FOR CHRONIC COUGHS

Milton, Pa., Women Has Found a Remedy. Mrs. Howard Wagner, of Milton, Pa., says: "I had a bad cold for months, and would cough every day until midnight. I consulted a doctor and took two kinds of medicine but got no relief. Vinol was recommended and after taking it a week I could sleep all night without coughing once. I continued its use and now have a fine appetite, never feel better and my cough is entirely gone."

Wave Coming Again

A disturbance which was centred in the western provinces yesterday is now passing eastward across the great lakes. The weather has become much milder between Ontario and the maritime provinces but there are some indications of a cold wave coming in from the northward of Manitoba.

TO ADD SENATORS

It is the intention to place the four provinces on an equal basis of representation in the upper house, and to add three to British Columbia and two each to the others.

Selections were given by the orchestra, and songs were sung by the Misses Smith and I. Atkins, and Messrs. W. Shaw, James, P. Partridge, Thompkins, Sharp, Halliday and Secker.

Dust Laden Records

Searching for important old manuscripts at the British public record office, whether by Shakespearean students or others, is disagreeable work. Nine-tenths of the manuscripts are covered with the dust of ages, and an hour among them makes the searcher as black as a sweep. Some of the documents are so fragile that they can scarcely be touched without their falling to pieces, such as those rescued from the House of Lords fire in 1834, which were so hopelessly saturated with water that bundles of them had to be squeezed dry in powerful presses.

SAVED BY A SNUFF BOX

Fit of Sneezing Kept Tiger From Eating English Officer.

Perhaps no man's life was ever saved to him by a more curious circumstance than that attending the execution of a captain of the Bengal army. He had been on a visit to a friend in Rajpootana, and went out for a walk in the country about sunset. After going four or five miles he found himself in a narrow path on the side of a steep hill. The path was a little ledge in the rock, with a deep hem on one side and a wall of solid rock on the other. It was not a pleasant place in which to come face to face with a big tiger; but that was not what happened to the captain.

Women and Feathers

James Buckland, who is fighting for a law in England to prevent the traffic in plumes for hats, calls women who wear feathers on their hats "scented ruffians. He says that some of the ruffians of women who would have birds killed to supply them with vanity decorations. "The befuddled Herodias," says he, "cannot plead she errs in ignorance. The truth is that for all their boasted refinement, some women are in their impulses little else than scented barbarians. They are in such utter bondage to vanity as to be at the mercy of every whim of fashion, and when fashion decrees that feathers shall be worn they are absolutely without conscience or feeling, so far as the treatment of their victims is concerned."

The Southern Seas

Readers of old records of exploration in the South Seas will recall frequent references to the heavy swells of the ocean, which impressed the navigators with the idea of their remoteness from land. Doctor Vaughan Cornish explains the great size of the sea waves, in high southern latitudes by the fact that south of the Cape of Good Hope the prevailing wind in all longitudes is westerly. Thus when a west wind springs up it finds a long westerly swell, the effect of a previous wind, still running. The new born swell increases the steepness of this swell, and so forms majestic storm waves, which sometimes obtain a length of 1,200 feet from crest to crest. The average height attained by sea waves in fact is about half the velocity of the wind in miles per hour.

Esquires

Two centuries ago, declares The London Chronicle, engaged in trade, even though of gentle blood, held they had no right to be addressed as "esquire." In the report of the historical manuscripts commission on the Welbeck Abbey papers appears a letter from Nathaniel Harley, merchant at Aleppo, to a correspondent in London, which concludes with the remark, "Pray, sir, inform your clerk who supercribes your letters that no merchants are wrote Esqs. but fools and coxcombs." And yet Nathaniel Harley was the brother of the Earl of Oxford, leader of the Tories, whom Swift proclaimed "the most virtuous minister and the most able that ever I remember to have read of."

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods of reducing weight have made this revision possible. "If you are overweight and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmosa case of Marmosa Prescription Tablets (compounded) in accordance with the famous Marmosa Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leaving exercising to the fittest, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that fatty flesh will quickly fall away from your leaving behind it your natural slim, neatly finished in firm flesh and trim muscles."

PLUNGED INTO FURNACE

Rare Heroism Was Displayed by Lester Brooks. Port Colborne, Ont., Jan. 15.—One hero, Lester Brooks, (formerly of Kingston), lost his life, and two others, Jack McCracken and Charles Guidette, narrowly missed death when trying to rescue the former who had jumped to the bell of a heated blasting furnace at the Canadian Furnace Co.'s plant here Tuesday night, in an effort to rescue a Hungarian laborer named Joseph Postico, who had slipped into the furnace while caulking ore. The story of their heroism is almost without precedent in the annals of Canadian industrial development.
