BUILD UP YOUR HOME MARKET

Farmers Should Patronize Local Trade Centers.

AVOID BOX CAR MERCHANT.

Interest Your Local Newspaper Publisher, Bankers and Lawyers in Plan to Advance Your Town—Mail Order Houses Stifle Development of Small Localities.

There are two ways of looking at the subjects of home markets, and the subjects should be studied from both viewpoints if a reasonably correct understanding is to be arrived at.

It should be understood in advance that each community, inclusive of all the people who live in the market town and the farmers who surround it, is an industrial unit and that the prosperity of the individuals living in the community rises and falls, ebbs and flows, with the prosperity of the community as a whole.

One important aspect of the situation is that the farmer has a right to look for a good market for what he raises and has to dispose of. He is a producer, first of all, and must produce before he can consume.

The trading center, where he would naturally expect to dispose of his surplus products, is not performing its functions as a part of the community if it does not make preparation for buying everything the farmer wishes to sell, and the market should always be a cash market.

This much the farmer has a right to demand in return for the support he is able to give the town.

Could Get Better Prices. If the farmers have in their local town a market for their products or a great part of them they would obtain a much better price for everything they raise, and the consumer would pay considerably less than the people living in large congested centers.

To supply the needs and demands of the people living in the large cities great quantities of country produce are daily shipped to the commission merchants operating there.

The city consumer pays the price for living in the center of excitement, as he joins with the producer in sharing the cost of moving the farm products to the large cities; also the expense entailed in handling, storing and disposing of them.

Town Is Entitled to Support. On the other hand, having provided for a good, adequate market, the town is entitled to the support of the farmers.

Furthermore, the only manner in which the market can be maintained is for the farmers to give all their trade to their local merchants—keep their money at home.

The cow must be fed if she is to continue giving milk. You cannot draw more out of a cash than has been put into that cash.

If the farmers of a community persist in sending the money they receive for their products away from home to buy goods the time surely will come when there will be no money at home with which the town's tradesmen can buy the farmers' products.

This is the philosophy of the situation in a nutshell. The resident of a town who does not exert his every effort in its interest, to build it up and make it strong and prosperous, is indeed retarding his own advancement. That's the logical reply.

Develop a Home Market. The first step in the right direction is the creation and development of a home market. Everything within your power should be done to make your town the trading mecca of your vicinity.

You should volunteer your services and co-operate with the other citizens in making your town the trading center of your section of the state.

Give the question a little thought and when you have reached a conclusion do not hesitate to voice your sentiments.

Go to your local newspaper publisher, your banker, your merchant, your lawyer, your hotel keeper and your druggist and tell them what you think would be the best way to build up and advance your town.

Citizens Are Thoughtless. The efforts spent should not be directed in specific channels, but should embrace the betterment of rural life and conditions.

The work for the improvement of both town and country ought to be made a community job, and every resident should engage in the work with equal zeal.

Local development will be hindered just as long as the thoughtless citizens line up at the counter of the faker and tender him their hard earned dollars and while they continue to aid in increasing the bank accounts of the enormous corporations engaged in selling goods by mail through deceptive pictures in expensive catalogues.

Let the community rise up in one body and put a stop to this practice.

PITH OF THE NEWS.

Tidings Told In Terse Measure For Busy Readers

The will of George W. Vanderbilt, New York, was filed for probate. It leaves his entire estate, estimated at $20,000,000, to his widow and only daughter, Cornelia.

The Grand Trunk Railway system's traffic earnings for the period from March 1st to 7th, 1914, were $907,706, as compared with $933,622 for the same period in 1913, showing a decrease of $25,916.

The Business Men's Association of Ogdensburg, N.Y., is considering the question of doing away with the arc lamps in Ford street, in the business section, and substituting cluster lights.

New Zealand's Water Powers

"New Zealand has," says a New Zealand writer, "inestimable riches in her water supply, which means electrical energy supply. In the North Island she has far more water-power latent than can be applied fully in the next two centuries; but in the South Island, the long, snow-clad chains of the southern Alps will yield an inexhaustible supply of power. The millions of tons of falling water now running to waste night and day, replaced by every winter's snows, will before long be utilized. Transmitted by wire to factory towns built on the lower slopes of the hills, or on level land, our cheap production of energy will enable this dominion to outpace any competitor dependent on coal as a producer of power. Our geographically huge neighbor, Australia will never be able to manufacture goods at a price which these small mountainous islands will be able to do. Australia will be New Zealand's granary; New Zealand will be Australia's factory."

A Laudable Reason

A preacher had ordered a load of hay from one of his parishioners. About noon the parishioner's little son came to the house crying lustily. On being asked what the matter was, he said that the load of hay had tipped over in the street. The preacher, a kindly man, assured the little fellow that it was nothing serious, and asked him to dinner.

"Pa wouldn't like it," said the boy. But the preacher assured him that he would fix it all right with his father, and asked him to take dinner before going for the hay. After dinner the boy was asked if he was not glad that he had stayed.

"Pa won't like it," he persisted. The preacher, unable to understand, asked the boy what made him think his father would object.

"Why, you see, pa's under the hay," explained the boy.
