SHUT IN; THEN FORGOT

How Late Charles Stewart Parnell Was Lost

London, Feb. 18—John L. Parnell, who is writing reminiscences of his brother, the late Charles Stewart Parnell, tells how their mother lost the famous Irish leader when he was a baby.

She was nursing him when an unexpected visitor was announced. She hastily stowed the infant into a drawer, which she shut hurriedly, and then greeted her visitor. When the latter left the mother was utterly unable to recall where she had put the baby, who, after she made a long and frantic search, proclaimed his whereabouts by muffled howls.

"Buy Jad salts" at Gibson's.

J. W. Flavelle, president of the William Davies Co., Toronto, says the inefficiency of the consumer is largely a cause of the high cost of living.

Peaches Very Little Damaged

Welland, Feb. 18.—Reports from the St. Catharines district of serious injury or total destruction of the peach crop are offset by a very different report from the great Pelham peach district. One prominent Pelham fruit grower gives it as his opinion that unless something happens later in the season the crop will be a good one. Good buds are plentiful, although of course a few have been nipped with the frost.
