WILL NOVA SCOTIA BANK PAY FIFTEEN PER CENT?

The Moosejaw Bond Issue Was Quickly Snapped Up—Canada Machinery Doing a Large Business.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—It is now thought in local banking circles that, as a result of its strengthened position due to the purchase of the Bank of New Brunswick, the Bank of Nova Scotia will likely declare a 15 per cent. dividend.

It is also thought by some that the stock will probably advance before long to 300. At present the stock is quoted at a price around 265.

A London cable states that the bond issue of the city of Moose Jaw, made by the Bank of Montreal on 5 per cent. basis was more than taken up. This is the second issue of western towns recently made on such a basis, and it seems to indicate that English interests are willing to take these western issues, provided they can be secured on a 5 per cent. basis, as compared with the lower prices which the towns had formerly been trying to obtain.

Earnings Growing Rapidly. Toronto, Dec. 19.—Canada Machinery net earnings for the last fiscal year amounted to $105,056.04, and this after deduction of bond interest and sundry charges amounting to $40,534, left available for dividend purposes, etc., a balance of $64,521. The president, Mr. George B. Forbes, in his statement, says that since the close of the last fiscal year, conditions have been very materially improved, and the company's sales show an increase over the corresponding period of last year of fifty per cent.

THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE

MUST CONTINUE TO BE THE FUNDAMENTAL PIVOT

Of the Italian Policy—Address in Reply to Those Who Criticized the Renewal of the Alliance.

Rome, Dec. 20.—In a brilliant speech, which was frequently interrupted by outbursts of applause, Marquis di San Giuliano, the foreign minister, replied in the Chamber of Deputies to those who criticized the renewal of the Triple Alliance.

The minister eulogized the Triple Alliance, which, he said, had been for thirty years the strongest guarantee of the peace of the world of Europe. It had permitted Italy to achieve wonderful progress, despite innumerable difficulties, both internal and external, and it was one of the principal factors in the great economic advancement, and by more closely welding the interests of the civilized world and making them more independent it constituted a new and powerful obstacle to a great war not determined by the supreme necessities of national existence and dignity.

It was eminently able, he continued, to guarantee the interests of the three nations party to it in the Balkans, but it must give assurance to them of mutual support, not only at the present time but in the future. Each ally must be of the conviction that it could depend on the support to-morrow of the others in return for what it did for those others to-day. That must be an essential element in the efficacy of the alliance. Therefore, he maintained, the experience of thirty years and the exigencies of the present situation justified the renewal of the Triple Alliance.

Turning to its bearing on the Albanian question the foreign minister said that Italy and Austria, whose mutual relations are to-day most intimate and cordial and who are the two powers most interested in preserving the situation in a footing of equality and liberty in the Adriatic, have been able to agree on the fundamental outlines of the solution of the Albanian problem in conformity with the principles of nationality and having due consideration for their own equal interests with regard to Albania—that Albania neutralized with the guarantee of the great powers shall live as an independent state, with an opportunity for advancement and present an open field to the free commerce of the world and be a factor of equilibrium in the Balkan peninsula and in the Adriatic.

There was, then, no reason to modify the Triple Alliance and none of the parties had asked to have it modified. It was not, as some have said, to point out that the treaty was essentially pacific and defensive obligation on each power to do its utmost not to involve the others in complications unnecessarily and to maintain the most cordial relations with the other powers. "The alliance between Italy, Germany and Austria," said the minister, "made fruitful by the closest and most cordial relations between the allies, must continue to be the fundamental pivot of the Italian foreign policy."

Marquis di San Giuliano added that on the occasion of the appointment of General Von Hotendorff as chief of the general staff of the Austrian army, Count Von Berchtold, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, had given him assurances that the appointment was in no way connected with the Austrian foreign policy.

TO OPEN UP TERRITORY.

Mining Will Proceed on Line of Grand Trunk Pacific.

Controlling a lease of 28,160 acres of coal lands in the district between Grande Prairie and the main line of the G.T.P., Dr. H. Hoppe, the eminent physician of San Francisco, is taking immediate steps to open up the land for mining purposes.

The story of how Dr. Hoppe came to embark in his present enterprise is almost romantic. The doctor, now over seventy years of age and had been actively engaged in the practice of medicine for close on fifty years. Feeling somewhat run down from being over-long in harness he decided last spring to take a holiday and took a trip by pack horse through Northern Alberta.

While journeying in the country east of the mountains and north of the G.T.P. main line he discovered outcroppings of coal seams, confirming reports he had had from parties of travelers and Indians. He took samples of the coal after having satisfied himself that the seams extended over a very wide area, and the analysis of these samples has proved to him that the coal is not surpassed in quality by any that has been found in Alberta.

On his return from the trip Dr. Hoppe secured leases on the property, comprising eleven claims of 2,500 acres each and covering an area in all of forty-four square miles. Since that time Dr. Hoppe has had experienced engineers and surveyors in the field. His chief consulting engineer, W. B. O'Brien, is a man of international repute. John MacVicar, engineer of Edmonton, is also working in Dr. Hoppe's interests. Engineer MacVicar will go into the country at once and will be engaged during the rest of the winter in making careful topographical and geological surveys of the property. Dr. Hoppe has just let a contract for the construction of a winter trail from Hinton on the main line of the G.T.P. to the junction of the Smoky and Muskeg rivers in township sixty, range seven, west of the sixth. The purpose of this trail will be for the hauling in of large quantities of supplies to the camps which will be established there this winter as bases for next season's operations.

Michael Karr's team of horses took fright and ran away, Wednesday, throwing a little girl out. She was not seriously hurt. The bazaar held in the town hall on Saturday last was well attended. Meals were served by the Ladies Aid. Some $100 was cleared.

Death of Young Wife and Mother. Clayton, N.Y., Dec. 20.—The death of Edith Helena Miffin, wife of Roy Miffin and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Layman B. Ladd, occurred Monday evening at her home on Water street. She was born in Hammond and was married to Roy Miffin on September 8th, 1908. The funeral was held from Christ Episcopal church. She had been ill with Bright's disease for some time, but death was unlooked for. She is survived by her husband, Roy Miffin; her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. ## THE HAWTHORNE TRIAL.

Literature Describing Mines Was "Extravagant and Foolish."

New York, December 20.—Josiah Quincy, on trial with Julian Hawthorne and others in the federal court here for alleged fraudulent use of the mails in promoting Canadian mining claims, was warned in September, 1910, according to John C. Murray, a witness yesterday, that literature issued, describing the mines was "both extravagant and foolish."

Mr. Murray, editor of the Canadian Mining Journal, said that R. C. Harris, one of the venerable mine experts, employed by the Hawthorne group to examine their mines, introduced him to Quincy. He said when he expressed his opinion of the Hawthorne literature, Quincy agreed with him.

"I suggested that this publicity work be stopped," testified Murray, "and he said it would be, but added that he was in no way responsible for what Mr. Hawthorne wrote."

Counsel for Quincy fought against admission of testimony by Murray that the latter warned Quincy against employing Harris and another expert, Dr. Bell.

"We desire to show," explained United States Assistant District Attorney Dorr, "that the defendant Quincy was in authority and gave directions in the conduct of the property and that after being warned by Mr. Murray against the incompetence of Dr. Bell and Prof. Harris to pass upon the mines and ores, their names were used afterwards as authorities."

The Hapless Tramp. George W. Perkins was talking to a reporter about the obituary, so frequently unjust, which nowadays attaches to great wealth.

"A little boy," he said, "once remarked to his father: 'Pa, I often read in the low priced magazines about 'poor but honest people.' Why do they never say 'rich but honest?'"

"Because, my son," the father answered, "nobody would believe them."
