THE OLD ST. LAWRENCE

UNCHANGED SINCE CONTINENT'S BEGINNING.

Magnificent Stream is One of the Most Ancient of World's Rivers and Did Not Have to Make Its Own Bed.

The Youth's Companion.
What is the oldest river in the world? The St. Lawrence. It is also one of the few rivers that did not have to make its own bed, and has remained unchanged since the very beginning of the American continent.

Try to think of a time when the earth was covered by a mass of water, hot, steaming, and often tremendously disturbed by the throes of a globe beneath it that was shrinking because it was becoming cooled. As the globe shrank, every particle of the outside was naturally pulled toward the centre, and the hardening crust, which could not be packed any more solidly than it was, had to wrinkle, sinking down here and bulging up somewhere else.

After a time certain of these rising wrinkles, or folds, the thicker, or firmer parts of the earth's crust stood out the strain, and become permanent ridges. The oldest of them that geologists know, and apparently the first that bulged up above the universal ocean and remained high and dry, was the broad mass on which Canada now rests. It is a part of the original crust of the earth and we can see it to-day wherever it is not covered with rock rocks or soil, just as it crystallized and cooled off the primitive molten material.

This mass formed a broad V from Labrador down to Lake Huron, and thence northward to Alaska; on account of its shape, geologists call it the Canadian shield. It is the oldest land known, and apparently the strongest, for there are no signs of any extensive changes in it (except the wearing away of the surface) since it first rolled the ocean off its shoulders.

Off the eastern coast of this primitive continent lay a chain of lofty islands, about on the line of the Blue Ridge, the White mountains, the Maine coast, and Nova Scotia. Between these islands and the mainland was a trough-like space that ran from Eastern Quebec south-westward to Ohio. It was 200 or 300 miles wide, and filled with a shallow sea; and just outside the island chain was the great hollow that held the Atlantic ocean.

Time went on. For ages the straining and cracking of the shrinking globe, earthquakes, sun and frost, pounding surf, running water, blowing fogs, ice—all labored to tear down the mountains and carry the wreckage of rocks and dust away into the valleys and seas. In this way vast masses of rock layers in layers of shales, sandstones and what not, were laid down in that narrow trough-like sea between the chain of islands and the continent. All "sedimentary" rocks were soft and weak as compared with the solid old granites deeply footed on either side of them; and the trough itself, a sagging fold, was a line of weakness in the crust.

As the load of deposits became heavier and heavier, the floor of this trough slowly yielded, and as it sank towards the heated region below the under side melted and grew thinner and thinner.

That could not go on forever, and soon the continental shrinking of the globe and the enormous pressure of the weight of the ocean became irresistible. The Canadian shield was immovable, so the rock in the trough began to bulge or crumple all along its length. Gradually, not all at once, but by slow and varying movements, these folds were squeezed up, which in their broken and worn-down form, we know as the Appalachian mountains.

Toward the south there was room for this action to be rather gentle and regular, but in the far north—the trough was narrow; and the soft rocks were set on edge, overturned, and splintered against the solid continent. Very early in the struggle a great fracture of the earth's crust occurred here along a curving northeast and southwest line. It left a deep and broad trench between the crushed and displaced rocks of the trough and the granite shore of the Canadian shield.

Into this trench rushed all the interior waters of the continent, draining away to the sea, and the St. Lawrence river was born! There, no doubt, it will remain as long as the earth keeps its present form. At that time there was no Gulf of St. Lawrence, the land extending out to a coast line that stretched unbroken from Nova Scotia to Labrador. The present Gulf is the result of a sinking of the coast region. Most of it is very shallow, but a chain of soundings shows the ancient river bed as a channel winding up between Newfoundland and Cape Breton to the deep ocean.

Sent to Central Prison Brockville, May 19.—Leopold Simard, the young Montreal man, arrested last week for theft of $100, and a gold watch from the residence of J. C. Dickey, Yonge, Mills, and other articles from a farmer named Baker, of Catarqui, charges to which he pleaded guilty, was sentenced by Judge Reynolds to twenty-three months in the Central Prison.

How Thin People Can Put On Flesh

A New Discovery.

Thin men and women—that big hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks who work over, or who have nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out foolish foods and funny savan diets, and eat the best of the best food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. It is the only food that gets the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best medicinal plants known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all druggists sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

LORD KITCHENER

To Return to Confer With Sir Edward Grey
London, May 19.—The Morning Standard is informed that Lord Kitchener, who was recently in communication with the foreign office, will return to England for a brief period at an early date, to discuss with Sir Edward Grey questions of the highest importance connected with the administration of Egypt. Although Lord Kitchener's work since 1910 has been most valuable, it is understood that, in his opinion, the time is ripe for the changes for some time discussed by the imperial government.

His suggestions are not confined to financial matters, but include political matters also. His scheme deals with the co-ordination of the administrative acts, and is not confined to Egypt, but also embraces the Sudan. Lord Kitchener will stay at Broome Park, near Canterbury.

It is further understood that the question as discussed during Sir Edward Grey's visit to Paris, and that M. Cambon, the French ambassador in London, will be in touch with Lord Kitchener during his visit.
