An outrageous freak of fashion seems the use of fur on mid-summer frocks, but this notion is considered very chic in Paris and many of the most expensive frocks of sheer, summery stuff, have a touch of its made of white indestructible voile, the bodice and tunic showing a machine embroidered design. White a buttoned boot match the white frock and the wide sash is flowered to match the hat.

This is the best test that has been made of the supply.

Works 100 Acre Farm

On a hill farm of a hundred acres in a Vermont township, there lives a woman, apparently less than forty years of age, with three daughters, oldest of whom is seventeen and the youngest eight, who acts as her own farmer. Left a widow last year she was faced with the question of disposing of the farm for what it would bring or attempting to operate it and maintaining there a home for herself and daughters.

Unable to secure a competent and reliable man to assist her, the woman decided to become a farmer herself. Through the summer she had the assistance of an uncle, but laboured with him in all kinds of farm work. He went away in November and then she assumed full charge of the twenty-head of cattle and six horses for the winter. She has done her own milking, feeding and had complete charge of this amount of live stock.

A brother was engaged to cut the wood pile and assist through sugar-baking, but the woman is still her own farmer. Apparently, says a Vermont paper, she is making a success of her work. The eldest daughter keeps school and the youngest goes to school. This farmer boasts that she has milked fourteen cows in an hour and ten minutes.

Distress of Mind From Nervous Exhaustion

Fear of Insanity—Dread of the Future—Depressed Spirits Disappear When Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is Used.

You may be accustomed to think of physical suffering as the greatest to which man is subjected. This is not so. Compare the sufferings of a man with a broken leg, for example, with the mental anguish of the nerve-racked patient who lives in constant dread of some terrible calamity or of losing his mind. Nothing can be more horrible to contemplate, is it not right, therefore, to consider that no suffering is comparable to the anguish experienced by the victim of diseases of the nerves.

You will read here the experience of a nurse who feared for the loss of her mind, so greatly were her nerves exhausted. She is now enthusiastic in praising Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to her patients.

—Mrs. E. J. Billings, nurse, North Bay, Ont., writes:—"I am happy to be able to say that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is fully worth all the praise given it. I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for some time, and would not be without it in the house. I know that if it had not been for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I would have been out of my mind. My nerves were so far gone that I had gloomy forebodings of the future and feared the loss of reason. I feel free now and do not lose an opportunity of recommending this treatment to my patients.

There can be no mistake about such evidence as this, for the better you know Mrs. Billings the more certain you will be of the value of her statement. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

MATCH-MAKING IN LONDON

New Institute in Bloomsbury Welcomes "Philandering"

A step forward in the campaign for the religious and social regeneration of Central London was taken when the new institute at Bloomsbury Central Baptist church was opened, says the London Leader.

The necessity and the effectiveness of institutional work in such an area hardly needed the demonstration that the success of Whitefield's and Kingsway Hall have provided, and Bloomsbury fully realizing the need, has long been struggling along with makeshift premises till it should be possible to obtain a building equipped on a worthy scale. That aim has at last been achieved at a cost of $12,500, raised by gifts ranging from $5,000 donation at one end of the scale to a working woman's offering of 240 hard-earned farthings at the other. Of the total $2,500 is still outstanding. The institute fills the whole of a floor skillfully built up above the chapel floor, and contains a number of reading and writing and games rooms, a large and comfortable lounge, a billiard-room and a malloconference hall.

"Our great object," said the Rev. Thomas Phillips, who is now at the end of his ninth year at Bloomsbury, is to provide comfortable rooms for young man or woman in Central London who cares to use them. We have no membership and no subscription. On Sundays in particular we try to create the atmosphere of some of the numbers of men and girls who are either 'living-in' or are quartered in cheerless lodgings in our neighborhood.

"Do such opportunities lead to undue philandering?" Mr. Phillips was asked.

"Not at all," was the reply. "As a matter of fact, with proper limits we almost encourage it. Do you realize that it is only in some such way as this that hundreds of men in Central London can ever speak on terms of ordinary familiarity to a 'teen girl? Many happy marriages, I am glad to say, have resulted from such restricted institutional work as we have been able to carry on in the past."
