Knowing How to Sell. New York Sun. The late John R. Arbuckle, the coffee-seeking, who left an estate of $100,000,000, often said that a part of his success was due to his knowledge of human nature.

"In selling coffee," Mr. Arbuckle once said to a New York coffee broker, "you should exercise the same keen discretion which the druggist showed."

"A woman, you know, a woman well on in years, entered a druggist's and said: "Have you any creams for restoring the complexion?"

"Restoring, miss? You mean preserving!" said the druggist, heartily.

"And he then sold the woman $17 worth of complexion cream."

Modern Progress. A noted English parliamentarian tossed back his thick white mane of hair, stroked his white beard and said in broad Scotch accent to a New York reporter:

"The rise in the world wages had been great, but the rise in world prices has been greater. We have had progress, but it has been progress in the wrong direction."

"A tourist was travelling in your far west. As he inspected an Indian encampment he said to his cowboy guide:

"And are these Indians progressing?"

"Better life," the cowboy answered, taking a fresh chew of tobacco. "Better life they're progressing. All their medicine men are patent medicine men now."

"Washington Star."

And it's a long water route that has no turn.
