GANANOQUE WORKMEN

HAVE SOME TROUBLE WITH THEIR EMPLOYEES

Thirty-One Stop Work With Manufacturing Concerns, Refusing to Drop Their Union Connection.

Gananoque, March 3.—Serious labor trouble has arisen in this town within the past few days and is causing considerable uneasiness. During the past week the harness-makers of the W. J. Gibson harness works, who have through the greater part of the winter been working on eight-hour time, and who are union men, made objection to a new man hired for a certain class of work, as the new man was a non-union one. As an outcome of this, on Saturday evening last, Mr. Gibson's employees were given the option of dropping out of the union or severing their connection with the firm forthwith. The men chose the latter alternative, fifteen in all being affected by it. This, in the eyes of the union, constitutes a lock-out.

Following closely in the wake of this, the sixteen employees of the Gananoque Harness Co., Limited, were given the same option on Monday morning, they also accepting the latter alternative. This, therefore, will affect thirty-one families of the town to a more or less extent. Mrs. Felix LaChapelle, an aged and highly respected resident of the town, possibly the oldest inhabitant of the town, ninety-five years old, suffered a paralytic stroke yesterday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Charbonneau, Garden street, and is in a very critical condition.

The Use of Left-Overs

Celery tops dried in a paper bag furnish excellent flavoring for soups. Water in which vegetables are cooked contains flavoring, mineral matter and sometimes starch. It makes a desirable addition to soup. Potato water should not be used, as it is considered by some to be unwholesome. Rice water is rich in delicate, well cooked starch, and may be nicely used to furnish thickening as well as liquid to soup. Onion water may be used in vegetable soup where no meat is used. Water in which cabbage, cauliflower or turnips have been cooked furnishes a foundation for a soup when these flavors are palatable. Careful cooks buy few materials for every-day soup making. The left-over bits of meat (which have not been handled or served), the juices from the meat plate, the water from the vegetables and the left-over vegetables furnish sufficient materials. Small quantities of raw uncooked vegetables may be scraped, cut fine and cooked in a small amount of water. To them add some stock from fresh meat or ham liquor, season and serve with bits of toasted bread. The vegetables should not be cooked in the ham liquor, or strong flavor may develop. Tomato combines nicely with ham stock, as do potatoes and celery, oysters and celery. Onion combines nicely with corn, or with both corn and tomatoes. Any of these soups from left-overs may be thickened by adding to them a few dry crusts of bread; allow them to soften and press through a colander, reheat and serve as a substantial dish for lunch or supper.

Situated almost on the summit of Hampstead Heath, it occupies a delightful position, and is very accessible to London. It was in this residence that the elder Pitt, during his frequent fits of melancholia, and in spite of the fact that he was at the time prime minister and was being urged to call upon by the king and his colleagues, shut himself off from all communication with the outside world, even from his own family and servants. The quaint little room which he chiefly used still contains the identical serving hatchway, fireplace and cupboards which were there in his time.

Descriptive He was accustomed to drinking straight, plain drinks. But one day they inveigled him into taking one of those mixed affairs; one of those that not only includes a combination of liquors, but also orange peel, pineapple, a cherry, and other rank outsiders.

"Well, what do you think of it?" he was asked by the bunch that had done the inveigling. He looked disapprovingly at the drunken garden before him. "Hoys," he said, "I object to drinking a mince pie."

On Saturday morning Justice of the Peace George Hunter will be called upon to settle a wage dispute. A caretaker of one of the schools of the township of Kingston has summoned the members of the board for non-payment of his salary. Emory Bedore, Marmora, cutting timber for co-operae use, was struck on the top of the head by a falling limb. He was removed to his home and died a day afterwards. Sweeping reductions on all trunks and suitcases; must clear. Dutton's removal sale. "For chapped hands, Dartring Toilet Lanoiline," Gibson's. Dutton's removal sale. Come.

Queen's Quite Satisfied. Queen's does not propose to introduce any material changes in the intercollegiate rugby rules at the meeting of the committee of the union to be held here on Saturday. The Whig learned from an official of the club on Tuesday that although the local university may seek a clearing up of the interpretation of a couple of the rules, it will not move for any important innovations. The present rules, taken as a whole, it appears, are satisfactory to Queen's.

Would Like to Know The Board of Trade is again likely to ask the City Council what is being done in regard to the city taking over the surrendered lands of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway company. Action on this matter has been hanging fire for some time and no reason is assigned for delay. Kingston council ought to have possession of the properties from the government. Tomskimming will, likely, be divided into two constituencies, one taking in the northern half of the present riding from the height of the land, and the other the lower portion embracing Cobalt, Haldenbury, New Lineard and the mining region generally.

ALD. HARRISON RESIGNS

Ald. Nickle paid a tribute to Ald. Harrison, saying that if he wanted an example of how a boy should grow up, he would pick Ald. Harrison for that example. All would be sorry to see him leave the council. If he persists in having his resignation accepted, Ald. Nickle declared that Ald. Harrison would have done more for Kingston than any man in the mayor's chair in years.

"The conditions in this council for some time past have been intolerable," declared Ald. Nickle. "There is no man for whom I have greater respect than Ald. Harrison. He is one of the town builders," declared Ald. Nickle in conclusion.

"I am not surprised at Ald. Harrison's action," remarked Ald. Richardson, who continued: "You can tell the active alderman in council by what is said of them." Ald. Richardson feared that if Ald. Harrison pressed his resignation he would be handing over his arms to the enemy. He hoped he would stand by his guns and withdraw it.

"Ald. Harrison has been doing things for this city that many of us have not had the courage to do in the past," remarked Ald. Kent in a tribute to his ward associate. He hoped the resignation would be withdrawn for the council could not afford to lose a man like Ald. Harrison.

Ald. Harrison Determined Ald. Harrison then arose with a beaming face after he had listened to the earnest pleadings of the mayor and his fellow-alderman, and thanked them for their kind expressions, but he said he had no intention of withdrawing his resignation. He was sorry he could not see his way clear to do so.

"I do not give every man the right to say what he likes about me without replying," he remarked. "I value my reputation more than for myself personally. I have an influence over several hundred young people and am attempting to uplift them. I would rather take the energy I devote here and put it where it is more congenial."

Ald. Harrison here referred to the fact that he was superintendent of Sydney Street Methodist bible school, and it was not the best thing to give these young people the opportunity of reading even veiled suggestions to take my resignation, they are, with regard to their leader.

"Perhaps this protest will cause a change," he remarked. "It is the contemptible attitude of the general public, influenced by two or three men, who can go out and injure the reputation of a man. I am willing to take my resignation in a fair contest."

"I had hoped that I might have even succeeded the present mayor, but I am willing to give up that chance and retire from municipal life rather than stand for the things that have been suggested of me during the past two weeks."

"Perhaps the council comes down to fourteen members," said Ald. Harrison in conclusion and with a smile. "I may want to be back here."

The mayor said he would refer the resignation of Ald. Harrison to the Finance committee. It was twenty minutes to one o'clock when the council adjourned the session being the longest in some years.

STRICKEN ON SULKY

FRANCIS TRUEDELL, OF COLLINS BAY, DIED MONDAY.

He Fell to the Ice While Driving a Pacer — Lingered For Some Days — Was a Well-known Horseman.

Stricken with paralysis at the Collins Bay ice racing event last Thursday, Francis Truedell, after lingering in a semi-unconscious condition, passed away at his home on the Bath Road, where he resided for over thirty years, shortly before four o'clock on Monday afternoon.

The deceased, who was born on Amherst Island, and not known to have been ill a day in his life, was in a cutter driving the pacer D.O.D. when he suffered the stroke. He fell to the ice, holding onto the reins. The horse stopped, and the late Mr. Truedell, uninjured, but unable to converse, was lifted into the cutter and driven home. It was thought that the stroke would not terminate fatally, and his death was unexpected.

The snow storm which caused the blocking of the country roads kept the family from getting into the city to make the funeral arrangements until Tuesday morning.

The late Francis Truedell, who was well known in both city and county, would, had he lived, have celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday on Tuesday. The Truedell homestead is this side of Collins Bay.

Surviving are his widow (formerly Miss Grass); five sons, John, of the Bath Road; Charles, of Hamilton, George, of St. Catharines; Lewis, of York Road, and Willis, of Bath Road; four daughters; Mrs. E. B. Asselstine, of Hamilton; Mrs. George Gibson, of Collins Bay, and the Misses Florence and Etta, at home. The deceased's aged mother, ninety-five years of age, Mrs. Truedell, is living, and enjoying good health. Charles Truedell, of the Portland Road, is a brother.

The late Mr. Truedell was a Methodist in religion, and in politics a conservative.

Wireless for Miners An invention has been brought to light which will serve considerably to minimize the dangers to which every day the large number of underground workers in the kingdom are exposed.

A clever German subject, Herr J. H. Reinecke, of Westphalia, has invented a system of wireless telegraphy for use in mines. The system has been adopted at Dinington main colliery in Yorkshire, where instruments have been fixed at two points and conversations have been carried on with the same ease as in the case with ordinary telephones.

There is a portable instrument adapted for use in the cage while ascending and descending the shaft, and so a means of communication with those above ground in time of disaster has been established. By this means rescue work will be considerably facilitated, for entombed miners will be in direct communication with the pit head, thus being able to call for assistance and give directions as to their whereabouts and the best means of reaching them.—London Times.

Unpardonable The man who perpetrated the following "joke" is still alive though he goes about in constant terror. It was at lunch. They were talking about literary matters, and somebody expressed a great admiration for the stories of Leonard Merrick, the English writer.

"By the way, did you know that America was responsible for his vote?" put in another. "It was on this side of the Atlantic that he first became popular."

At this point the awful witticism was born in the brain of him whose days are numbered. Leaning back non-chalantly he said, "I was the man who started the Leonard Merrick craze here. I'm the guy that put the Merrick in America."

He escaped with difficulty.

Chosen Friends Social Evening After the regular business meeting of Council No. 121 of Chosen Friends on Monday evening a delightful social evening was spent by the members. A programme was carried through which included solos by Messrs. W. Ede, T. J. Smith, T. Wright; recitations by H. Hawley, Dr. A. E. Knapp; a piano selection by Mrs. James Truedell. Harry Sharpe gave a short address.
