Remember Mother this Christmas

YES, of course, Mother knows you are busy—too busy to write—she overlooks it—it is a way mothers have, but there can be no possible excuse for neglecting her at Christmas.

Send her something this Christmas. It doesn't make any difference how much you pay—just show care and thought in its selection: Picture to yourself her pride when she shows her friends and yours your gift "From my boy. He doesn't forget Christmas."

There are hundreds of articles in the "Ryrie" Gift Book that would gladden Mother's heart. She will appreciate the fact that your gift comes from "Ryrie's."

While you remember—write for the Gift book—to-day.

DOINGS IN STAGELAND

NOTES ON PLAYS, PLAYERS AND PLAYHOUSES

An Indian Opera Called "The Sun Girl"—"Lavender and Old Lace" Has Been Dramatized.

"After Five," the delightful new comedy, by William Cecil de Mille, produced by Wagenthals and Kemper, begins its third week at the Fulton.

"Potash & Perimeter," with Alexander Carr and Barney Bernard, in the title roles, remains as one of the distinctive novelties in theatricals of the present season at the Cohan.

Brilliant acting and brilliantly written comedy and drama is the double attraction at the New York Lyceum, where Grace George in J. M. Barrie's "Half an Hour" and the three-act comedy, "The Younger Generation," are being presented.

The dramatization of "Barbara Worth" is to be taken on the road. The next J. M. Barrie play for Maudie Adams is called "The Adored One."

Adele Blood, who played the title role in "Everywoman," has gone into vaudeville.

This Lawton is Robert Mantell's leading lady in his Shakespearean and standard repertoire.

Miss Vera Fuller-Mellish, daughter of the English actor, is now playing the role of Ellie in "The Blindness of Virtue."

John Cort, the well-known manager, will establish a summer home for actors on a lot of land in Connecticut.

An Indian opera called "The Sun Dance," written by an Indian girl, has been submitted for production to Henry W. Savage.

The new musical play, "The Little Cafe," adapted from the French by C. M. S. McLellan, with music by Ivan Caryll, was recently given in Philadelphia.

"Lavender and Old Lace," Myrtle Reed's idyllic picture of New England life and people, has been dramatized by David G. Fisher. It is a tale of sunshine and love.

"Her Little Highness" ended its existence after a single week at the Liberty theatre in New York—ended it, as some who like the piece will believe, undeservedly. Now the operetta will be condensed into a single act, "Queen Ann," and tried in the vaudeville theatres, with Miss Hajo and Mr. McCutcheon still staging and dancing it.

At the Empire Theatre, New York, John Drew has been succeeded by Ethel Barrymore in "Tante," by C. Hadden. Chambers, her first appearance in a big theatre on Broadway in several seasons. Since last seen she has been in vaudeville and has become once more a mother.

Gertrude Elliott, who is in private life Lady Forbes Robertson, wishes theatre-goers to understand that the retirement of her distinguished husband will not put an end to her own stage activities. She makes no announcement of plans, but merely issues the ultimatum.

Once more is Gaby Deslys fortunate. She is dancing in London at the Palace Theatre somewhat lightly clad; a lord bishop has taken notice and denounced her; the lord chamberlain has been invoked against her, and has "given warning." Yet nightly the turn continues, and the Palace might hold double the audience that its walls permit.

May Irwin, the one American actress of the first rank who has owned up to a liking for the "one-night stand," is about to have the time of her young life. Her route sheet will make her take her biggest success of recent years, "Widow by Proxy," into fifty-four different cities within the next four months.

Gaby Deslys will end her ten-weeks' engagement at the Palace Theatre in London on Saturday evening, Nov. 15th. Within a week she will sail for New York to begin an American tour.

In the Church of the Transfiguration, better known as the "Little Church Around the Corner," in New York, a memorial window to Richard Mansfield has been unveiled. William Winter, the veteran dramatic critic, delivered an address in which he spoke of a friendship of twenty-five years with the actor of him as a man and an artist. A severe criticism of the haughtiness of the stage-to-day at the hands of certain managers preface Mr. Winter's address.

A recently added member of George Arliss' company in his success of four successive seasons, Louis N. Parker's "Disraeli," is Miss Lilla Campbell, appearing as Lady Cudworth. Miss Campbell is a niece of Mrs. Patrick Campbell, in whose company George Arliss himself first came to America.

MRS. JOHN JACOB ASTOR

The latest photograph of the widow of John Jacob Astor, the millionaire who met death on the Titanic. It is rumored that Mrs. Astor is engaged to some American railway man.

Turn about is fair play, so that it is eminently fitting that Mr. Arliss should give her first real opportunity to the niece of the actress who first introduced him to the scenes of his subsequent triumphs.

ANXIOUS TIMES FOR PARENTS

Children Often Seem Pining Away And Ordinary Medicine Does Not Help Them.

The health of children between the ages of twelve and sixteen years, particularly in the case of girls, is a source of serious worry to nearly every mother. The growth and development takes so much of their strength that in many cases they actually seem to be going into a decline. The appetite is feeble, brightness gives way to depression; there are often serious headaches, fits of dizziness, or occasional fainting and a complaint of weariness at the slightest exertion. Ordinary medicines will not bring relief. The blood has become thin and watery, and the child must have something that will bring the blood back to its normal condition. At this time no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their whole mission is to make new blood, which reaches every part of the body, bringing back health, strength and energy. Mrs. James Harris, Port Rowan, Ont., says: "At the age of thirteen my daughter began to look very pale, and seemed listless and always tired. She did not take interest in her school work or in those amusements of girlhood. In fact she just seemed to drag herself about, complaining of always being tired; did not eat well, and did not sleep well at night. I took her to our doctor who said she was anemic, and advised me to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She took the Pills for nearly two months, when she was as well and lively as any girl could be, gained nicely in weight, and has since enjoyed perfect health. I am quite sure that what the Pills did for my daughter they will do for other pale, weak girls. I have also used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills myself with the best results and can only speak of them in terms of greatest praise."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tell a girl she is an angel, and she will expect you to keep harping on the subject.

MIND READER LOSES MIND

Puzzle To Physicians; Shows Signs of Recovery.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 15.—The light of memory is slowly beginning to sift through a few niches in the wall of darkness that surrounds the mind of "Professor" Harry Lawrence, a patient at the General hospital. Lawrence is a vaudeville performer, whose act consists of reading the minds of others. Yet he cannot now read his own mind well enough to recall his name. However, Lawrence is now able to remember some details of his life before he reached the hospital.

In a wheel chair in the ward he tried to answer questions that were put to him. When he would remember something he would clap his hands and laugh as a child who had just achieved a particular feat.

"I formerly owned an orange grove in San Bernardino, Cal.," he said, "but sold that some years ago. My wife has been dead some time, and my three children, Henry, Estella and Jeanette are living on a farm that I purchased in Indiana. I can't remember where that farm is now. I wish I could."

Physicians at the hospital are under the impression that this may be a case of psychic epilepsy, which is distinguished from the more common kind by the fact that it is accompanied by no convulsions. The patient suffers from a loss of memory, but appears to be normal otherwise. Another theory is that the loss of memory may be due to brain necrosis. This is caused by the cutting off of the blood supply from any part of the brain, making that part useless as thinking machine.

A Mild Reproof.

Liverpool Daily Post.

Justice Phillimore, the new law lord, is a strong judge, but his prim, almost old-fashioned manner might mislead a casual visitor.

It was when he was hearing an admirably case that the contrast between his manner and the hearing of seafaring witnesses was not without its humorous aspects.

In one action tried before him the defaulting vessel pleaded "compulsory pilotage," and her captain intimated in his evidence that he was aware that the pilot was taking a course which might lead to a mishap.

"But surely," interposed Justice Phillimore, "you might have said to the pilot, 'You goose, you are steering a wrong course?'"

The suggestion of such dainty language on the bridge left the witness speechless; and the only person who could have been more astonished would have been the pilot, if he had found himself addressed by the captain in those drawing-room terms.

Fear may cause a woman to change color, but that isn't the only thing.

SEA MYSTERY SOLVED

Ship Missing For Six Years Found Fast In Ice.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 15.—The steam-ship Centennial, which left Maroran, Japan, six years ago for San Francisco, with a cargo of sulphur, and was never heard from, is reported fast in the ice off Saghalien Island, near Siberia. A Russian expedition, bound through the Okhotsk sea, discovered the missing vessel, and after a search of several days partly obliterated and her iron work corroded. There was no sign of a human being on the ship. Capt. E. E. Lert, who piloted the Russian expedition that found the Centennial, told A. Griffin, an engineer of the Philippine coast guard, of his discovery and Griffin repeated the story here at the headquarters of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association. The Centennial was first named the Delta, then the Takashaga Maru. Under her last title, the Centennial, she became an Alaskan gold ship, afterwards a government transport and at last passed into the hands of the Charles Nelson company, of San Francisco, her owners at the time she disappeared.

Thimble Rigging.

Edmonton Bulletin.

A fire in an Alberta tailor's shop last week is reported to have been caused by a defective thimble. There are two possible explanations of this incident. One is that the tailor, having pricked his finger, used some very lurid language; the other is that it was the sort of thimble.

Practical.

New York World.

"Oh, father," said the young woman, enthusiastically, "we suffragettes are eager to sweep the country."

"Humph!" replied her parent, looking at her over his spectacles, "then suppose you start your share of it in our parlor and dining room."
