SHOULD WORK OUT WELL.

The Board of Education is having the sympathetic assistance of the Dental Association in developing a plan by which there will be a systematic inspection of the pupils of the public schools and the treatment of the teeth...

AIDING THE VERY POOR

The question of how to care for the very poor of the city, those who are deserving of consideration, having no work and hence no way of earning a livelihood for themselves and their families, has become acute.

THE FIRST EXPOSURE

The first report of the commission which is making a municipal survey of Toronto has been heard. It concerns the fire department, an expensive institution, one about which the people have had their doubts...

There is one defect that the commission of research does not mention—perhaps it is so palpable as not to need special mention—namely that the department is a great political machine...

More complaints about the condition of the Toronto schools. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent in buildings, and they are no sooner completed than grave defects are found.

OUR UNKNOWN WEALTH. The Peterboro Review, in a series of articles, shows how rich is the Trent Valley in ores which only await the use of capital before surprising the world with their wealth.

The Review is to be thanked for the revelations which it has made of the riches of the district in minerals and in inviting the attention of capitalists to them.

An engineer reverts to the water powers that through Eastern Ontario are going to waste. He remarks: "I seriously think that the development of a number of the smaller powers that are scattered throughout the district would do more good than the installation of a single long transmission scheme."

The Napanee river has invited attention and if the commission passed upon the importance of its power—and the possibility of increasing it many fold, by connection with the falls north of its present reservoir—the present troubles with the settlers in two townships would disappear.

It is declared that "hell is being let loose in South Africa," in connection with the labour troubles. Getting a foretaste of the conditions that are supposed to be reserved for the wicked by and bye, eh?

EDITORIAL NOTES

Sir William Oger is out in favour of compulsory military training. Will Canada stand for it? Not any more than England stands for conscription.

Mr. Borden will propose that the senate be enlarged by the addition of two members from each province. Is this not a strain of the B.N.A. Act? And the senate will have something to say about it.

The Insurance Act of Britain has been in operation for a year, and such has been the use of it that any proposal now to repeal it would be voted down by a sweeping majority.

The late Senator Cox was a man of marked ability. For over a quarter of a century he has been, like the late J. Pierrepont Morgan, a power in the financial world, helping to frame great projects for the good of the country.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Last Man. London Advertiser. Christabel Pankhurst denies that she is married. Chink is probably holding that extreme doctrine for the last man.

The One Exception. Toronto Globe. The Tories are willing to do anything for the unemployed except take the taxes off the food they find it so difficult to obtain.

An Expensive Way. Montreal Herald. Burning down the house is, of course, one way to thaw out frozen pipes, but there are certain inconveniences attached to it which will prevent its every becoming widely popular.

Out of Labor. Hamilton Herald. Unemployment is a problem which is everywhere acute on this continent. In New York state, according to the official reports of the department of labor, the number of workers who were idle rose from 196,454 in 1897 to 627,994 in 1913.

Help the Folks. Montreal Mail. Toronto has voted $25,000 to begin work so to help the unemployed of the city. Reports say Montreal has a great many out of work also, and some action might well be taken.

The Safest Place. Montreal Gazette. District Attorney Whitman, of New York, is enquiring into the methods by which 15,000 depositors in a departmental store bank had $2,500,000 of their savings tied up as the result of a business reverse.

Kingston Events 25 YEARS AGO.

Lady Macdonald is learning typewriting to facilitate her correspondence and literary work. The number will be increased to 100.

BIRTHDAYS OF NOTABLE MEN

Saturday, January Seventeenth. J. P. Downey, who is now superintendent of the Orillia Asylum but formerly a well known Canadian newspaperman, is forty-nine years old today.

Sunday, January Eighteenth. To-day marks the fifty-sixth birthday of George S. May, one of the most prominent citizens of the capital. He is in business a leather manufacturer, the head of a firm established by his father, many years ago.

Wise and : : Otherwise

Bad politicians often resort to good politics.

The sour stomach spoils the sweet disposition.

Drinking whiskey has put many men in deep water.

No man is rich who does not think he is.

The man of few words often keeps them busy.

Mother Mine. I love each furrow in thy face, The silver in thy hair; There's naught but beauty I can trace, There's none that half so fair.

The Very I-dee! Wife!—In this book the author says the heroine had a 'wealth of golden hair'.

Married in haste, we repent at leisure.—Congreve.

Humble wedlock is far better than proud virginity.—Augustine.

A person's character is but formed until after wedlock.—C. Simons.

Take not too short a time to make a worldwide bargain in.—Shakespeare.

Men marry to make an end, women to make a beginning.—A. Dupuy.

For any man to match above his rank is but to sell his liberty.—Massinger.

Wedlock's like wine, not properly judged till the second glass.—Terrell.

A husband is a plaster that cures all the ills of girlhood.—Mollere.

A man finds himself seven years older the day after his marriage.—Bacon.

Fathers their children and themselves abuse, that wealth, as husband for their daughters choose.—Shirley.

No man can either live piously or die righteously without a wife.—Richter.

Never marry but for love; but see that thou lovest what is love.—Penny.

Men should keep their eyes wide open before marriage and half shut afterward.—Mad Seuderl.

Margaret Deland. Take every chance you can possibly get to be kind; Because some day there may be no more chances.

Courtesy Plea. Wouldn't it be nice if a lot of people got together and put in a plea for thoughtfulness toward the men and women who go from house to house to sell, to collect, or to present some good cause?

Quaker Quips. If you want to be pretty sure of clear weather, save up for a rainy day. Lots of men are slaves to their money, but then the world is full of emancipators.

The coal man will make things warm for you, even if you don't pay his bills. There is quite a difference between getting a job and holding the key to a situation.

You are generally known by the company you keep, especially if you happen to be a jailer.—Philadelphia Record.

How? "Why is a horse that can't hold its head up like next Wednesday?" "Don't know."

"Why, because its neck's weak." "Oh, I heard that joke about a week back."—Sacred Heart Review.

OLD FRIENDS. As I sit and mull over the time Of the roses that adorned my room I am thinking of friends, true and tried.

Who have parted with the change in the tide.

And I sigh, "When my roses shall fade And their leaves in the rose jar be laid Other flowers my vases shall fill, I can always replace them at will."

But I would not replace if I could The friends who in loyalty stood. When the sun upon other lands beams, Old friends, I am with you in dreams!

—Ethel Serrell Chester.
