A SALUTE TO MEMORY

BY PROF. PAUL DENYS IN A CHICAGO PAPER.

His Acquaintance With Harry Corby, of Belleville, Threw Open to Him the Doors of Kingston Hospitality.

Prof. Paul Denys, of Kingston, contributes the following to the Christmas issue of the Belleville Club News, of Chicago:

"After living with those we love, there is nothing sweeter than guarding their souvenir. Years may steal by, struggle for life may induce men to expatriate themselves, yet through reminiscence, the past is made present and the distant near. Abiding attachment, not only sustains the individual, but cements society, enhancing relations of one with another and fortifying all against the withering winds of adversity.

"I was young once, and, like other youth, had dreams and ideals. Fervor, hope and resolve throbbled in my breast. The future shone radiant, and life's cup seemed full of nectar. Many a smiling vision has since faded away at the contract of stern reality; yet I owe a kind Providence a deep debt of gratitude for countless favors vouchsafed, not least among which, having been the uninterrupted enjoyment of faithful friendships. This constancy was and tender regard made my sojourn in Kingston, Belleville so pleasurable and the recollection thereof a distinct delight.

"They are good to me in Kingston, and despite its reputation for somnolence, it is a cavalrous little city, claiming for her sons Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Oliver Howard, Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir Henry Smith and Sir George A. Kirkpatrick. The wigwags of three centuries ago have made room for such establishments as Queen's University, the Royal Military College, Regiopolis College, Notre Dame convent, together with benevolent institutions of most modern and efficacious appointments.

"When I first came here I was unknown to almost everybody, which shows of such a slow growth, even fame is Ours however, there was who knew me. Little in stature, modest as a child, but dowered richly in head and heart, he received me as only a prince would. I have guessed I allude to a former curate of Mgr. Farrelly, the Rev. A. J. Hanley, the present is Ours however, there was who knew me. Little in stature, modest as a child, but dowered richly in head and heart, he received me as only a prince would. I have guessed I allude to a former curate of Mgr. Farrelly, the Rev. A. J. Hanley, the present is Ours however, there was who knew me.
