YOUR GREY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made From Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs which unfortunately are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hair, however, handsome it may be, makes a person look old. We all know the advantages of being young. Aside from the good impression a youthful appearance makes on others, simply knowing that you are "looking fit," gives one courage to undertake and accomplish things. So why suffer the handicap of looking old on account of gray hairs, when a simple remedy will give your hair youthful color and beauty in a few days time?
Most people know that common garden sage acts as a color restorer and scalp tonic as well. Our grandmothers used a "Sage Tea" for keeping their hair dark, soft and luxuriant. In Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy we have an ideal preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp and thin, weak hair that is split at the ends or constantly coming out. A few applications of this valuable remedy will bring back the color, and in a short time it will remove every trace of dandruff and greatly improve the growth and appearance of the hair.
Get a fifty-cent bottle from your druggist to-day, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' treatment. All druggists sell it, under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Agent, G. W. Mahood.

QUEEN'S ARTS DINNER

JOHN LEWIS, TORONTO STAR, THE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER.

Dr. G. R. Parkin Was Unable to Attend, Owing to Illness—Prof. Dale, of McGill, Spoke to the "University" Toast.

The fourth annual Arts dinner on Thursday evening ably sustained the past reputation of the Arts Society, for providing excellent gastronomic and oratorical treats. The outside speakers included John Lewis of the Toronto Star, and Prof. Dale of McGill University. Dr. G. R. Parkin who was to have spoken, sent a telegram regarding his inability to be present, because of illness.

In replying to the toast, "Canada," which was ably proposed by Prof. Ferguson, Mr. Lewis paid a tribute to the late Principal Grant, whom he described as an ardent Imperialist and a fervent advocate of self-government. He agreed with the late principal that a university should be collective in its aim but independent in its ideas, and he assumed this attitude as regards Canada. He was an ardent advocate of self-government and he wanted to see Canada independent in carrying out its ideals. There was a danger of too much uniformity at present and the duty of the university was to foster original thought. He would not seek to throw the Victoria or Quebec trends of thought—such diversity of feeling would make Canadian views broader and add to Canada's wealth as a nation. He was opposed to the centralization of the British Empire—opposed to surrendering the self-government which had been won by our pioneer forefathers. These pioneers had done great things in the past, in spite of discouragement. They had confederated the provinces of Canada into a dominion and they had conquered almost insuperable difficulties and built the C.P.R. This was the attitude which we should take towards our problems and solve them along the same lines of progress.

Mr. Lewis was not in favor of postponing the building of a Canadian navy for twenty-five or fifty years. It was not as difficult a task as the building of the C.P.R. some forty years ago. At least, if we decided not to build a navy, we wouldn't admit that we couldn't build it if we desired to do so. He then gave his idea of real patriotism, as distinguished from mere flag-waving, claiming that self-sacrifice was its essence.

The toast to the "University of Canada," was proposed by Prof. A. L. Grant, who eloquently set forth the place of the university in national life, to give to the world, citizens and scholars in the best sense of the word. It was replied to by Dr. John Watson and Prof. Dale, of McGill. The former told of the growth of Queen's from the time that he first joined the staff in 1872. Prof. Dale, in a most felicitous manner, referred to the great activities of Prof. John MacNaughton at McGill and at the same time gave it as his idea that the two aims for a university should be to seek to build up an outer physical empire and an empire in the mind of man—an empire that abided.

"The Faculty of Queen's," proposed by H. L. Spankie in a stirring speech, elicited a humorous and characteristic response from Dean Cappon, the Whylock, B.A. toast. "The Under-graduates of Our Canadian Universities," and the representatives from University College, McGill, Ottawa, McMaster and the Royal Military College, responded with brief speeches. In the absence of the president of the Arts Society, J. K. Lowry, vice-president Bennie fulfilled the duties of toastmaster.

The Queen's quartette, consisting of Messrs. McCallum, Trussdale, Manhard and McRee, rendered a vocal selection during the evening, which was greatly appreciated and brought forth rounds of applause, and Salsbury's orchestra provided an excellent musical programme while the dinner was being served. The gathering was also enlivened by yells and songs from the different years. Altogether the dinner was a complete success and reflects great credit on the committee in charge which consisted of—general convener, C. L. Boyd; dinner, W. B. Willicroft; programme, J. W. Ford; invitation, E. W. Pigrim; reception, S. Rutledge; decoration, D. M. Chover. The catering was done by Messrs. Reid and Hambrook in a most creditable manner.

Her Hat Blew Away.

When the steamer New Island Wanderer was rounding Point Frederick and entering the harbor on Friday Miss Forbes-Robertson, the English dramatic lecturer, arrived at Kingston, a valuable hat was seen to blow from the promenade deck of the steamer. It proved to be the one worn by Miss Robertson, who stood out in the heavy wind to get a view of the limestone city, and that was why this English lady arrived hatless. The headgear has not yet been reported found.

Cruel To His Wife.

On the charge of assaulting his wife, a well-known resident of the county appeared before a county magistrate and the case was settled by the accused promising to behave himself in future. It is stated that a few days ago, while under the influence of liquor, he beat his wife, and she now bears the marks of his brutality.

Tea and Sale For Missions.
