AT COOKE'S CHURCH HISTORICAL SOCIETY

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES WERE HELD ON SUNDAY.

Rev. Dr. Gordon, Principal of Queen's, and Prof. W. Morgan, D.D., Preachers for the Day—Members of Choir in Gowns.

Cooke's Presbyterian church has passed another milestone in its history, and the anniversary services, held on Sunday, were largely attended, the sermons of a helpful nature, while the choir rendered appropriate music. Rev. Dr. Gordon, principal of Queen's University, preached in the morning, the pulpit in the evening being occupied by Prof. W. Morgan, D.D., of Queen's University.

The pastor, Rev. J. W. Macintosh, was present at the services, and in the morning, made a brief reference to the anniversary, pointing out that the church had had a most successful year. The members of the choir wore their gowns, for the first time, and the pastor, in referring to the innovation, stated that he regarded it as one which added to the sacredness of the services.

Dr. Gordon preached a forceful sermon on the ministry of Christ, taking as his text two passages of scripture, John XVII-18: "As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world," and John XX, 21: "Then said Jesus to them again: Peace be unto you: As my father has sent me even so send I you."

The speaker told the story of Christ and His service of self sacrifice. His ministry was one of revelation; if we could see Him we could not help but be drawn towards Him. The life of Christ was one of self-sacrifice, and He met with a response. The church to-day, was called upon to manifest Christ among the children of men. Christ served others, and it was in this work, we would receive our greatest blessing. Our life was not one to be always receiving, but we should be giving. We should not serve simply for our own salvation, but for the salvation of others. This was the great secret of the example set by Christ. There was great need for us to get back to His ministry.

At the evening service, Prof. Morgan delivered a strong sermon dealing with the opportunities for Christian service. One did not need to be a preacher to do this work. One could do good, by simply helping others. There were people everywhere who looked upon everything in a gloomy spirit, instead of looking upon things from the bright side. The ministry of Christ was one of encouragement, and we had it in our power, to encourage one another. In times of war, we were ever ready to give their support to the men at the front, but not as ready to give their support in the fighting of our moral battles. Even if we were not in the fighting line, there was a part we could play. It was in showing our interest and sympathy in the work.

The music by the choir was excellent. In the morning, in addition to selections by the choir, there was a quartette composed of Misses Roy, Rosevear and Misses G. B. McCallum, and Harry Elson. In the evening, Angus Orr rendered a solo, and Misses Tweedell and Rosevear a duet.

If you have only a little less energy than your duties require, life is a burden.

If you have just a little excess of energy, life is a joy. Good, rich, red blood and an abundance of it will give you the excess of energy. Sailors' Snug Harbor is closed for the winter, and J. F. Owens, who has been in charge of it during the past season, has left for Port Arthur. To take up residence as steward of the sailors' institute there, Mr. Owens was well liked here. During the past season he made many friends, all of whom were sorry to see him depart. He is an old salt water man, and has seen lots of hardships, having been shipwrecked several times.

ADDRESS BY PROF. C. M. WRONG, OF TORONTO.

Who Spoke of "A Canadian Manor and its Seigniors" Queen's University on Saturday Night.

Professor C. M. Wrong, of Toronto, addressed a largely-attended meeting of the Kingston Historical Society on Saturday evening, in the English room of the new arts building on "A Canadian Manor and its Seigniors."

The picture of a French-Canadian pastoral community was drawn in a thoroughly interesting manner and the character of the French language was brought out, showing its virtues and peculiarities. The meeting was in charge of Canon Starr who, in his new capacity as president of the society, made briefly, introducing the speaker, the first of the society's winter addresses.

Professor Wrong described the French-Canadian village with its seignior and its curate, the former the survivor of the seigniorial system of "land holding, and the latter the spiritual guide of the people. He remarked the divergence in the type between the people of Ontario and the people of Quebec; the former the representatives of the Teutonic type, and the latter of the Roman. The former the representatives of one religious branch, the latter with a few exceptions representing the other. The Roman type gave the world its magnificent conception of authority which still marks the French-Canadian community. The Teutonic type has always laid emphasis on the rights of the individual, which marks strongly the people of Ontario.

Overseas travellers have remarked the beautiful uniformity of the people of the United States. One who visits our two large eastern provinces must be prepared for a change. The one is almost the converse of the other.

Among the virtues of the French-Canadian system of living, Professor Wrong laid great stress on the zeal of the curate in establishing boarding schools, which gave a good life and good training to children of all classes, even to the very poor. The religious side of life was impressed on the child's character with tremendous vividness, and the moral seal was very high. The village drunkard was practically unknown in many of these communities, almost all of which had prohibition.

The speaker said a good word for the seigniorial system. It supplied the country with leaders and diffused among the common people a cultured element almost unknown in our rural districts in Ontario.

He described the curate's life and influence and told of the title system which gives the curate one-twenty-sixth of the grain crop. It also allows the curate the twenty-sixth child born in any family so fortunate as to reach this mark. It is interesting to note, he said, that this title is now mostly paid to the curate in the French-Canadian village.

Professor Wrong also remarked on the tenacity of the Canadian habit of holding to his ideals. Our problem, he said, was to live side by side with a people so divergent from us in their ideals, and to work out jointly with them the common interests of Canada and the empire.

Dean Bidwell moved a hearty vote of thanks for the splendid discourse which had given. The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King.

Concert at Cataragi.

The programme opened with a grand march by all in costume, followed by a chorus of over thirty voices. Many remarks were heard regarding the vocal talent and ability of the young people of Cataragi. It has been decided to repeat the concert.

Heart Disease Was the Cause—Deceased Was a Veteran Shoemaker, Having Been Employed by Two Old Kingston Houses.

William Dowsley, a resident of Kingston for nearly half a century, died in a chair in the Frontenac hotel early Saturday afternoon. The cause of death was heart disease, of which he has suffered for some time. One of the attacks of the deceased had not been ill a day during his lifetime. The late Mr. Dowsley was sitting in a chair in one of the hotel rooms when the end came.

The deceased, who was sixty-four years of age, was born in Prescott, and during the greater part of his life followed the boot and shoe business, being with the late William Allan and John Offord. He was of a quiet nature, a liberal in politics, and a member of the ancient Order of United Workmen and Chosen Friends.

He is survived by his widow, three sons and three daughters: William H. of the city; T. G. of Montreal; B. J. of Toronto; Miss Jennie, of Toronto, and the Misses Lillian and Margaret, at home. EVIDENCE AS TO CHRIST.

Sermon in St. Andrew's by Rev. A. S. Kerr, of Belleville.

On Sunday, in the absence of Rev. S. J. M. Compton, who was conducting anniversary services in St. Andrew's church, Belleville, Rev. A. S. Kerr, B.A., the pastor of that church, occupied the pulpit in St. Andrew's, Kingston, at both services. His morning sermon was preached from Luke vi, 23.

In this verse he showed how Jesus gave evidence rather than an affirmative to the question of John the Baptist, "Art thou he that should come?" He said that the religion of Christ was self-evident, and gives men the basis of a reasonable belief. Man in his modern era requires evidence as to the Christian. The great men of the world ever since Christ, have testified as to Him. He satisfies the instinctive longing of the human heart. He gives the peace of God which passeth all understanding and transfigures the characters of those who believe on Him. He is to the Christian a practical help in trouble and temptation, and with this evidence we believe in Him.

ADDRESS BY PROF. KNIGHT

In Heredity at Y.M.C.A. Meeting, Sunday Afternoon.

The hall of the Y.M.C.A. was crowded, on Sunday afternoon, to hear Prof. A. P. Knight, Queen's University, give an address on "Heredity," in dealing with this subject, the speaker stated that criminals and paupers inherit their diseases. The best way to deal with these classes is to shut them up in an institution, the wife in as part and the husband in another, and in this way fewer criminals would be born into the world.

The professor said he was well pleased with the stand that W. F. Nickle, M.P., had taken with regard to prison labor. The men should be worked instead of being kept in cells, as has been the custom.

The First Congregational orchestra, under the leadership of H. E. Smith, furnished music. It is the purpose of the association to have meetings every Sunday afternoon.

Sunday Skaters suffered.

A number of young people had their first skate of the season at Cato's pasture, on Sunday. Some of the pleasure-seekers stayed on the ice a little too long, as it commenced to get soft in the afternoon, and besides having their first skate they also had their first "duck." One lady went through and sank in the mud and water up to her neck. A number of young men were seen fooling around one of the soft spots and one went through up to his waist.

Andrew Latta, Belleville, aged sixty-seven years, was found apoplexiated in a rooming house in Toronto. He had just returned from Manitoba and was on his way to Belleville.
