiar with the development of parliamentary government in Canada. I recall one instance which illustrates the kindness of his nature and his innate courtesy. A few years after I had become leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, Sir Charles Tupper, not then a member of parliament, came by the invitation of the speaker and took a seat on the floor of the house. These two men had been redoubtable antagonists on opposite sides for many years and had engaged in attack upon each other with a vigor which is seldom witnessed in these later days. As soon as Sir Richard saw Sir Charles he made his way slowly (for he walked with great difficulty by aid of a cane) through the passage back of the speaker's chair in order to greet his old antagonist."

"To Lady Cartwright and the members of his family the sympathy of all Canadian citizens will be extended in the fullest measure." Sir James Whitney, premier of Ontario, said:

"The death of so prominent a man as Sir Richard Cartwright, will, of course, come as a shock to the whole community. He was an able man, very tenacious of views and he held any subject very dear. He was one of the public men of Canada who were so well known to the people as he was, because for many years he made a practice of going about the country and addressing them on subjects of outstanding importance."

Sir George W. Ross, ex-premier of Ontario, said: "He was one of the most stalwart liberals of his day, and in the dark hours of liberal opposition he evinced unflinching courage and a resolute purpose in the hope that some day the liberal party would return to power. This hope was realized in 1896, and no one rejoiced more than Sir Richard over the triumph of the party."

NEW ZEALAND DEFENCE.

The Act is Working to Entire Satisfaction.

London, Sept. 25.—The Times Wellington correspondent says the Dominion of New Zealand publishes its cable reports under the heading "Liberal Press Attacks New Zealand Defence Scheme, New British Public is Galled," and urges the government to instruct the high commissioner to state the facts. The Post ridicules this campaign of slander and denies that the act is unjust, tyrannical or unpopular. The number of territorial registers is 28,000, an excess of 1,520 over the number estimated as liable. Senior cadets number 33,197. There has been some fifty imprisonments which represent under one per cent. of the registration at camp, at a tentance at which were eighty-two per cent. It is a common experience for recruits who enter camp reluctantly to leave it unwillingly. The scheme hasn't failed, the article concludes, out is an astonishing success.

MAN GIVEN APE'S STOMACH.

New York, Sept. 25.—A Paris cable says: A man's stomach has been removed and replaced with the stomach of an anthropoid ape, which is, of course, an ape very close to a man in the rising scale of development.

This operation, the first of its kind, was performed by Dr. Rouleux. A famous surgeon in the hospital at Agen. The patient, a farmer, twenty-seven years old, whose stomach had been worn out.

Need More Harvesters.

Winnipeg, Sept. 25.—The Canadian Pacific railway has received five hundred telegrams in reply to a query as to the number of men still urgently needed for harvesting. The show of fully three thousand needed, of whom half are required at Manitoba points. At every station there are standing from twenty-five to forty empty cars waiting for the grain to move.

MILNER THINKS CANADA SHOULD HAVE A NAVY

It is a Matter Above Parties, and Whatever Canada Does Will Be Approved.

Sydney, N.S., Sept. 25.—Lord Milner, who is in Sydney as the guest of Mr. Plummer, was interviewed as to his opinion of the Canadian naval question. He said:

"My personal view is that Canada should have a navy of her own, but, of course, this would be of no use unless it would work hand-in-hand with that of Britain."

"I should have thought that Canada would be inclined to do more than contribute to the main navy. Of course, I am not saying that for the present that might not be the best way to start, as to work up a navy takes a large time. But in the end a navy of Canada's own would, I think, prove itself the best."

"The last thing that should be done would be a division of your parties over this important measure. In Great Britain there will be no division for whatever Canada will see fit to do will be approved of by both parties in the old country. It is a matter above parties."

YOUNG CHINAMAN TO REGISTER AT QUEEN'S THIS TERM—TO STUDY MECHANICAL DRAWING.

The registration of a Chinaman in the School of Mining, Queen's University, or any faculty for that matter, is a decidedly unique occurrence. It is understood that special arrangements had been made for William Fung, a young celestial in town, to take a course in mechanical drawing at the university this year.

Ever since he came to the city he has been very keen on obtaining an education, and last year attended Louise school, showing himself to be a very apt pupil.

Later—William Fung was advised that he could not register at the university, but private tuition suggested. But "you can't keep a good man down." He applied for a course in the Seranton school.

HOME FROM CONVENTION.

Fire Chief Armstrong Reports Fine Gathering at Denver.
Fire Chief Armstrong returned on Tuesday night from attending the big fire chiefs' convention at Denver. The convention was one of the best ever held by the association and Kingston's fire chief had the privilege of meeting the best fire fighters in the country, hear addresses from them, and at the same time see how the very best apparatus is operated. He will submit a report to the fire and light committee. There were a thousand chiefs in attendance at the convention.

Col. Roosevelt had a big meeting on in Denver at the same time as the fire chiefs were in session. The chief says that Roosevelt looks like a winner in Denver, but Wilson is the general favorite for president.

Before going to Denver Chief Armstrong attended the convention of the Ontario chiefs, held in Woodstock, and succeeded in having next year's convention come to Kingston. It is expected that one hundred chiefs will assemble here next September.

"DOLLAR DICTATORS"

DENONCED AT MEETING IN COUNTY ARMAGH.

Clashes Between Factions Continue—Sir Edward Carson Says He Has the Best and Truest Men Behind Him.

By Special Cable.
London, Sept. 25.—The Daily Chronicle writes today, editorially, that all Canadians, liberal and conservative, fully believe in home rule with the vicé of William O'Brien, independent nationalist, that there must be modifications before the bill becomes law.

At an Orange meeting in Portadown, county Armagh, last night, there were tremendous demonstrations of defiance when it was announced that nationalist Irishmen in Philadelphia had subscribed twenty thousand dollars for the furtherance of home rule. There were vigorous denunciations of "dollar dictators" in general, and John Redmond in particular. There were processions afterwards, with clashes between factions and charges by police.

At the Ulster secret commission meeting, Sir Edward Carson, yesterday, repudiated the idea that the quarrel could be treated separately. "We want no separate parliament. We will take nothing less than a part of the United Kingdom," he said.

Carson added, turning towards F. E. Smith, "In the name of the end, wherever that leads, I shall have behind me all the best and truest, not merely in Ireland but the United Kingdom."

Mr. Smith, amid a roar of cheers, asked if the prime minister of Ireland, the moderator of the Presbyterian church and the leaders in the Methodist community, were flippant adventures in seeking bloodshed.

Ministerial journals quote approvingly William O'Brien's proposal that a Canadian party, liberal and conservative, arbitrate as to the question which ought to satisfy Ulster. Ulstermen say they know best how to guarantee themselves.
