AN EXPLORER'S WIFE

RECEIVED A FLOWERY WELCOME AT YALE, B.C.

Lady Franklin Paid Visit to the Pacific Coast—A Clergyman Prepared and Read the Address.
In a communication to The Week of Victoria, Mr. John T. Wallbran tells an interesting story of Lady Franklin's visit to the British Columbia coast more than half a century ago.

On Vancouver Island and on the south shore of Johnstone Strait is a steep and rugged range of mountains about 4,000 feet high, named by Captain Richards, in 1861, then in command of H.M. surveying vessel "Hecate," after Sir John Franklin, the Arctic explorer, and Lady Jane Franklin, his wife.

It was on the 22nd February, 1861, that Lady Franklin, then the widow of the gallant sailor, accompanied by her niece, Miss Sophia Cracroft (hence Cracroft Island and on the opposite side of the strait to the Franklin Mountains), arrived at Victoria on a visit, and in March, attended by Lieutenant Hankin of H.M.S. "Hecate," proceeded by river steamer up the Fraser far to Port Yale, as her ladyship desired to see something of the scenery on the river. At Yale, Lady Franklin was enthusiastically welcomed and on leaving was presented with an address. This unique address, which has, to the writer's knowledge, never before been published, is worthy of more than passing mention and was communicated to the writer by her ladyship's naval "side-de-camp" who was present when it was read to Lady Franklin.

The address, as follows, was read by the Rev. William Burton Crickmore, M.A., then the Anglican clergyman at Yale, and no doubt the reverend gentleman had a large share in its composition.
"May it please your ladyship, we the inhabitants of Yale representing well nigh every nation under heaven—stem the present as the proudest moment in the annals of our country and in the existence of our Town.
Today is our Town of Yale forever linked in history with the name of one, the memorial of whose abundant kindness and widely devoted will never die and at whose immortal verities Prince and low down and Kingston Queens of the Earth may envy but never win.
"From the bottom of our hearts do we pray God to bless your ladyship with many happy days, and when 'alled in God's own providence from this holy Church militant, to join the choir in the Church triumphant, may the grave be transmuted, by the touch of a living faith, into the gates of everlasting life and a glory, more lasting than the perishing laurels of Earth, forever crown the daisies brows of the noble pair whom the whole civilized world of Christendom delighted to honor."

History has not recorded Lady Franklin's reply. The address, enclosed on parchment, was placed in a small cedar-wood case and handed to her ladyship.
On returning to Victoria a picnic was organized by the city authorities, etc., to the head of the Victoria Arm and was held on the 21st March when the canoe carrying her ladyship was manned by eight Canadian boatmen in costume. On the 24th, Lady Franklin and her niece left Esquimalt for England, via the Sandwich Islands and Australia, in the steamer Panama, to the strains of Auld Lang Syne played by the band of H.M.S. Topaze.
The address was given to the writer, long after those days, by Commander Hankin, R.N., when nearly all interested parties had passed away, and this gentleman had also told the writer that often on board the Hecate, at the captain's dining table, over the walnuts and the wine, Capt. Richards, smiling around at his guests, would say: "Now Hankin give us the address to Lady Franklin," Commander Hankin laughingly finished by saying, "When, of course, being my superior officer, there was nothing else for me to do but get up and obey."

The Englishman is Ontario.
"Is the labor problem of western Ontario to be settled by the Englishman?" says a Glencoe, Ont., man.
"The present indications point in that direction. A few years ago you could find very few English immigrants in West Middlesex, and only a family or two in Glencoe. To-day you meet fine, intelligent men from the better classes of old England almost everywhere. Among the newer arrivals are mechanics and artisans—men who are proving themselves good citizens."
This opinion represents the experience of many towns and cities in western Ontario, says The London Free Press. There is an immigration into these parts of men from the old land going on to-day that is even more marked than was the immigration which resulted in the settlement of Ontario in large part by this same class of immigrant now approaching a century ago.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.

What Happened in Kingston and Elsewhere in 1887.
The militia department has received a large number of applications of men professing anxiety to enlist in "C" battery in British Columbia. The applications have been declined, as it is believed that most of them were made with the intention of getting free transport to British Columbia, and then not enlisting. Applicants have been advised to join either "A" or "B" batteries.

Bush fires in existence, twelve miles back of Renfrew, are doing great damage to the property of the settlers. Nineteen families have been rendered homeless and the village of Bristol will, if the wind changes, to the southward, be destroyed.
At a meeting of the stockholders of the Kingston Hosiery Company, a dividend of six per cent. was declared. The following directors were re-elected: Messrs. James Minnes, G. Richardson, J. Bredon, S. J. Dewar, J. Richmond, and J. Henton. The company employs one hundred and fifty hands and had orders enough to keep the works busy.
