PEERAGE INTRICACIES

THEY ARE A COMPLETE LIFE STUDY IN THEMSELVES.

The Lords Grey and Lords Howard are a Numerous and Confusing Group and the Lords of Hamilton are Legion—Extra and Supplementary Titles Are Common to Most Noble Houses.

If anyone is seeking a hobby which shall tax brain and memory to the utmost, and which shall elude and baffle and tantalize him to the verge of distraction, let him set to work to master the intricacies and perplexities of our peerage. I am inclined to think that after a few weeks of it he would turn to Form IV. as a light recreation.

Who, for instance, even in the gilded circle of the peerage itself, can reel off the names of the various fellow-peers who answer to the description "Lord Grey"? And how should he know which of them was referred to under that designation—Earl Grey, Viscount Grey de Wilton, Baron Grey of Orobay, or Baron Grey de Ruthin, to say nothing of Earl de Grey? The Lords Howard are equally confusing; for we have a Lord Howard of Effingham, another of Glosop, and a third of Walden. And are there not Lords Howard of Morpeth and Charlton?

The Lords of Hamilton swarm like bees. We have a Hamilton Duke and a Marquis, Lord Hamilton of Dalzell, and two subsidiary titles of Lord Hamilton, in addition to a small crowd of courtesy lords who bear the name. Of Lords Stuart or Stewart there are four; and coroneted Boyles, Frances, Douglases, Hays, Herberis, Hills, and Montagus number three each.

If you wish to go farther into the peerage maze, take a peep at the division lists of the House of Lords, which may well puzzle the King-at-Arms himself. Who, in the name of all that is reasonable, is the Earl Strange who is known at Westminster only as Viscount Gordon; the Marquis of Headfort, as Baron Kenlis; the Earl of Limerick, as Baron Foxford; the Marquis of Sligo is Baron Monteagle; the Marquis of Waterford is Baron Tyrone—and so on through the long list of titles.

The foreign titles borne by our peers, however familiar in a dozen alien countries, are just as effectual in concealing identity from us. We know Lord Reay well enough, but who knows him as the Dutch Baron Mackay of Ophoven? Lord Clarendon figures in the Prussian peerage roll as Baron Villiers; his grace of Richmond is hailed by the old French noblesse as Duc d'Aubigny; the Duke of Hamilton is Duc de Chatehault across the Channel; and his brother Duke of Wellington is Duc de Ciudad Rodrigo, Marquess of Douro and Torre Vedras, Conde da Vimeira, Prince of Waterloo, and a grandee of the first class in Spain. His grace of Marlborough is the Suabian Prince of Mindelheim; the Earl of Clancarty is Marquess of Headfort when he takes a trip to Holland; and in far Brazil the Earl of Dundonald is greeted as Marquess of Maranham. In Italy, Charles Giustiniani-Bandini is Duc di Mondragone, Count of Carniola, and the Earl of Sainsbury in England is the Earl of Newburgh, and the heir to all these strange dignities is just Viscount Kynnaid.

Even when the titles are familiar enough to us it is fatally easy to blunder. Thus, if we speak of Earl Lytton and the Earl of Beauchamp we convey ourselves of gross, unparadised ignorance. It is the Earl of Lytton the Marquis of Cholmondeley, the Earl of Onslow; just as it is the Marquess Camden the Earl Beauchamp, and the Earl Cawdor—and so on through a long list of more than forty peers who repudiate the proposition "of."

If we descend to subsidiary titles we are hopelessly undone. Indeed, it is doubtful whether some of our peers themselves could reel off the list of their dignities offhand without error. His grace of Atholl has twenty-two of them, ranging from Baron to Duke; the Duke of Argyll boasts seventeen; the Duke of Hamilton sixteen, including a trio of dukedoms; and the Marquis of Bute and the Duke of Buccleugh count their up to fifteen.

Who among us could recognize the Duke of Atholl under the guise of Lord Balouidder; the Duke of Argyll as Lord Cowal; Lord Bute, as Viscount Mountjoy; or His Grace of Buccleuch as Viscount of Thorthorwald? Lord Rosebery as Viscount of Inverkeithing is a stranger to most of his intimates; Lord Lansdowne, as Earl of Wycombe; and the Duke of Portland would scarcely know himself as Baron Bolsover.

One must be very careful of one's orthography in writing to, or of, our peers if we are not to be branded as ignoramus. Beware of writing Donegal, Guildford, Roseberry, Kingsale, or Argyle instead of Donegall, Rosebery, Kingsale, Guilford, and Argyll. And we must be equally careful to avoid confusing Lord Camden with Lord Campden; Lord Bandon with Bandon Bridge; Earl Sandah with Viscount Llandaff; or Baron Inveraray with Baron Inverurie—to mention but a few of these confusing personalities, who are really quite distinct, and who strongly object to being mixed up.

Courtesy titles are a sore puzzle to the uninitiated. It is, of course, usual for the eldest son and heir to a dukedom, marquissate, or earldom to be known by the family title next in rank to that borne by his father. But this rule is subject to perplexing variations. Thus the heir to the Marquisate of Lansdowne is known in alternate generations as Earl of Kerry and Earl of Shelburne; and the heir to the Marquisate of Lothian may be Lord Jedburgh as well as Earl of Ancrum.—Modern Society.

Arol Shaw, of the Tweed Electric Light and Power company's staff, has recently transferred to another department of the company's service, probably to Campbellford. The quick reply is often the injudicious one.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Heard Missionary From India—Sunday School Rally.

Sunday was a day of special interest in the First Baptist church. Rev. J. E. Chute, returned missionary from India of twenty years' standing, preached in the morning. His message was full of interest. Here are some of his statements:

India is a country of continental size. Its population is greater than that of Europe, or of North and South America combined. Of the four hundred millions of people under British rule three hundred and fifteen millions of them are in India. There are 147 different languages. One is that of the Telugu, where the Canadian and American Baptist missionaries are at work. There are as many Christians in India as half the population of Canada. There are more Baptists in India than there are in Canada. There is a great missionary organization of native Christians doing missionary work in various parts of the country. Only about seven per cent. of the people have any education. On the Canadian Baptist mission field there are ten boarding schools, some for boys and some for girls, and there are eleven thousand children in the Baptist Sunday schools. In ten years the Christian population of India has increased by one hundred per cent.

Sunday was "Rally Day" in the Bible school. It surpassed all rally days of past years in attendance, interest, enthusiasm. A well-arranged programme was successfully carried out by the superintendent, Dr. E. Lake. It included responsive reading, songs by the school, some of which were illustrated by means of the stereopticon as they were being sung, a chorus by the primary department, a solo by Miss Muriel Campbell, and a most interesting little talk by Rev. J. E. Chute on the children of India. Then he sang two verses of a hymn and also repeated the Lord's prayer in Telugu. Eight members of the "Cradle Roll" were graduated and received a very neat diploma, presented to them by Miss Kines, the superintendent of this department. These were addressed a few complimentary words by the pastor, and presented with a badge of distinction.

PRINCE ARTHUR TO BE Governor-General of Canada, Succeeding His Father.

London, Sept. 19.—The Daily Sketch to-day says: "The Daily Sketch, in very high authority the statement made lately that Prince Arthur of Connaught will ultimately succeed his father as governor-general of Canada. This is one reason for the marriage being hurried forward, since it was made the condition when the appointment was first offered him that he must be married before he took it over."

Tidings From Elginburg.

Elginburg, Sept. 17.—On Thursday evening nearly one hundred people gathered at the parsonage to welcome Rev. E. Codling and his wife from Toronto. Miss Anglin, Brewer's Mills, is ably teaching the local school this term. Mrs. Porter has returned from visiting her daughter in Watertown, N.Y. The stone crusher is at work on the road between Elginburg and Glenvale station. Miss McWilliams, Camden East, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. A. Smyth. Miss Elva Beaumont, Kingston, is spending a few days at home. Mrs. Filson is visiting her mother, Mrs. S. Richards. Mr. and Mrs. A. Smyth and Mr. and Mrs. S. Knight were judges at Wolfe Island fair. At inventory rural school fair the first prize on potatoes was carried off by Etta Reid; fifth Glen Silver; tenth, Percy Fraser. On corn Percy Fraser secured tenth; Ernest Stover, eleventh; Clarence Stover, thirteenth; Nellie Jackson, fifteenth. On chickens, Edgar Stover got second. On bouquet of cut flowers, Ruth Emmons came seventh; Beatrice Graham, eighth. On mangoes, Clarence Stover got fourth; collection of weeds mounted and named, Mildred Graham secured first, Beatrice Graham eighth; Percy Fraser, ninth; Earl Fraser, tenth; Alphonso Smith, fourteenth; Clarence Stover, nineteenth. On bread, Mildred Graham, second. On cookies, Beatrice Graham, second. In the 100 yard dash, J. W. Kiell was first. Girls over twelve years, Mildred Graham, second; sack race, Edgar Stover, first. 220 yard dash, Edward Serson, third, making in all twenty-four prizes for this school.

Rally at Cooke's.

Rally day was observed in Cooke's Presbyterian Sunday school, on Sunday. A goodly crowd was present. A special programme was presided over by D. A. Shaw. Rev. Alfred Brown, pastor of Sydney Street Methodist church, gave an address which dealt with God's helpers. Recitations were given by Florence Montgomery, entitled "The Lady with the Lamp," Alexander Kennedy and Mack Douglas, the latter, "How a Boy Helped Jesus." Rev. J. W. McIntosh gave a talk which added much to the interest of the day.

Returned to Province.

Has Been Studying Various Social Problems.

The Renfrew Mercury says: Miss Alice Chown, who has just returned from a four months' visit to England, is this week the guest of her brother, S. T. Chown. Being interested in social problems, she has had an interesting experience in the last two or three years, acting part of the time as press correspondent during two or three women's strikes in the states; having investigated the university extension movement of Wisconsin, where there are special staffs to teach by correspondence those citizens who are not under college roofs but who desire wider knowledge and make use of the school houses as social centres and centres for the inculcation of a deeper civic spirit.—Miss Chown has even studied at combat quarters the methods of the militant suffragettes of the old land.

RALLY AT CHALMERS CHURCH.

A special service was held by the Sunday School.

A special rally of the Sunday school of Chalmers church Sunday school was held on Sunday afternoon, which was well attended. This service was a bright and helpful one. The programme issued by the Presbyterian church was carried out, with an address by Prof. W. T. MacClement of Queen's university, who spoke on the subject: "How we may be God's helpers." The address was illustrated with lantern slides, and was most instructive. During the service, so were rendered by Mrs. E. J. McClelland and J. D. Baarier.

Two large congregations assembled in Chalmers during the day. The pastor, Rev. Dr. MacIntosh preached at both services.
