BIRTHDAYS OF NOTABLE MEN
Wednesday, January Seventh.
Sir Sandford Fleming, one of Canada's grand old men, reaches his eighty-seventh milestone today. He will remember the day when he first landed in Quebec after a stormy passage of forty days aboard a sailing ship. He was then an eighteen-year-old Scottish lad, fresh from Kirkcaldy and all his worldly goods consisted of his box, two or three pieces of gold and a silver half-crown. It is interesting to know that he has kept the half-crown ever since, having a sort of superstitious regard for its influence on his fortunes. His valuable work as a railroad engineer and his services in connection with the laying of the Pacific cable commend him to the high opinion of his fellow Canadians.
