R. WALDRON

LATE WILLIAM GLIDDEN LAURIER WAS HAILED

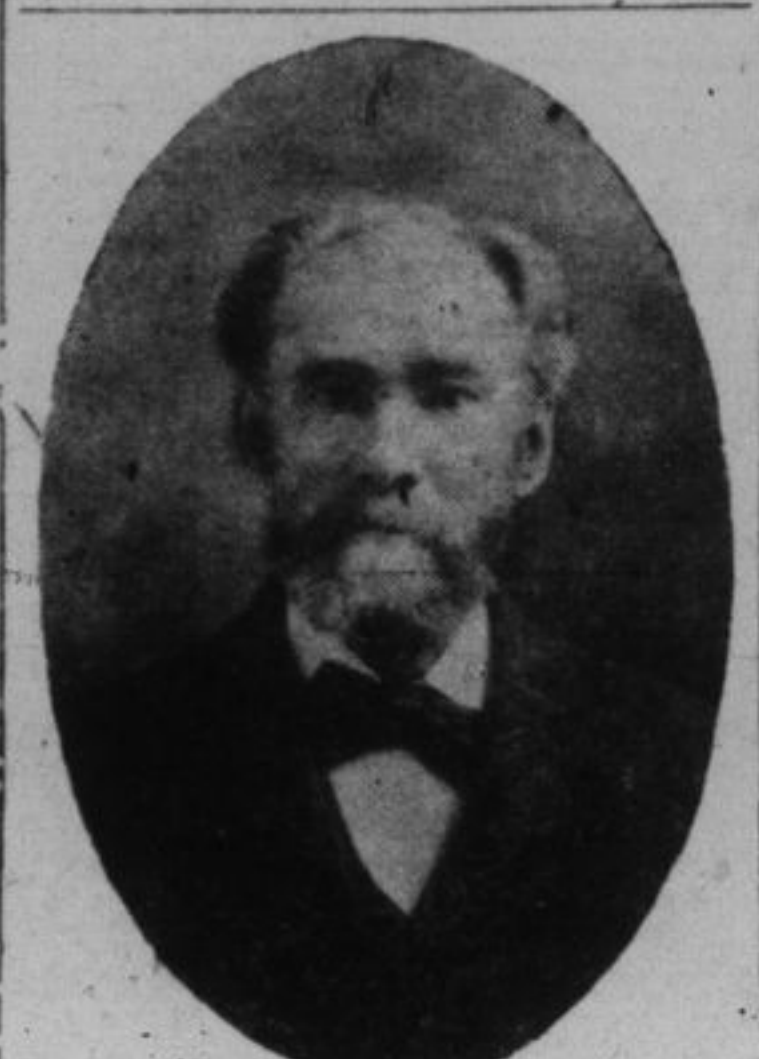

THE FORMER LICENSE INSPECTOR, DIED MONDAY NIGHT.

BY THOUSANDS OF LIBERALS AT MOUNT FOREST.

He was a Native of England—The Oldest Printer in Kingston—Entered the Old Herald Office Sixty-three Years Ago.

The death occurred at his home, on Brock street, on Monday evening, at nine o'clock, of William Glidden, after an extended illness. The late Mr. Glidden was a native of Cornwall, England, but left there when about eight years of age, and came to Canada, with his parents, settling in Kingston in September 1845.

The deceased was a printer by trade, having entered the business sixty-three years ago, and was the oldest printer in Kingston. At the age of thirteen, he entered the Herald office, as an apprentice. At that time the Herald was conducted by the late M. I. Green, in the building now known as the O.K. house, at the corner of Brock and Ontario streets. Few are living today who can recall the Herald, and fewer still can remember it being issued at that building. Mr. Glidden remained with the firm for three years, then he went to Picton, where he remained for three years. While in Picton the deceased helped to get out the first issue of the Picton Times, then published by Robert Boyle, a former resident of Kingston. In 1856 Mr. Glidden, having completed his apprenticeship, returned to Kingston and entered the employment of the Whig, which was then owned by the late Dr. Edward J. Barker. After a sojourn there of about three or four months, he accepted a position with the Daily News, where he remained as a compositor, pressman and job printer for many years. For a time in 1864, he was employed by the British-American newspaper of this city.

Mr. Glidden set out, in 1875, for a larger field of labor, and went to New York City, where he followed his trade for nearly three years in different offices. Later he returned to Kingston and again accepted a position with the News, where he remained for some little time, but left again to accept a position in the Lincoln paper mills. He returned again to the city after a year.

In 1879 he was appointed liquor license inspector, the position which he held until 1905, when the Whitney government came into power, and then he was relieved of his position, which he filled faithfully and satisfactorily.

In his younger days, the deceased was a great lover of athletics and for years was a member of the Kingston Cricket Club. There are many to-day who will recall the time when Mr. Glidden was in the game.

In politics the deceased was a strong liberal, and attended Synhenham Street Methodist church.

The late Mr. Glidden was a man of very quiet and unassuming nature. He was not a member of any society. Five years ago he, with four other friends, crossed the ocean, to visit their birthplace. Since that time two of the party have passed away. Mr. Glidden is survived by his widow, one son, John, of Sibley, and a brother, John N. Glidden, of Cleveland.

Crowds Paraded the Streets—The Liberal Chief's Ontario Tour Ended in Brilliance.

Mount Forest, Oct. 8.—It was a great reception that Sir Wilfrid Laurier got here last night from a crowd of fully fifteen thousand people. Thousands who could not be accommodated in rink or hall resolved themselves into a series of voluntary processions, and paraded the streets, repeating in rhythmic tones their slogan, "All returning to Laurier." Many ladies were taking part in these processions, carrying long Lydon sticks, while most of the men were equipped with torches. At every street corner the dense procession would pause while some stalwart, called for "three cheers and a tiger for Laurier," which were given with thunderous enthusiasm.

The liberal chief was in unusually brilliant form, evidently inspired by the marked evidence of affection and loyalty to himself and the old cause which greeted him at every turn.

To place before the people of Ontario the liberal position, freed from the confusion of the campaign, a year and more removed from the "smoke of battle," was Sir Wilfrid's definition of the tour just closing. In laudatory language the chief alluded to the remarkable character of his reception and inspiration he was carrying away from this province. As he came to the front of the platform with his final message six young ladies, daintily gowned in white, and each bearing aloft a union jack, surrounded him and draped the patriotic bunting over his head in a graceful arch. Then two tiny little maidens placed huge bouquets in either of his arms, while the great gathering stood cheering until it spontaneously lapses into the strains of "O Canada," led by the killed band.

It was a picturesque touch that provoked an enthusiastic response from the throng. Sir Wilfrid was evidently moved. "I have come to you as a defeated man," said he, "and you you have received me like this. I have no lamentations for defeat. Every dog has his day, and I believe there is another for us. I am sure Mr. Borden might well envy me under the arch and amid such happy surroundings." Then the crowd cheered again.

Sir Wilfrid completed his trip in splendid spirits. Each of his speeches rang with vitality, optimism and courage. His quaint touches of humor were never more telling, his similes never more scintillating.

DIVIDEND FROM THE ONTARIO BANK

Double Liability Call Brings in $1,400,000—Payment Within Year.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—There is a likelihood that a dividend will be paid to Ontario bank shareholders within the next year. This is brought about by the fact that so far on the double liability call the sum of $1,400,000 has been realized. This is more than enough to meet the liabilities and there is already in hand about $200,000 that will be paid back in the form of a dividend.

The rate of the dividend cannot be accurately stated as the shareholders who were not good for the full amount of the "call" do not qualify for a dividend until it exceeds the amount of their deficiency.

THE CONTRACT AWARDED

To Jago and Harris, Toronto, for Workmen's Houses.

Jago and Harris, Toronto, have secured the contract for the erection of the thirty mechanics' houses for the Kingston Healthies, on its property on Stephen street. The award of the same has been held up for some time owing to the unsatisfactory tenders being made in some cases. A few local contractors figured also, but the Toronto firm will do the work. Jago and Harris are now working on the foundry of the Canadian Locomotive company.

A representative of the Toronto builders told the Whig on Tuesday morning that the work could be commenced next week and pushed to the limit. If possible they are to be ready for occupancy by the first of the year. The plans are somewhat modified. Owing to the scarcity of labor in the city it is likely that outside men will be brought in.

COMPANY TO INSTALL

Shower Baths and Cloo House for Locomotive Employees.

The Canadian Locomotive company has among its proposals a plan to cater to the comfort and pleasure of the men employed. It has been said that, as the work enlarges, a club house, with reading rooms, games, etc., will be provided, in which to entertain the men during the evenings and form a centre.

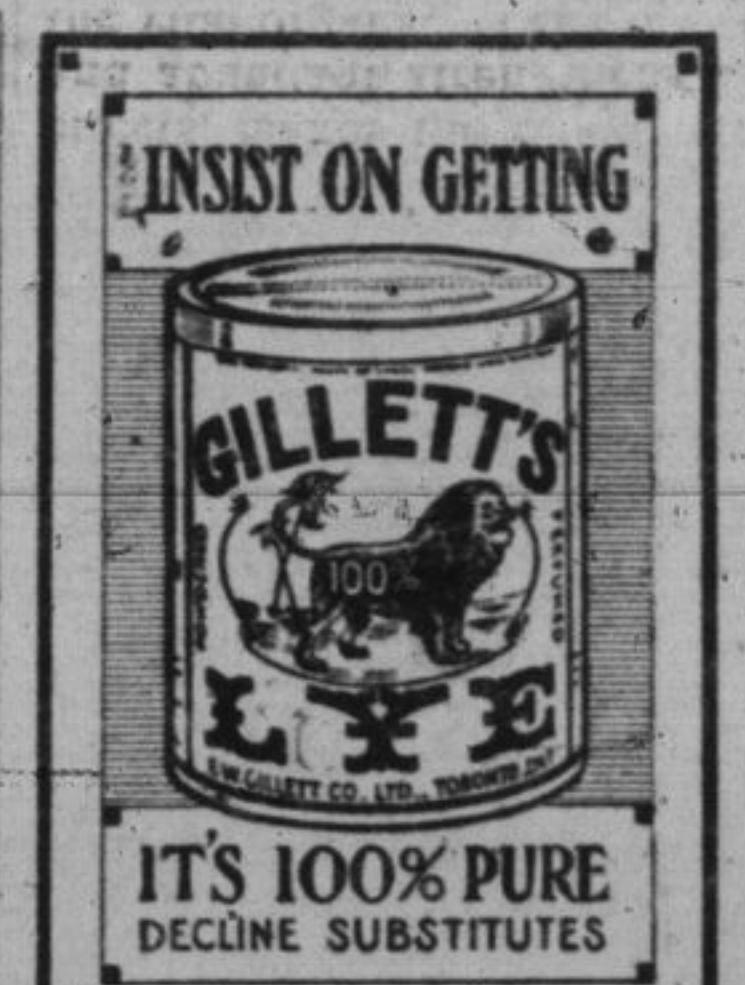

A representative told the Whig on Tuesday morning that shower baths would be installed for the use of the men in the foundry, which is now in course of construction.

SAYS HE WAS ASSAULTED

A resident of Stanley street was at the police station Tuesday morning, and as a result of his visit one of his neighbors will be summoned to appear before the magistrate on a charge of assault. He claims that, without any provocation whatever, his neighbor, who has been a "great source of trouble, hit him in the face.

LAD'S COLLAR BONE BROKEN

A young son of Matthew Sison, William street, had his collar bone broken while playing football on the Kingston & Pembroke laws last Monday. He was not hit by G. G. W. Myles, in his last goal, but was running down the field, for touch, when he tripped and fell.
