Croxone relieves all such disorders because it reaches the very cause of the trouble. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls of the lining, cleans out the little filtering glands and cells and gives the kidneys new strength, to do their work properly. It neutralizes and

RURAL SCHOOL FAIR

WAS HELD AT INVERARY ON TUESDAY AFTERNOON

It Was the First To Be Held in Frontenac County—The Entries Were Numerous—Results of the Sports.

The Inverary rural school fair was the grandest thing held in the county in years. This was the opinion of all who had the opportunity to be present at the event on Tuesday afternoon. From ten o'clock in the morning everything at the hall at Inverary was excitement. The children and their parents were arriving with the produce which had been raised by the young people on the farm during the summer months. These articles were placed in order around the large hall to await the judges' decision.

This school fair is the first of its kind to be held in the county of Frontenac. During the spring J. G. Taggart, representative for the department of agriculture in connection with the Sydenham high school, visited the eleven rural schools in this vicinity and talked the matter over with the teachers and scholars with the result that this fair was held.

The department of agriculture is very desirous that the children of the counties of the province should be in closer touch with nature, and for that reason is encouraging school fairs. The department furnished the seeds of different plants and flowers, and also eggs, which the children take home in the spring of the year and raise what they can. This year the children were furnished with barrel Plymouth Rock eggs, potatoes, corn, asters, phlox, salvias and mangel.

Prizes were also given for the best collection of apples, pressed weeds, cooking, making bread and cookies. Prizes were also given for the three best essays written on the subject of "What I Learned in Growing My Plot."

The work of the judges was no light task, as the exhibits kept them busy all afternoon. The display of pressed weeds and flowers was fine. It was indeed encouraging for the parents of the children to visit the show and to see the great interest which the children had taken in growing the flowers during the summer months. A bunch of purple asters carried off the first prize in this competition. On the opposite side of the hall the corn, mangels, bread and home-made cooking were arranged.

While the judging was taking place a number of sports were held on the grounds, which resulted as follows:

100 yards dash—J. W. Kiell, A.

220 yards dash—Arthur Sherman, Sydney Burgess and Edward Serson.

The judges were: Dr. Frosman and F. Sime, principal of Sydenham high school.

The Women's Institute consisting of the following ladies, conducted a refreshment booth in the hall: Mrs. F. R. Ferguson, Mrs. Darling, Mrs. George Leiberland, Mrs. Joseph Duff, Mrs. Charles Loney, Mrs. G. Aykroyd, Mrs. J. Taylor, Mrs. C. Perry.

The judges were: P. S. D. Harding, agricultural representative for Lennox and Addington; J. G. Taggart and Carl Duff of Sydenham; Mrs. W. W. Kiell and Mrs. C. Hutchison of Elginburg, were judges for bread and cookies.

Before the fair was brought to a close Mr. Taggart spoke a few words. He stated that he was well pleased that the fair had been so great a success and only hoped that it would be still better next season. He explained to the children that next season another fair would be held, but the prizes would be given for the products raised from the seed of plants which won prizes this season.

A great deal of credit for the success of the fair is due to Mr. Taggart and Joseph Duff, who spared no time in making everything so complete.

Essay, What I Learned in Growing My Plot, below senior III—Gladys Garrett, Leslie Moreland, Willie Dunn.

The Prize Senior Essay.

The prize senior essay on "What I Learned in Growing My Plot," was written by Gladys Taylor, of Lattimer, and is as follows:

"I never realized, until I had my own plants to care for, the amount of time and labor necessary in order to have a good plot. The ground had to be hoed and well stirred up at least twice a week. I soon noted, in dry weather, that unless I watered my plants every night the leaves started to wither.

When the phlox were only four inches high, and consisted of only one stalk little buds began to come on them. I was told to pinch these off, so that the plants would not go to seed, and stop spreading out branches. With great unwillingness I picked them off, for I feared the result. But to my satisfaction I saw the plants branch out and become large and then blossom in all fullness. This was something which I had never seen before.

"I learned one very peculiar thing. I noticed for several days that two of my asters were drooping and did not seem to be growing. After puzzling about it for some time I dug down to the roots of the plants. The ground about was full of ants and the tiny roots were covered with ants' eggs. I had never heard of ants doing any harm to plants before.

"On account of the salvias being more easily cared for than the smaller plants, I learned that large, sturdy plants do not require the same care as the smaller and the more delicate ones.

"I learned, too, that one must watch the weather as fall comes on, to notice if there are any signs of frost. Other years I had not noticed the effect of the frost.

"Considering all these important things which I have learned in growing my plot, I find I have derived a good deal of knowledge from it as well as pleasure."

 New York, Sept. 24.—An outline of the political situation voiced before the republican state convention yesterday by Jacob G. Schurman, the temporary chairman, culminated in an appeal to all believers in "evolutionary progression" to aid in restoring the republican party to power in New York state and the nation.
 "Evolutionary progression" was the term Dr. Schurman applied to republican doctrines to distinguish them from the ideas of the progressive party. "Catastrophic progressive" was his manner of describing the latter.
