Moving Up The Calendar Here is January—and the merchants are talking Spring. Just run your eye over the advertising in to-day's newspaper and you see news of white sales, announcements of exhibitions of spring cottons, and even hints at the secrets of the Spring styles.

Merchandise used to move by season. Now it moves by advertising. There are no dull seasons for the live retailers. He is always ahead of the public—and the public, always eager for the new things, is mighty glad of it.

There is no better example to be found anywhere of the power of persistent advertising coupled with good merchandising than the success of these January sales which, all over North America, are announced through newspaper advertising.

Advertising is always a little bit ahead of the times. That is what makes it so interesting.

ULSTER WOMEN'S DUTIES Will Play Big Part in the Event of Hostilities.

START WORK RAISING SUNKEN SUBMARINE Story Of Crew's Awful Fight With Death May Not Be Made Public Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 22.-Divers have ascertained that the sunken submarine-A7 can be raised, and operations commenced at daylight. The admiralty has given orders that no attempt shall be made to open the submarine till she is safely in dry-dock. This means that no story of the crew's awful fight with death will be made public unless the admiralty considers it advisable.

FALLING OFF IN DRUNKENNESS Is Cold Weather or High Cost of Living the Cause? The high cost of living or the exceedingly cold weather responsible for the falling off in the business of the police office? During the past week or so, there have been very few cases before the court, and remarkably few complaints have been received.

One outstanding feature is the falling off in drunkenness. The cold weather may be responsible for this, but at any rate the tipplers must be given credit for keeping on the water wagon. There was no session of the police court on Thursday morning.

BLAKESMAN KILLED Jumped From His Train in Front of Express. Belleville, Jan. 22.-James J. Lucas, of this city, a young man scarcely twenty years of age, and employed as a brakeman on the Grand Trunk railway, was killed at Brighton. He jumped from one train in front of an express and met almost instant death. He was unmarried.

Runaway At Albion Hotel. An exciting runaway occurred on Thursday afternoon, when Andrew Granger was about ready to leave the Albion hotel yard. Along with another man he had just got comfortable when Granger reached for the reins which were hanging over the dashboard, when the young horse became frightened and made a leap out of the hotel yard. The sharp turn which the animal made caused the cutter to turn over, throwing the occupants overboard.

Elect. Officers For Brockville Fair. Brockville, Ont., Jan. 22.-The Brockville fair and horse show passed another successful milestone at its annual meeting, which was well attended. There is a comfortable balance on hand from last year's exhibition, the receipts of which reached almost $10,000. The new officers are: President, A. C. Hardy, Brockville; first vice-president, F. I. Ritchie, Brockville; second vice-president, H. D. McDougall, Fairfield; board of directors, William Bronte, G. A. Wright, G. Morrison (Brockville), R. Dams (Spring Vale), E. H. Easton, S. D. To RAID THE HOMES OF CABINET MINISTERS Militants Declare They Will Make The Year 1914 "Politically" Famous London, Jan. 22.-The avowed aim of the militant suffragettes now is to "make 1914 politically famous." The militants threaten to make a more extensive crusade than they have done so far as soon as parliament re-assembles. Of this campaign, it is asserted that the threats to storm Buckingham Palace to see the king if he refused to receive a deputation of suffragettes is only a small part. The new campaign is to include raids on the homes of the members of the cabinet and violent disturbance at society functions and sporting events.

Germany "Stands Pat." No Change in the Present Commercial Treaties Berlin, Jan. 22.-The minister of the interior, Clemens Delbrueck, announced in the reichstag that the government had decided to stand pat on the present commercial treaties, all of which are subject to renunciation and revision in 1917. The government, he said would neither submit a new tariff law as a basis for new treaties nor denounce the existing treaties. The initiative in the matter of new treaties must come from the foreign governments; otherwise they would be automatically extended.

To Press for Amendments Ottawa, Jan. 22.-Representatives of organized labor throughout the dominion will press the government, this session, for amendments to the railway act and industrial disputes act. One idea is to provide some system of automatic compensation for all employees of railways injured during performance of their duties as well as fixed compensation for widows and families of the men killed. Representatives of the railway employees are of opinion that compulsory compensation can be provided for throughout the dominion by an amendment to the railway act.

Who Will Succeed. Ottawa, Jan. 22.-Who will succeed Strathcona to the position of high commissioner for Canada in London? That is the question being asked in parliamentary circles to-day. It is rumored here that if Premier Borden could find a man upon whom he could confirm the mantle of office here he would himself withdraw from the hurly-burly of political life and take up legs overseas but equally honorable position of high commissioner. The premier is not over-fond of the responsible and nerve-racking position which he now has.

SPLENDID TRIBUTES TO LORD STRATHCONA

Paid in Commons And Senate On Wednesday

ADJOURNMENT MADE BY BOTH HOUSES FOR TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

The Eloquent Words Spoken by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir George W. Ross - Message of the Duke of Connaught.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.-Parliament adjourned almost immediately after prayers yesterday as a national tribute of respect to the memory of Lord Strathcona. The proceedings were brief and impressive. Premier Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in moving and seconding the resolution to adjourn for twenty-four hours, spoke eloquently and feelingly of the long life and distinguished services of the deceased high commissioner, and the premier commended to the house the text of the cable received by his royal highness the governor-general from the British secretary of state for the colonies. Sir Wilfrid Laurier likened the universal sense of Canadian loss experienced to that which followed the death of Sir John Macdonald, and in the further course of his memorable tribute took occasion to graciously refer to the fact that it was to the government of Sir Charles Tupper that Lord Strathcona owed his appointment as high commissioner, "and," added Sir Wilfrid warmly, "no wiser selection was ever made."

"Since Sir John Macdonald's time," said Sir Wilfrid, "I don't know that there has been any Canadian who on departing this life has left behind him such a trail of sorrow as Lord Strathcona. He is mourned by his majesty the king, whose personal friend he was; by the peers of the realm, in whose illustrious house he had acquired an honored place; by the authorities of commerce and of finance in the commercial and financial metropolis of the world, who had found in him an equal; by the poor of London, to whom on repeated occasions he was the incarnation of benevolent providence; by the people of Scotland, the land of his birth, with whom he never completely severed his connection; and in Canada by all classes of the community, rich and poor, high and low, of every creed and race."

In the Senate. Tributes to the memory of Lord Strathcona were paid by the leaders of the senate yesterday, and a motion to adjourn out of respect to the late high commissioner was adopted, and the house rose after an hour's sitting.

Sir George Ross said that one of Canada's greatest men had fallen by the way. "In such cases as this," he said, "we stand in the shadow of a great career," he said. "To-day we do not stand in the shadow, but in the luminous light of the greatest career of any Canadian with whom I am acquainted. Of the way in which he lived, which distinguished Lord Strathcona, the first to my mind, is the resolute purpose he showed from his earliest days to his latest hours."

The Duke's Message. Ottawa, Jan. 22.-The Duke of Connaught has sent the following cable to Lady Strathcona (daughter of Lord Strathcona): "Please accept expression of very deep sympathy from the Duchess of Connaught and myself. Lord Strathcona's lofty ideals and splendid patriotism, as well as his distinguished services as high commissioner, have long been a source of pride and stimulus in his native country. Among Lord Strathcona's many great qualities his truly magnificent generosity was probably the most outstanding. His memory will ever be kept green in the dominion of the generations of Canada.-(Signed) Arthur."

King May Attend Funeral London, Jan. 22.-King George and Queen Mary will be personally present on Monday at the funeral services for Lord Strathcona in Westminster Abbey. The family has finally decided to decline all offers of burial place at St. Paul's or Westminster, and interment will take place at Highgate, where the deceased's wife is buried.

Who Will Succeed. Ottawa, Jan. 22.-Who will succeed Strathcona to the position of high commissioner for Canada in London? That is the question being asked in parliamentary circles to-day. It is rumored here that if Premier Borden could find a man upon whom he could confirm the mantle of office here he would himself withdraw from the hurly-burly of political life and take up legs overseas but equally honorable position of high commissioner. The premier is not over-fond of the responsible and nerve-racking position which he now has.

WIDOW AWARDED $50 HEART BALM

Mr. Northam, However Has Bill Of Sale Of Her Household Effects

Waterloo, N.Y., Jan. 22.-Awarded a verdict of $50 in supreme court, Mrs. Jessie Smith, who sued W. G. Northam, undertaker, for $10,000 for alleged breach of promise, will retain the diamond ring which she claims Mr. Northam gave her. Mr. Northam will retain a bill of sale of the widow's household goods, now stored in the Hubbard block. The jury retired at 10.40 o'clock. At noon the jurors asked for instructions relative to the bill of sale of Mrs. Smith's goods. Justice Emshorn made the evidence clear to the jurors who returned and remained unheard from until shortly before four o'clock. The court room was well filled at the time, many persons having remained throughout the day, so eager were they to be on hand when a verdict was returned.
