H. A. AMES LECTURED

AT THE Y.M.C.A. A BUSINESS MEN'S BANQUET

On the Composition and Strategic Apportionment of the British Navy — D. G. Laidlaw Presided.

At the annual business men's banquet of the Y. M. C. A., held in the boys' department of the building on Thursday evening, H. B. Ames, M. P. of Montreal, gave an address of excellence on the composition and strategic apportionment of the British navy. It was generously voted instructive and interesting, both for the uniqueness of the subject and the able manner in which Mr. Ames delivered the lecture. Views and diagrams thrown on the screen from a lantern operated by I. H. Brock were indispensable to the effect of the lecture.

Mr. Ames traced the history of British battleship construction from the time of Nelson's flagship, "Victory," which was fifty years old at the time of the battle of Trafalgar, to the present modern construction of the admiralty. He referred to the accompanying improvement in protective armor, and from year to year the growth in the size and power of the guns. Step by step Mr. Ames followed the advance in battleship construction. The first "Dreadnought" was commissioned in England in 1906. "It was not long," said he, "before naval experts throughout the world recognized her superiority over anything else afloat. Henceforth, therefore, all big gun ships were built by the powers. By 1913 there were 160 modern battleships and battle-cruisers built and built, all of which are the equal of, and in many cases superior to, the 'Dreadnought' type."

The programme of 1907 produced three ships of the "St. Vincent" type, with twelve twelve-inch guns. The programme of 1908 added to the fleet "Neptune," and in 1909 six battleships of the "Orion" type were added. In 1910 came the "King George V" type. The lecturer also spoke of the coming into use of the battle-cruiser concurrently with the development of the battleship, the latest and most formidable of these being the "Queen Mary," which was commissioned last September. The "Queen Elizabeth," recently launched, will be capable of the heaviest long-distance broadside in the navy.

"The great advance in naval power of certain European nations," said Mr. Ames, "has rendered it necessary for Britain to keep on building ships. In order to guard her shores and keep the empire safe Britain must continue to construct the best and strongest ships which science can build or money can supply."

Mr. Ames then came to the organization of the navy, commencing with the home fleet, divided into three classes as it is, according to preparation for immediate action. As well as the battleships and cruisers he explained the functions and duties of the torpedo boats and submarines. The other two fleets are the Mediterranean and the one for world-wide service. As the strength of the British navy in home waters depends upon the strength of her most powerful possible enemy, the speaker made a comparison of the naval powers of Britain and Germany.

Upon the proposal of Mr. Churchill to form an imperial squadron, based upon Gibraltar, from which station they could easily reach any point in the British empire, Mr. Ames referred to the proposed Canadian contribution of three battleships.

D. G. Laidlaw, the president of the board of directors of the association, presided. A vote of thanks was tendered to the speaker on motion of Mayor Shaw and the president of the cabinet. Dr. C. C. Nash and P. P. Jenkins proposed a vote of a similar nature to the Ladies' Auxiliary who provided and served the tasteful repast. In conclusion, before the singing of the national anthem, W. F. Nickle, M.P., spoke.

Mr. Laidlaw took occasion to call to the attention of the 100 men some of the activities of the "Y." The young men's cabinet had charge of the arrangements for the banquet, which was accorded a decided success. McAuley and Salsbury's orchestra supplied music during the repast. Allan Hafner sang a solo during the programme and some members of the "Y" glee club rendered a number.

"Cooking in the sun's rays is probable in the near future," a learned scientist tells us. That's nothing new. There are people right in this city who have been "nearly baked" by the sun's rays.

Some women think it economy to pay 10 cents to ride downtown to save five cents at a bargain counter.

Low Spirits From Weak Nerves
Low spirits, depression, discouragement, a form of nervous disease. You worry over little things and at the slightest ailment apprehend the gravest dangers and diseases. You form the habit of looking at the dark side of things. Indigestion is a frequent accompaniment, and you probably do not sleep or rest well. The cause of the trouble is to be found in the exhausted condition of the nerves. To get well you must build up the feeble, wasted nerve cells by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure forms new, rich blood, and thereby nourishes the nervous system back to health and vigor. There is nothing like new nerve force to bring back hope and confidence to the weak and discouraged. This treatment works in natural ways to restore health, and therefore, cannot fail to prove of benefit to you. Put it to the test and you will be surprised with the building-up influence that will result.

VERY FINE ART EXHIBIT

At Victoria School To Raise a Picture Fund

For the past few days Victoria school has been turned into an exhibition gallery of fine art, where there are to be seen carbon copies of some of the masterpieces of the world's greatest painters and artists. The lower hall, including the four class rooms down stairs, has the walls hung with some of the choicest pictures, abounding with grace and beauty, that could possibly be brought together into one collection. The masterpieces from which many of them are taken if they were to be bought, would cost the buyer thousands of dollars. These carbon copies are so real and minutely similar to the original that many persons would just as soon have them.

The principal of Victoria school, J. G. Ettinger, and his son, Carl, as well as the various teachers of the school, who lent a helping hand in arranging the large assortment of pictures into the various classes of English, German, French, Spanish and Italian arrangement, deserve much credit for their artistic skill and taste. By this careful assorting and placing of each in conspicuous parts of the building the spectators who visit the exhibition are thus enabled to view one particular style of artists, and then by turning to one side an entirely new assortment of a different class are to be witnessed.

Going into the various class rooms there are to be seen equally as good pictures from other lines of artists. In the kindergarten department are some pictures from those noble Dutch and Flemish artists, including Ruysdael, Mauve, Hobbeman, Staggem, Van Dyck, Halo, etc., and many of the pictures are of special mention, especially those entitled, "Baby Stuart," "The Laughing Cavalier," "Children of Charles the First."

The junior first grade include architecture and landscapes, showing scenes from Niagara Falls, Deseronto, England; Rome, Amiens, France, etc. The senior first grade include the masterpieces of English artists, among which are to be seen the works of Landseer, Reynolds, Barber, Burne-Jones, Watts, Turner, Davis, Douglas, etc. In this collection are several pretty pictures such as "The Age of Innocence," "The Boyhood of Raleigh," and others of equal merit. The senior fourth grade contains French artists and their masterpieces, such as, Carot, Jacques, Lerolle, Trayon, Bonheur, Millet, Bonnat, Leroux, Bastien-Lepage, Renouf, Greuze, LeBrun and numerous others. In this collection reigns the beautiful and tasteful.

This exhibition of fine art which opened on Thursday evening will be continued on Friday and Saturday, from 3.30 to 6 p.m., and from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m. The proceeds from this exhibition will be devoted towards raising funds to buy pictures for the school rooms of Victoria school.

One school trustee who visited the art exhibit handed Principal Ettinger a donation of $5.

Presentation to Rev. Mr. Waddell.
On Thursday, Feb. 12th, Rev. J. Waddell was greatly surprised by receiving an address and well-filled purse from his many friends at Harrowsmith and Murvale, as a slight token of their regard for their beloved pastor.

The money, to be used for the purchase of a new fur coat, came unexpectedly to Mr. Waddell, but he was very grateful and thanked his friends for their kindness and thoughtfulness. Mr. Waddell has been a faithful pastor to his people and his kind, Christian ministry has been greatly appreciated. Ever ready to minister to those sick or in trouble, a kind and sympathetic friend to rich and poor alike, he has endeared himself to his people, who are indeed sorry that his pastorate is drawing to a close. Sincere are the good wishes for the future success of himself and his family.

Pride in the Flowers
Although the Grand Trunk has not a floral department, the stations along the system are bright with flowers in the summer time. This is a work of love on the part of the agents, who when they have a lot of ground take a great pride in beautifying the front of the premises in some cases there is enough land to make a regular garden; but in most cases the agents have shown their taste by utilizing the little corners and tiny plots which have been left unused. In these places a work of beautification takes place every summer, bulking in accordance with the size and pretension of the station.

Writing to the Press
R. J. Todd, Peterboro, has been writing to the press on the subject of "Police Women, Alcohol and Christian Science." Mr. Todd was born in Pittsburg township, went through the military school in Kingston and introduced Christian Science into Kingston. The lockmaster at Brewster's Mills is a brother, and several sisters are residents in the city.

Lady Macabees Social
The lady Macabees held a social entertainment on Wednesday evening in the hall of the Chosen Friends, Princess street. There were eleven euchre tables. The first prize, a beautiful hand-painted dish, the work of Mrs. Dainty, was won by Mrs. Fowler, and the consolation prize by Mrs. Watson. Choice refreshments were provided and a very happy time was spent.

Alex Campo is head sawyer in the Parish mills, Athens, which is now well supplied with logs.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE

Thawing Out Frozen Pipes With Torch Caused Fire

Thawing out frozen pipes with a torch, is a very dangerous practice. When pipes were found frozen, at the home of John Sears, 339 Montreal street, on Friday morning a torch was used and it set fire to the house and a call was sent to the firemen. The damage will amount to about $25. The call was sent into the fire department at 9.11 o'clock. B. Strachan owns the house.

Given Warm Welcome

Dean Starr, who was undergoing medical treatment in New York, arrived home on Thursday afternoon, and was just in time to attend the closing session of the Ontario synod. He was given a warm welcome by the member upon his arrival and asked by Bishop Mills to speak a few words. He said he was very sorry to have missed the session and hoped that the gathering had been to his most beneficial one.
