TO KILL THE ROOTS OF SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Judging from the number of remedies advertised to banish superfluous hair from the face, neck, arms, and hands, there are thousands of ladies who feel the deep humiliation of this terrible blemish. Those women who have a repulsive, masculine growth of hair on any part of the body will appreciate the amazing effect of the following formula which is being used by the ladies of France to permanently destroy the hair roots. It has the great advantages of being simple and very inexpensive. Furthermore, it will not burn or injure the skin in any way. A single application may not always permanently kill the root but it has been proven by several tests conducted by the noted French chemist, Muler, that one application completely removes every vestige of hair growth, and its regular use, one or two days apart, so weakens the roots that the hair cannot grow again. If you have hair you wish permanently removed, ask your druggist to prepare for you the following formula, which has been translated into English, so that American women may know exactly what they are using: 1-2 drams pulverized Sulphur Concentrate with 2-3 drams common Zinc Oxide and 1 dram powdered Orris Root. To use, mix a little of this compound into a paste with a few drops of water. Apply as thick as a five-cent piece, and remove with a dull knife blade at the end of two minutes. When the dissolved hair will come with it. Repeat at intervals of two days. Each time the growth will be less, until it disappears entirely. CAUTION.—This must not be used as a substitute for shaving, as its repeated use has a tendency to destroy the roots of even a man's beard.

A Simple, Harmless Remedy Quickly Relieves Catarrhal Deafness.
The thousands who suffer the miseries of colds and catarrh and claim they have never found a cure, can get instant relief by simply anointing the nostrils with Ely's Cream Balm. Unlike internal medicines which upset the stomach, or strong snuffs which only aggravate the trouble, this cleansing, healing, antiseptic Balm instantly reaches the seat of the trouble, stops the nasty discharge, clears the nose, head and throat, and brings back the sense of taste, smell and improves the hearing. More than this it strengthens the weakened and diseased tissues, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble. This remedy will cure a cold in a day, and prevent it becoming chronic or resulting in catarrh. Nasal catarrh is an inflammation of the membrane lining the air passages, and cannot be reached by mixtures taken into the stomach, nor can it be cured by snuffs and powders which only cause additional irritation. Don't waste time on them. Get a 50c bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and after using it for a day you will wish you had tried it sooner. Mothers should give the children Ely's Cream Balm for colds and croup. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to take. Agents: G. W. Mc-

BARRIE STREET ROAD
COST $4,000 LESS THAN THE CONTRACT PRICE

By the Work Being Handled by City Engineer McClelland — Contract Price Was $2.05 a Square Yard — Engineer Did Work for $1.30.
The city engineer submitted his annual report to the Board of Works on Thursday afternoon. On the whole it was most satisfactory, as the chairman and the members of the board intimated. Probably the best piece of economy of the engineer's department is the laying of the asphaltic macadam roadway on Barrie street. Though the work was slower than expected, the inclement wet weather during the latter part of the summer, when most of the work was done, was largely responsible. Four thousand dollars was saved by the corporation doing the work under the supervision of the engineer and foreman, by day labor, than if it had been a contract job. The cost of the pavement was $7,791, which figures out at $1.30 per square yard. The engineer had estimated on $1.50 per square yard, and the lowest tender received for this nature of a roadway for the pavement alone, exclusive of the curbs, gutters and gratings, was $1.73 per square yard, which would bring the figure up to $2.05.

For grading from King to Clergy streets, on Barrie street, the cost was $1,927; concrete curbing and gutter, $1,994; concrete gutter, $695; pavement, $4,818. Added to this the grading was done and the curbing and gutters laid from Union to Clergy streets, $521. To the $7,546 is added ten per cent., for inspection and interest, which totals $8,301. Concrete curbing on King street, 2,300 feet; concrete curbing and gutter on Barrie street, 2,107 feet; concrete gutter on Barrie street, $2,170; concrete walks, twenty-nine, nearly two miles; sewers, 3,945 feet excavation for gas main on Union street, 340 feet; asphalt block pavement, 5,992 square yards; asphaltic macadam roadway, 6,016 square yards; broken stone on streets, 7,660 cubic yards; plank crossings, 65; building permits filed, 517; value, $645,614 (last year, $214,669); plumbing permits, 175; excavation permits, 132; bonds for excavation and building material on streets, 139; excavations on streets, 285. The expenditure by the department for the year was over $70,000. The office expenses were $3,170, including salaries and inspection. The engineer recommended the following to be purchased for and by the department next year: One horse sweeper for cleaning block pavements and Barrie street roadway; brush wagon, portable asphalt plant, stone heater, another asphalt kettle, two iron carts, one team of horses, and scavenger sweepers.

A petition signed by W. E. Bassan and other residents of Lower Alfred street, was presented to the Board of Works for the changing of the name of that short street to Cornaught Crescent. The matter was referred to the city engineer. On the recommendation of the engineer, James Norris will be allowed to install a gasoline tank outside the old Salvation Army barracks, which has now been turned into a garage. The pump must be inside the building. R. A. McClelland, for Forwards, Limited, asked, in view of the new street railway track to be laid on Ontario street, that an arrangement be made by which the Kingston and Pembroke or Canadian Northern railways be allowed to use these tracks and the present tracks, in connection with their shipping business, with such Ontario street concerns as the Canadian Locomotive company, Shipbuilding company, and Forwards, Limited. Owing to no action being taken on the street railway proposition at the meeting, the matter was not considered.

Big New York Jewel Robbery.
New York, Dec. 13.—A $25,000 diamond robbery in a Fifth avenue jeweler's shop was discovered when Joseph Varga, head of the Varga Jewelry company, opened his store for business. The establishment, flanked by stores of fashionable silversmiths, was entered through a hole sawed in the ceiling from a dressmaker's shop on the second floor, after the wall of the building adjoining had been pierced. Behind the curtained windows the thieves turned on the lights and smashed four large showcases, taking their entire contents.

Paris May Tax Foreigners.
Paris, Dec. 13.—The Municipal Council is considering the imposition of a tax of five per cent. on the amount of rent paid, whether at hotel or private house, on all foreigners residing here for more than three months. It is estimated that the tax will produce $700,000.

THE SEED OF THE CHURCH
Is the Blood of the Martyrs Says Bishop Gilmour.

Christianity is crystallized in the Coliseum and St. Peter's. In the former by the triumphs of the martyrs; in the latter, by the dedication of art to the worship of God.
(Come with me along the Via Sacra, past the Forum and the Arch of Titus, but a step, and we are at the Coliseum, pressed in between the Celian and Palatine hills, the Arch of Constantine and the Temple of Venus.
As we enter, the moon has risen, given a weird appearance to the scene, as we see its shadows lit, dissolve and lose themselves amid the arches of this mighty ruin. Amid broken arch and column and vaulted corridor, terraces arise upon terraces till the blood curdles and the hair stands on end. Memory is busy and hurried as we walk to where Christian martyrs and gentle maid stood within the vast arena to die for Christ.
The emperor is there; the nobility of Rome is there; tier upon tier is densely packed; the wild beasts paw their cages, impatient for the feast; one to whom Christian martyrs and gentle maid stood within the vast arena to die for Christ.

Intrusted Jewels to Pickpocket.
Walter Henry, better known to the police as "Broadway Bob," dropped around to "lectors," at Fort and street, and took dinner with Albert M. Markler, of 555 West One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street. Markler remarked to Bob that he had $2,000 worth of jewelry in his possession which he was trying to place in safe keeping.
Henry said that he would see that the jewelry was put in a safe place, whereupon Markler handed over several diamond clusters and diamond rings. When the two men parted that night Markler thought that perhaps Bob had had and had been placing some valuable jewelry in a stranger's hands.
He went to headquarters, looked at the rogues' gallery and spotted "Broadway Bob's" face. Detective Metcalf went toward Times Square and saw Bob, who had been brought to the West Side court on a grand larceny charge. He was discharged by Magistrate Murphy when he promised to turn over the jewelry.

Indoor Baseball.
The game of indoor baseball, played between the Buglers and the members of No. 2 Company, of the 14th Regiment, P.W.O. Rifles, and which was protested by No. 2 Company, on the grounds that men who played for the Buglers were not members of that corps, has been ordered re-played. If the Buglers win it will make a three-corner tie in the right half battalion, whereas, if the other team wins, it will mean that the Buglers will be out of the running.

Wants a Double Divorce.
Chicago, Dec. 13.—If two divorces for which she has applied are granted by Judge Tutill, Mrs. Ida Hentz Downey-Klat will have created a record for divorces in the Chicago courts, as there never been an instance when two decrees were granted to one person on the same day.
The woman's first husband was William Lafe Downey. There was a separation after eleven days, and she understood shortly afterward that he had obtained a divorce. Then she married Emil Klat, with whom she lived for five years.
Suit was brought against Klat about the same time the complainant learned that she had never been legally separated from Downey. She asked the court to give her the two decrees at once to "save time."

Rich Man's Epitaph.
The following lines, originally engraved on the tombstone of a young Bulgarian hero, Hadji Himev, who fell in the war for independence in 1877, writes a Bulgarian correspondent, have been written over several of the graves of victims of the present war:
"Who lies in his blood, living still, but his breast, full of youth and promise, is gasping by deep in a blow. 'A' his right an abandoned gun, at his left a sword in twain.
"Who lies still, but in the sky the over-hanging sun warms his heart.
"The woman reaping, sings among the corn, while the blood of the hero flows but faster." — London Evening Standard.

Shocking.
To a friend who had sympathized with him rather awkwardly on his defeat, Job Hedges remarked with a good-humored smile:
"You shock me. You are like the undertaker."
"This undertaker said to a weeping widow:
"'Decided your wig keeps slipping off, ma'am. Of course, now, we don't want nobody to know we were a wig, do we, ma'am? So would you mind sending out for a pot of glue?'
"The poor widow sent for the glue; she took it to the undertaker with her own hands. But he waved her away with a smile.
"'Never mind it now, ma'am,' he said, 'we found a nail.'" — Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Edwards With Wanderers.
A despatch from Montreal says: The Wanderers of the Wanderers resulted in the uncovering of a dark horse in Edwards, a lad from Kingston, who played with the professionals for the first time at this practice. He told Manager Boon that he intended turning out and showing what he could do, and made good his word. On his arrival Boon who was playing goal, was taken out to give him a chance, and the newcomer stopped the shots of Odie Cleghorn, Gordie Roberts and Harry Hyland, like a veteran. THE MOWAT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL WAS OPENED.

Dr. Ross, who followed, spoke of the spirit of responsibility, which had come over the people recently, in regard to the care of patients suffering from tuberculosis. Years ago, no such attention was paid. Even in the militia, in olden days, one surgeon would be sent to care for an entire division. The people had been stirred to action, however, and their enthusiasm had stirred the government. The speaker was glad to know that the hospital had its doors open for both rich and poor alike.

Hon. Mr. Hanna's Address.
Hon. Mr. Hanna, in his opening remarks, stated that it was a happy thought, when the hospital had been named after Sir Oliver Mowat, and continuing, made this reference: "The province of Ontario, during the years Sir Oliver Mowat was in office, never had reason to hang its head or to be ashamed, by reason of her public institutions. The province of Ontario, during these years, and I think I can safely say, since, has stood well to the front as regards public institutions, compared with other provinces, and other countries."

The speaker was glad to know that the hospital was open to all cases and touched on the sad part in connection with cases where it was found the patient was very far advanced. He said it would be a source of great satisfaction to him, to come for the management to know that they had a roof to cover all such cases, and to give the patients proper care.

"But what progress have we been making along this line in the province of Ontario, in recent years?" asked Mr. Hanna. "How far have we availed ourselves of the knowledge of the medical men, in regard to this disease?" He had been looking up records and was very much interested. He felt that he could safely say that nowadays, the people were very much interested in the work. He then gave figures on the question of tuberculosis in Ontario, where 125,000 people were in 1911, after 10 years of educational work, 92,000 in other words, in 1901 eleven per cent. of all the deaths had been caused by tuberculosis, while ten years later, in 1911, six and one-half per cent. of the total deaths had been caused by tuberculosis.

"It is a work worth doing," added Mr. Hanna. "Your work here in Kingston will be far reaching, and it will not be measured by the patients within the walls of the hospital. You will be able to carry on a great educational work." In his concluding remarks, Mr. Hanna stated that it was most pleasing that the hospital should start off good financially. He expressed the hope that it would continue to go on from year to year, in the same way. Speaking again of the name selected for the hospital, he stated that the occasion was one in which the government, of the province of Ontario, should offer to furnish a room in the hospital. This should not be given for any particular government or section of the people—but for all the people of the province of Ontario.

Chairman Elliott at once acted on the suggestion, "We are very glad to receive your offer," he said to Mr. Hanna, and added "And you will hear from us later."

Sheriff Mowat's Remarks.
Frederick Mowat, sheriff of York county, was the last speaker. In introducing him, Mr. Elliott made a few appropriate remarks. He pointed out that he was a son of the gentleman after whom the hospital was named, and it was, indeed, a great pleasure to have him present for the opening exercises. The name of Mowat was one that stood in the history of Kingston for one hundred years. During all that long period there had always been a member of the Mowat family living in Kingston.

Mr. Mowat said it gave him great pleasure to be present and to have the opportunity of returning thanks for the honor bestowed on the memory of his father. He felt sure that the honor had been conferred as an appreciation of a man and not as an honor from certain political friends. His father, he said, was one whose heart went out to the weak and suffering. He was also a great lover of his native city. The speaker had great faith in the usefulness of the new institution which was being opened.

At the close of Mr. Mowat's address Mr. Elliott took occasion to thank the Daughters of the Empire for their share in the work and also referred to messages received from the judges of the counties of Leeds, Hastings and Prince Edward, all expressing their interest in the new hospital.

Mr. Elliott stated that the board appreciated very much the good sentiments, and trusted that the occasion had been most beneficial to all. At a later day, when the governors called upon them, he hoped they would be hearty in their response to the appeal put forth.

The chairman called upon Dean Bidwell to offer the closing prayer, and the proceedings were brought to a close.

BUSINESS TALKS
to the Readers of the Whig
by the Advertisers' Department

A Question Of Age

"How old is Ann? Perhaps it would be easier to tell the age of this advertisement that came in this morning with cash remittance for a pair of shoes."
This is an extract from a letter received recently by an advertising agency. Upon looking up the record of the advertisement referred to it was found that it was published in 1903—nine years ago.
Nine years is a long period of activity for a single advertisement and not many are productive for that length of time.

Still this incident shows that advertising is an enduring form of business literature; that years after it is considered "dead" it produces results.
People are reading advertisements to-day more than they have ever read them before. One reason is that the advertisements are better written; they are more interesting and MORE RELIABLE.
