NORDICA WINS HEARTS

(Of Music Lovers at the Academy, Halifax.)

A feast of music more than royal was enjoyed at the Academy on Sept. 26th, when Lillian Nordica appeared for a second time before a Halifax audience. It is safe to say that no musical event in the history of Halifax ever gave more unalloyed pleasure than the programme in which she was the central figure, and where the violin playing of William Morse Rummel and the pianoforte accompaniments of Romayne Simmons added much to the brilliance of the concert. The concert began with two numbers for the violin by Mr. Rummel. He was encored after three of his four groups. Mr. Rummel's bowing and technique were masterful. A specially catchy number was the Orientals, with its delicate imitation of the Turkish drumming. It is interesting to know that William Morse Rummel is a grandson of Morse, the inventor of the Morse code in telegraphy. Lillian Nordica, as already stated, had been heard on a previous occasion in Halifax. The majesty, sympathy, delicacy and witchery of her voice have lost none of their power. If anything she seemed better than before. As a matter of fact Nordica was in excellent voice. There were five groups of songs, and after each was an encore, which was graciously responded to. The infinite variety of Nordica's voice, its varying moods and shades of beauty were well exemplified. The closing number was the stirring Der Erlkonig, by Schubert, and in the second half was the ever lovely Angels Ever Bright and Fair. Altogether Nordica gave about twenty songs.

Missed His Calling.

Arthur Stringer, the well-known Canadian poet and storywriter, is over six feet tall, deep-chested and broad-shouldered—altogether built on a big plan. He has a summer home—a good-sized farm, in fact—situated on a bluff about sixty feet above Lake Erie. Last fall he carried his row boat, weighing at least 125 pounds, up this incline to put it in the house for the winter. An old man around those parts when he heard of it, marvelled at the feat. "Arthur," he said, "I don't know much about your business, but take it from me, if you'd learn to swing an axe you'd make money."

Fall and Winter Importations.

Prevoost, Brock street, has received all his fall importations for his tailoring department, consisting in suiting and overcoating in great variety of patterns to choose from. Also large stock of ready-made clothing and gents' furnishings. Dr. and Mrs. Shirreff and baby, of Ottawa, are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ballantyne, at the city buildings. Dr. Shirreff has been suffering from a nervous breakdown but is improving nicely. Men's all-wool drawers, 75c. Duton's. Oct. 28th Mr. and Mrs. James Allen, Balderson, celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary. There were presents of gold and easy chairs. Six guests were present and a large number of relatives.

How He Escaped An Operation

And Was Completely Cured of Piles of 14 Years' Standing by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Chas. Beauvais. Doctors say that about one person every four suffers more or less from piles, and who can imagine a more annoying, torturing, disagreeable ailment? After trying a few treatments without success, and as the ailment grows worse, the medical doctor is consulted. An operation, he says, is necessary. You think of this surgery, expense and risk to life itself, and hesitate before taking such a step. In many thousands of such cases Dr. Chase's Ointment has made thorough and lasting cures. Read this letter for the proof. Mr. Charles Beauvais, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Quebec, writes: "For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles, and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief. However, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and obtained great relief from the first box. By the use of three boxes I was entirely cured. This is why it gives me great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles as a treatment of the greatest value." Dr. Chase's Ointment, 64 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The Man On Watch.

The town rifle association is all right, the Lampman says, but he thinks it should bring out and encourage young men who might become good marksmen. The old timers are doing splendid gun work at the ranges, but they are not likely to again become warriors, as some of them were in 1866. The Lampman would suggest that they seek after promising youths and take them across old Cataract bridge to the Barfield hilltop and teach them to shoot.

That Portsmouth should be annexed to Kingston is generally agreed, but if the town council continues to give the village in which the Portsmouth philosopher resides, the privileges enjoyed by the townspeople, there will be no advantage in that place dropping its name and becoming wedding to Kingston, "for better or for worse." The town is handing out to the prison village, electric lighting as cheap as it gives it to townspeople. This and other privileges should have been held out as a bait to the villagers to throw in their lot with those of the limestone town. When the council extends its water and gas systems to the village and also adds police and fire protection, the Portsmouth residents will simply throttle any annexation proposition, should they vote upon it.

With a population two-thirds that of Kingston, the Lampman hopes that the assessment of the town of St. Catharines is almost equal to that of Kingston. This, he thinks, is a most remarkable state of affairs. The reason, he supposes, is that Kingston is cursed with a tremendous amount of exempted property.

How the Lampman envies those lucky townspeople who held stock in the Kingston Skating and Curling rink company, which has made its exit, paying $4.20 on the dollar. And all the time it was thought that the stockholders were doomed to get but a small return. Some stockholders, a long time ago, sold out at fifty cents on the dollar, and are now "as mad as hatters," and casting envious eyes on Lawyer Walkem and others whose motto was "What We Have We'll Hold," and who waited with patience and faith until the bumper harvest time came.

THE TOWN WATCHMAN.

COMING TO THE GRAND.

Various Shows are Booked for Next Few Nights. A riot of color, music, costumes, clean comedy and girls, characterizes John C. Fisher's production of his musical comedy, "The Red Rose," which comes to the Grand tonight. The piece is the result of the collaboration of Harry E. and Robert L. Smith, with a jingling musical score by Robert Hood Bowers, and portrays, in a wholesome manner, the gay student life in Paris. The presenting company is unusually large and has the charming Zoe Barnett as its stellar light. The chorus and ballet play an important part in the production and are said to include some remarkably beautiful women.

Entire English Company.

"The Nest Parmaid," a successful musical comedy played by an All-English company, with the entire English production, will be the attraction at the Grand on Tuesday, October 8th. "The Nest Parmaid" has been played most successfully in every English-speaking country, with the exception of North America, and holds an absolute record for continuous run. The play is described as abounding with clean, wholesome fun from rise to fall of curtain. It describes the fortunes of two children, William and Bertie White. Bertie is affluent, William impecunious. Bertie is a member of the Owlets Club, William a waiter thereat. All sorts and conditions of lads, young and old (mostly young), gay and grave (mostly gay), handsome and otherwise (mostly handsome), contribute to a thoroughly enjoyable and vivacious entertainment.

"The Blindness of Virtue."

Much interest has been aroused in the forthcoming engagement at the Grand, on Wednesday, October 9th, of the Hamilton Dramatic Club, playing "The Blindness of Virtue," which is to be presented by the same splendid organization which appeared during the long run at the Little Theatre, London. According to reports, "The Blindness of Virtue" is a daring indictment against the modern custom of parents permitting their children to grow up in ignorance of certain impulses. The author strikes into the heart of every home, but veils his shaft with a cleverly written and amusing play. The story is that of a vicar in a small town in London who, with his wife, has reared their daughter in ignorance of conditions in the outside world.

May Robson.

"A Night Out" is the title of May Robson's new comedy, of which she is co-author with C. T. Dacey. The type of character selected is that of a very lovable but conceit woman, an old-fashioned grandma, whose generous nature and quaint characteristics invite her in a very funny complication, and find in this innumerable situations of the laugh-producing character. Miss Robson will assume the role of Gramum, supported by an excellent company. There are many well-known players in the cast. The play will be seen at the Grand on Thursday, October 10th.

The marriage of John A. Beatty, Kerrobert, Sask., and Miss Violet M. McClain, Morlen, Man., takes place on Oct. 9th. Mr. Beatty is well known in Tweed. Miss Sarah M. Cowell, died, yesterday, at Foxboro village, after having been ill for several months. Deceased was forty-three years of age. J. J. Johnson, Merrickville, has been appointed postmaster at that place in succession to the late S. Jakes.
