BETTER TO BE HOG THAN HU-

Dr. Wiley Tells How Government Will Aid Sick Animals, but Not Con-

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, in a lecture at Wellesley, Mass., said it is better to be a steer than a man, because the steer is treated with more consideration. Then he added :

"Here is an instance where it is better to be a fat hog than a woman with consumption. This special case hapsened in one of the states of the middle west. A woman with a child was stricken with tuberculosis. She applied to the state, then the federal government, for assistance, but was told that there was no appropriation to

But in that same town there was farmer who had a fat hog taken ick with cholera. He wired to Washington about it, collect. In an hour he received a reply. It read: 'keep your hog alive for twenty-four hours and our men will be there.' The next day three men from the Department of Agriculture arrived. They treated the hog and the animal recovered. The fat hog fared better than the woman with tuberculosis. "People in this country should die per annum in the United States. This

by Storm In Alberta.

Mrs. Isabella Carstairs saturated the supreme court of Alberta with language recently in the style of the Scottish kailyard literature. She was giving evidence designed to show that one John Anderson had assaulted her with intent to do her bodily harm. Mr. Justice Stuart was on the bench, Mr. Gibson was defending Auderson; Mr. Cogswell, the agent for the Attorney-General, was prosecuting. The stage being fixed, Mrs. Isabella Carstairs, proceeded to tell the court exactly what she thought, knew, imagined and believed about the case.

The court looked on in awed surprise while the witness demolished the English language with, an accent that buzzed with its Scottish burr. The court stenographer stayed his pencil to look on in rapt admiration of such a flow of seemingly intelligible language. The clerk of the court awoke from his gentle reverie.

Mr. Gibson, presuming upon all the authority lent the counsel wearing robes within the sacred precincts of the mahogany-veneer rail attempted to question Mrs. Isabella. He did not get far. He was understood to suggest something intoxicating. The lady with the Scottish accent hurled back

"I ken ye roo, she said, scorning the questioning counsel. "But ye no can catch me wi' the likie o' that. ken I take a drappy, or two, once in a while, the while or noo. But I ken that we nee can mak' this fine judge believe what ye're about to say concerning me. Nac. yer hor.or; I'm nac sacing as to what I nae have ever taken a wee drappy, any mair than I'm saeing ye never took drappy yer-sel.' But for that young mon there to tell ye he kens that I had taken o'ermuch when that mon Jock Anderson assaulted me with intent to do me sae mooch bodily harra. I ken your lordships knows as that it is not true. Nae that I'm denying as what I tak' a drappy once in a lang, lang while. I'd tak' a drap the noo, if the court wish. An' if your lordship would care to tak 'anything wi' me, it's nae for me to say but what I would under such circumstances tak' a wee drappy, prechance; but for that young man there to suggest is different a't'gether from your lordship pair-tak'in' a wee somethin' with mee—"

But his lordship had to refrain from laughing when the lady from the land of Flora Macdonald was so gracious to him. He called a halt. "Stop, stop. stop," pleaded the court; "and let's hear what the case is about, any.

John Anderson was found guilty on charge of common assault, which the judge thought should never have been sent up to his court at all. Mrs. Carstairs neted as cook in the Anderson restaurant at Calder. Sentence

Incident of the War.

"Talking about omens," said the ex-Canadian soldier, "a queer thing happened in the Boer war. "A troop of mounted rifles were returning after a hard day's scouting to our camp near Middleburg, in the eastern part of the Transvaal. On our way back we had to pass the town cemetery, which was on the side of a hill. Near the gate of the cemetery stood a shed in which was kept the town hearse. "The doors of this building were $3.50 Recipe Free ome manner the blocks which were usually kept under the wheels of the hearse must have become dislodged, for the hearse rolled down the hill into the middle of our party, who scattered in all directions.

AT VICTORIA'S COURT.

Lady-In-Waiting's Book Gives Interesting Details of Da . Life.

There are not a few people, bearing in mind Queen Victoria's strict sense of decorum and dignified manners. who imagine that Court life in the There is nothing "just as good" as 'forties and 'fifties was very dull and uninteresting. This view, however, should be dispelled by the picture of Court life presented by "The Corre-spondence of Sarah Spencer, Lady You can't stop his grinding, but you Lyttelton," who was lady-in-waiting ! can prevent him grinding it at your to Queen Victoria and governess to the royal youngsters for some years. There is one sure, swift way to do it.

got such shouts of laughter that he was abashed. Here is another incident related in Lady Lyttelton's own words: "We have been struggling through the coldest day in this winter; so iar everybody, from the tailor to Prince Albert, has come in with red nose and tingling fingers. Such a hurri-cane of northeast wind, such dark clouds, absent sun, and hard obduracy of black frost I never saw. I said to the prince: 'Will your Roya! Send ten cents in postage or silver Highness consent to look over the quarterly accounts which I have just brought down? H.R.H.: 'Yes, cermarriage: "We have, I begin to notice," says Lady Lyttelton, "rather a raised tone of conversation of late-many bits of information and naval matters and scientific subjects come up and are talked of very pleasantly at dinner. The prince, of course, encourages such subjects, and no gossip has been stirring since we have been here, but many things are said daily which I am sorry to forget. The prince and Queen are reading Hallam's 'Consti-tutional History of England' together most carefully, and for a light, book 'St. Simon's Memoirs.' Elephants Rocked the Boat. A queer elephant yarn is told by the captain of a trading steamboat in The London Telegram. On one occasion he had on board a cargo of forty elephants. The vessel was anchored in a perfectly smooth sea off the coast of Zanzibar, but to the great surprise of the passengers the steamer began

At first they supposed the motion to be caused by the ground swell, but when the motion kept increasing there was general alarm, and the captain started un investigation.

Then it was revealed that the elehants had in some way found that by swaying to and fro all together a rocking motion was produced that seemed to please them immensely. So the great heads and Bodies rolled and swung in unison until the steamer, which had no other cargo and rode lightly, was in imminent danger of rolling clean over. The attendants hurried down into their hold and, after a great deal of shouting and IN THE MOST thumping, managed 's stee dan-

A Merry Old Widow.

One of the most remarkable instances of long life was that of the Countess of Desmond. This merry widow died in 1694, having survived her husband, the twelfth earl, seventy years. She retained her faculties to the last, could walk ten miles a day of 140, and according to the inscrip-tion on her portrait at Muckross Abbey, Killarney, "in ye course of her long pilgrimage renewed her toeth twice." The countees appeared likely to beat all records for longevity, when, relates Sir William Temple, "she must needs climb a nut tree to gather nuts; so, failing down, she hurt her thigh, which brought on a fever, and that brought death."

A Princely Gift.

Perhaps the most magnificent gift ever made by any individual to any nation was the presentation by Lady Wallace to the English nation of her husband's remarkable art collection in 1897. It contains over 600 pictures of every school, including thirteen by Sir Joshua Reynolds, furniture. china and objects of art innumerable, of a value between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. It was left absolutely to he nation, the only stipulation beng that it should be kept distinctfrom othe national collections.
