FESTIVAL OF EMPIRE

CONTINUES TO DRAW CROWDS TO ARMOURIES.

"My Lord in Livery" Will be the Playlet Presented This Evening—The Booths Are All Doing a Good Business.

The Festival of the Empire goes merrily on in the armouries. The workers go home in the evenings fatigued, but return the next morning or afternoon with fresh vigor.

Col. H. R. Duff, chairman, and all the convener and workers, are well pleased with the many features of the festival, up to Wednesday, having been congratulated on all sides. With the aid of the weather man, Thursday, Friday and Saturday ought to be bumper days for the festival. All who have not yet been to the armouries are witnessing the splendid affair should hasten.

Wednesday evening the festival was well attended, considering the inclement weather. All the features were equally as good as on Tuesday evening and some of them were improved. The 14th regimental band supplied the music from one of the galleries. The grand march scored another "hit," by its completeness and elegance and variety of costumes and uniform.

What was declared by many to be one of the most appreciated and cleverest amateur theatricals, seen on such occasions, was the musical absurdity, "Crazed," produced on the stage in the gun shed, under the direction of Colonel J. H. V. Crowe, commandant of the R.M.C. As on Tuesday evening two performances were given, "Mr. Smith," (Major J. P. Shine), who was writing a play, and "Mr. Brown" (Col. Crowe) a playwright, dwell in the same house. As is often the case amusing things occur. "Sally" (Miss H. Crowe) was the other character. The songs, music and dancing, were good. Charles Harvey acted as "musical director," and W. E. Bassam as one of the errands.

"My Lord in Livery," under the direction of Capt. Priddleaux, will be presented every evening for the remainder of the week.

The dances and songs at the entertainment in the Indian booth are an attraction.

There was another rush for places at the tables for high tea in the evening. The Congregational and Baptist ladies served splendid meals. The Anglicans will "operate" this department on Thursday evening.

It has been announced that Friday and Saturday will be bargain days at the fancy work booth.

The farm produce booth, made possible by the generosity of the farmers, is doing a profitable business. Chairman J. A. Minnes, with H. Macpherson, secretary, and the ladies, are handling large quantities of the offerings of the soil.

The flower booth is considered by many to be the prettiest in the place.

A number of the nurses from the general hospital are noticed at the South African booth, also mingling among the crowd, disposing of programmes, drawing tickets, etc.

An official programme should be secured by everybody. It is most attractively printed, and contains all information. It is the best souvenir of the show.

The fur shows of John McKay and George Mills & Co. are handsome. T. F. Harrison, W. A. Mitchell, W. J. Crothers and the Newman Electric company also have good exhibits.

The programme put on in the gun shed on Wednesday afternoon, by a number of the pupils of Victoria, Louise, Frontenac, Macdonald and Sydenham schools was of high order.

Choruses were sung by thirty boys "Hall the Land," and "O Canada." G. Montgomery recited "The Plaintive Kettle," and recitations, "Things Inside" and "Hands All Round" were given by K. Elliot and H. Jack respectively. "The Flag above the school-house door" was recited by J. Chown.

Songs, "There's Only One Flag," "The Carnival," and "Jolly Jack" were sung by C. Dyack, H. Williams, and W. Evans. Goldie Bartels, in her winning manner, played an ete from Faust on the violin. W. Fyfe and G. Kirkpatrick sang "Hall of Good King George." C. Vokes, G. Macdonald, J. Renton, D. Hughes, Van Mills and R. Hughes took part in the saluting of the flag, the latter being the bearer.

Miss I. G. Bureau, was the convener of the committee which trained the children, namely, Misses C. Lovick, L. Allen, E. English,

A. Kelly, M. Volume, and S. Gill. The accompanists were Miss M. Meek, A. J. Bates, C. Hazlett, and L. Dyde.

A HAVEN FOR BIRDS

Has Been Purchased by Mrs. Russell Sage.

New York, Oct. 9.—A gift of $150,000 by Mrs. Russell Sage in behalf of the birds of North America is announced. Mrs. Sage has spent approximately this sum in the purchase of Marsh Island, southwest of New Orleans, Louisiana, with the intention of dedicating it in perpetuity as a refuge for wild birds.

The island, 75,000 acres in area, has long been a great resort for market hunters, since it is a famous winter feeding ground for ducks and geese, as well as smaller migratory birds. It is a 13,000 bird refuge on Vermilion Bay, given by other wealthy donors to the state of Louisiana.

It is a matter of record that during twelve months of the killing season of 1909-1910, the enormous total of 4,365,585 game birds was slaughtered in Louisiana.

Scourge of Drunkenness in France

Paris, Oct. 10.—Again a unanimous call is being heard for some check to the terrible scourge of alcoholism.

The people of the Scandinavian countries are being pointed to. Fifty years ago they had fallen to the lowest degree of brutality and were almost lost by the abuse of spirits, but in two generations they have, by reforms in the liquor traffic, undergone complete regeneration. Cannot France, it is asked, do for herself what Sweden has done?

Clayton, N.Y., Oct. 10.—The village board has granted a perpetual franchise to the Watertown Light and Power company, for the purpose of furnishing light, power and electricity to the river town. GREATEST INVENTION

EDISON SAYS IT IS HIS STORAGE BATTERY.

Cost Between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 to Perfect—But Wizard Claims It Will Revolutionize Certain Phases of the Entire Transportation Field.

New York, Oct. 10.—Thomas A. Edison has struck another resounding chord upon the harp of fame. This time it is a storage battery that furnishes the theme, but it is a battery as different from the commonly known type of lead battery, as the wonderful moving picture camera is different from the first kodak or the brilliant tungsten lamp is different from the yellow, smoky incandescent light.

The "Wizard" himself says that his new battery is the greatest accomplishment of his life. It represents ten years of labor and the expenditure of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. One machine alone which he invents to wind the tubes of the battery to prevent them from buckling cost $1,500,000. Mr. Edison raked and scraped the earth to discover the elements for his battery, and he found that those more suitable were nearest at hand—nickel and steel. The new battery costs twice as much as the old lead storage battery, but its efficiency, life and many other points there is said to be no comparison.

Of the 150 railway, financial and engineering men who made the trip from the Pennsylvania station in New York to Long Branch in beach storage battery train, few were there who were not skeptics at the end of the journey, and their claim that the new Edison storage battery is destined to revolutionize certain phases of transportation, was unchallenged. The twenty-five-mile trip each way was made on schedule time about fifty-five minutes each way, with a net cost of power of less than $2. There were no delays or accidents and the only way one could know that the three-car train was being propelled by power within itself, was to lift up the seats in the cars and observe the rows of silent cells beneath each seat.

Experience has shown that a trolley line requires a power station generating 600 h.p. to move a three-car train over its lines under all conditions. Experts assert that a 100 h.p. Edison battery installation accomplishes the same work. The reason for this is that each car is on the multiple unit system, that is, each car is complete within itself, requiring nothing outside the power in its own battery cells to propel it. The storage battery system does away with overhead wires and poles, bonding of rails and the entire equipment of a trolley line system, to say nothing of the saving in depreciation charges.

In the ordinary storage battery direct car, the battery cost is figured at seven cents per car mile, or seven dollars per one hundred miles. The expense in connection with the Edison battery is placed at ten cents per hundred miles. The ordinary lead battery has a life of two or three years at the most. The Edison battery is guaranteed for five years, has been in actual operation for six years, and severe factory tests give it an estimated life of from ten to fifteen years. The cost of construction of an Edison storage battery street-car system is said to be about twenty-five per cent. of the ordinary trolley system.

The greatest service is expected to come in the branch line field of railroads, those costly, but necessary, tinclades of all great railroad systems. The cost of hauling the extra freight of an ordinary lead battery system for car lighting, as compared with the lead batteries, is about $900 a year, the old lead batteries for a six-car train weighing 2,800 pounds, as compared with the weight of 800 pounds for the Edison batteries. There are seventy-two uses to which the new batteries can be put which, though practically the entire gamut of electrical operations.

A SMALL SEAL CATCH.

The Behring Sea Season the Poorest in Years.

Washington, Oct. 10.—The fur seal-17 season in the Behring Sea has closed with the smallest killing of seals in many years and a total absence of Pelagic sealing, according to reports to the Department of Commerce and Labor. The result has been a considerable increase in the number of seals which were threatened with extinction by the wanton slaughter of Pelagic sealers.

The total number killed of the Priofol Islands during the season was 3,764, considerably less than the average in the past. These were killed by American government hunters in January. The seals will be sold in London in January, the proceeds to be distributed among the United States, Great Britain, Russia and Japan, in accordance with the terms of the treaty signed by those powers for the preservation of the seal there.
