ANCIENT LAW CITED

RECALLING A MARINE COLLISION NEAR NAPANEE

The Question of Jurisdiction Involved the Meaning of a Statute 514 Years Old.

A statute passed in the year 1400, in the reign of Henry IV, was adduced by Justice Middleton in a judgment given at Osgoode Hall yesterday in connection with a collision which took place a few months ago near Napanee between the schooner Winnie Wing and a mud scow in tow of the tug Maggie R. King. The tug owner, W. E. Phin, of Hamilton, was sued by the schooner owner, Reuben K. Shipman, of Napanee, for $3,000 damages, as his schooner was sunk and was out of commission for some time. The writ was issued in the common law courts, and the defendant raised the objection that it should have been issued in the exchequer court of Canada, which has jurisdiction as a court of admiralty.

Justice Middleton remarks that the contention as to the jurisdiction between common law and admiralty courts is an ancient one. He brushes the dust of ages off the authorities, and quotes from one of the reign of James I.

"Lord Coke," he says, "triumphantly vindicates the exclusive jurisdiction of the common law courts in all such cases, and the right to prohibit the encroachments of the admiralty," and concludes his argument with this quaint passage:

"To conclude the king of England's navy doth exceed the shipping of all other foreign kings and princes; for if you respect beautiful statefulness, or stately beauty, they are so many large and spacious, kingly and princely palaces. If you respect strength and defence, they are so many moving impregnable castles and barbicans and were tearmed of old the walls of the realm."

It is held that the plaintiff is right in his contention that common law courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the admiralty courts in inland waters.

THE OLD BOYS AT HOME

The following verses were read by Lieut-Col James Galloway at the Kingston Old Boys "At Home" at Toronto last week:

The Kingston Old Boys Don't make a big noise, In a city the size of Toronto. They're not known to fame, They get there just the same, As most of the games they're on to.

Of Kingston we're proud, We go down with a crowd, And they give us a whole of a time; We may have a good park, In the bay or the park, As that's not considered a crime.

We have members galore Who are true to the core And accept what old Kingston can offer.

We have women so gay, Who are willing to pay, Altho' it has hurt Oberndorfer.

We are not very loud, Tho' we have "Jack" McLeod In the chair for the whole of this year.

With "Doc" Reid and Donnell, We are sure to do well, They'll look after the cash, never fear.

In the officers you choose You have nothing to lose, Their work they will do to a man; They will keep up the fun, Dull care's on the run, You're sure to approve of the plan.

So pay if you please, And feel at your ease, The fee is but a mere pittance; The girl and the man, Are on the same plan, (From dunning it gives you a quit-tance.)

So let one and all When he hears of the call, Respond with a heart and a hand, And we'll make such a noise, That the Kingston Old Boys, Will be heard throughout all the land.

We have Mowat you know, And Pellatt also,

And Britton, with justice for all; We have McIntyre now, He will make his bow, When next the Old Boys on him call.

We're at home to our friends, As all of this tends, In friendship to bind us together, For the place of our birth, Is the one spot on earth, That's beautiful in rought or fair weather.

Joseph Hawkey Sells Out

Glenvale, March 9.—The sale of farm stock and implements, held at Joseph Hawkey's on Friday, Feb. 27th, was well attended and good prices were realized. Mr. Hawkey has rented his farm to Robert Carl and has taken up residence at Elginburg. The Sunday school concert held in the Presbyterian church on Friday evening, March 6th, was a success. Dr. J. E. Mabey, of Odessa, acted as chairman and talent from Kingston and Odessa assisted in a very interesting programme. Edwin Clark is holding a sale of stock on Wednesday, March 11th. Robert Gibson has completed his work as assessor. Miss Bilda Orser visited relatives in Kingston last week. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Day and family, of Harrowsmith, spent a couple of days at R. Gibson's. Miss Maggie Howes, of Glendover, is visiting relatives here. Miss Dora Warriman, attending the Kingston Business College, spent the week-end at home. Miss Edith Carl, who underwent a critical operation in Kingston general hospital, was able to return home last Saturday, much improved in health.

At Elmira, N. Y., Hobart Scott was burned to death and John Wintermute lies in a critical condition as the result of a fire which did about $1,400 damage to the foundry of the reformatory. Both were inmates and were engaged in fighting the flames.

McDONNELL'S BRIDE

She May Become the Countess of Antrim

ARGUS McDonnell's actress bride has a fair chance of becoming some day a peeress of the realm, as Countess of Antrim. For between her husband and the earldom there are but two lives, namely, those of his elder brother, Viscount Dunluce, and the latter's three-year-old boy.

The name of the earl of Antrim is familiar to every trans-Atlantic tourist, who has visited Ireland, as the county is the home of the Giant's Causeway situated on the north shore of County Antrim. The Giant's Causeway is managed by a syndicate organized by Lord Antrim for the express purpose of preserving it, and preventing its injury and destruction. It has fenced in the causeway and charges a small fee for admission.

ARGUS McDonnell, who makes his home on his ranch, near Vancouver, B.C., will take his bride thither to live, as soon as she terminates her theatrical tour. The marriage took place secretly, at December, at Chicago, where she was playing at the time. She is a daughter of the English playwright, Henry Arthur Jones.

McDonnell, and of course his father, the Earl of Antrim, have royal blood in their veins, and are of Scotch origin, though their family has been settled in Ireland since the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and are descended from John, Lord of the Isles, and Margaret, daughter of King Robert II., of Scotland.

The connection of the McDonnells of the Isles with Antrim, may be said to have begun nearly a century prior to the reign of Queen Elizabeth. They have played a role in the wars of the Scots in Ulster against the English, and in the sanguinary feuds with the O'Neills. But Sorley Ruie McDonnell, securing by force the Irish estates of his family, put an end to the war of his house with the O'Neills, by marrying Lady Mary O'Neill, daughter of the Earl of Tyrone, and made his peace with Queen Elizabeth, according to the letter his allegiance.

She confirmed him in all his possessions, notably in the estates which his family had wrested by force from the McQuillans, a house still in existence, the members of which boast of being able to trace their ancestry back in an unbroken line for 3000 years, when the original McQuillan emigrated from Babylon to Scotland.

The McQuillan property which thus passed to the McDonnells, included the grand old castle of Dunluce, formerly a famous stronghold on the coast of Antrim, and today one of the most picturesque ruins of the old world. It stands upon an isolated rock, a hundred feet above the level of the sea, and is connected with the mainland by a bridge barely two feet wide. Its age is uncertain, though tradition ascribes its construction to Courcy, Earl of Ulster, and naturally it has been the subject of endless stories and legends.

Sorley McDonnell's son was created by James I, Viscount Dunluce of Dunluce Castle, and Earl of Antrim. They died towards the end of the eighteenth century, without male issue, having previously obtained a recreation of his peerage, with remainder of his daughters, primo generality, and to their male issue.

On his demise his eldest daughter became Countess of Antrim in her own right, but dying without male issue, the earldom and viscounty, as well as the estates, passed to her younger sister, Lady Charlotte McDonnell, from whose marriage with Lord Mark Kerr, the present Earl of Antrim is descended.

Like so many other British peers, especially those of Scotland and Ireland, Lord Antrim has had to defend his honors and estates against claimants, some of whom hailed from Elmwood, Ind., who assert that they are descended from the son of a former Earl of Antrim, who ran away from Ireland years ago and settled, married and died in New Jersey.

There is no trace, however, of this mythical runaway son of a Lord of Antrim, in the annals of the house of McDonnell; and, moreover, the claimants in question had the misfortune to bear the surname of Antrim, instead of McDonnell, which is the patronymic of the earls of Antrim.

Perth Road Budget

Perth Road, March 9.—The village is booming as the lumbermen are making use of the good roads. All are patiently awaiting Mrs. Foxton's return to start the saw mill which has been closed for so long a time. Mrs. E. Babcock is convalescent after suffering from an attack of grippe. Mrs. W. B. Thompson is convalescent after an attack of inflammation. The many friends of J. Young extend their sympathy to him over the death of his wife. On account of the blockade in the roads caused by the storm on March 1st and 2nd some of the mails were delayed for a couple of days. Miss Myrtle Raymond, of Sydenham high school, spent Sunday at home. Mr. and Mrs. A. McFadden, of Inverary, at R. Harris'. Mrs. William Raymond spent Saturday in Kingston; Ross Guthrie, of Maple Leaf, at Mrs. J. W. Raymond's; John Harris is renewing old acquaintances at Wilbur; Harry Johnston, at H. McFadden's; C. Orser, at H. Campbell's. A number of young people spent an enjoyable evening on March 4th at J. M. Storey's. Mr. and Mrs. Paul at John S. Robert's. Miss F. Abbott, Miss A. Snook and Mrs. Wina Campbell, at Wilmer Campbell's. Russell Ritchie spent Sunday at R. Harris'.

Second thoughts may be best, but you can't always make the man who has been married twice believe it.

PRISON COMMISSION

REPORT WILL BE WRITTEN ON FRIDAY IN TORONTO.

Members Will Hold Special Meeting There to Get Report in Shape For Presentation to Government—Will be Handed to Minister of Justice Next Week.

The report of the Prison Reform Commission has not yet been written. It will be prepared at a special meeting of the commissioners, to be held in Toronto on Friday, when the chairman, G. M. Macdonald, and Dr. Frederick Etherington will go to Toronto, and meet J. P. Downey, of Orillia, the other member of the commission, for the purpose of getting the report ready for presentation to the government.

The report will be in the hands of the minister of justice next week. Just when it will be brought up in the House of Commons.

The members of the commission have everything "cut and dried" and all that remains to be done now is that of writing out the findings and recommendations.

The members have given no intimation whatever as to their recommendations and they will be kept a secret until the report has been presented in the House of Commons.

Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P., who was present at all the sessions of the commission, and who had several lively "scraps" with the chairman over the taking of evidence, will have something to say when the report is presented. According to what the doctor stated before the commission he will have a great deal to say along certain lines. Kingston's other member in the house, W. F. Nickle, has taken no part whatever in the investigation. The charges against officials at the big prison were made by Dr. Edwards.

At Star Corners.

Star Corners, March 9.—A number from here attended the tea meeting at Murvale on Feb. 27th, also the concert at Harrowsmith on Friday night. B. S. Guess is doing well at the general hospital. Mr. Frank was out for a few days last week getting in his supply of ice for the summer. A. E. Bradshaw's chess meeting at Harrowsmith was well attended. Mrs. Parrott, Napanee, at B. S. Guess'; Mrs. A. McConnell and daughter, Margaret, have returned from visiting friends at Tamworth. Sperry Snider and family spent Sunday at Sydenham.

There is only one thing a woman likes better than being told a secret, and that is telling one. Some people who boast that they always do their best would even do their best friends. The other man's story may be of much consequence in forming a right opinion.

If you do not wear rubbers

Do this once to your shoes, then you'll have no more wet feet.

DRI-FOOT Waterproofing

does not injure any kind of shoes. It thoroughly waterproofs them, besides making them soft, pliable and comfortable on the feet.

A 25 cent can is more than enough for a pair of shoes and one treatment is sufficient. Shoes look the same and take the same high polish.

Try it on our recommendation.
